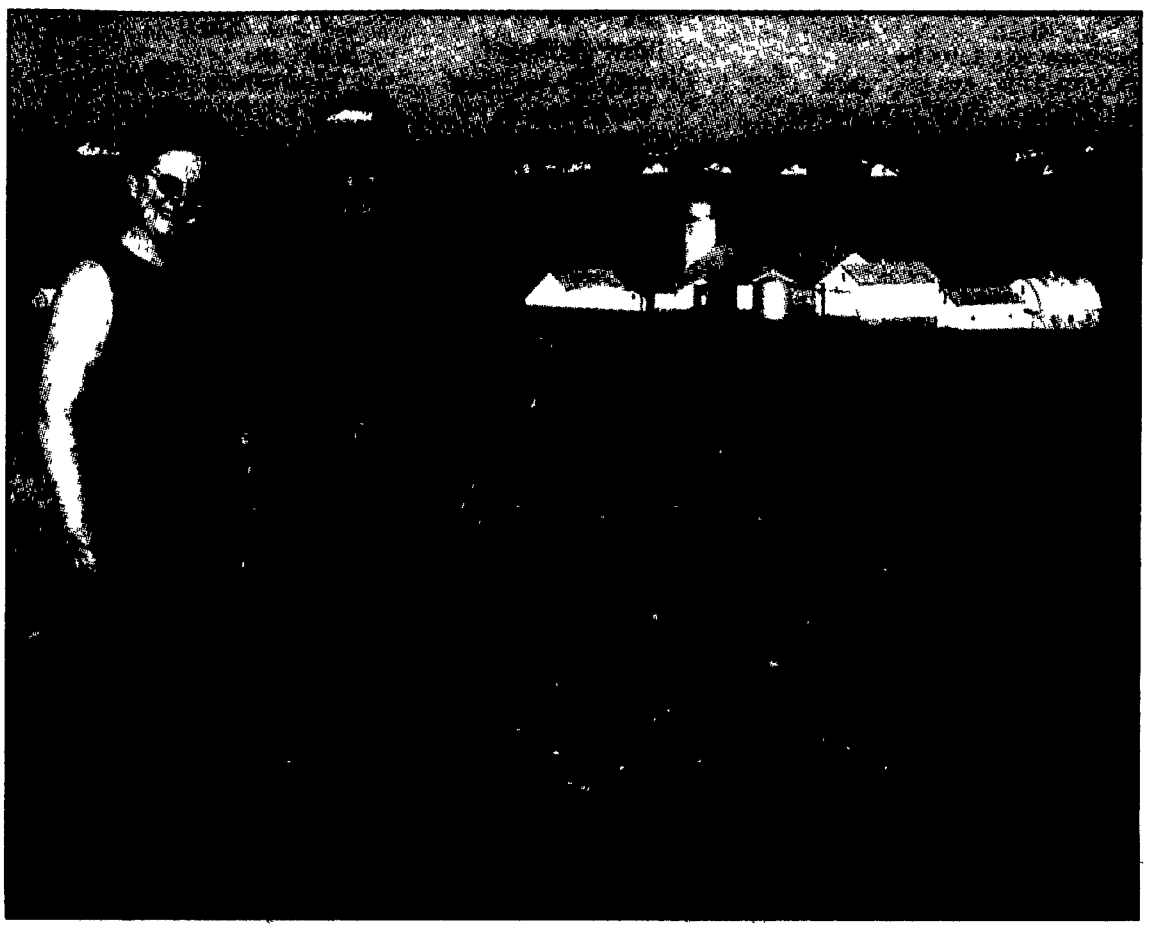
Berks County To Celebrate Farmland Preservation Efforts



Mark and Nancy Wolfskill built a progressive dairy facility on this farm with the help of preservation funds. The Wolfskills have sold development rights on about 400 acres of land north of Robesonia. Their farm will host a field day June 7 celebrating 25,000 acres of farmland preserved in Berks County. Photo by Dave Lefever

ROBESONIA (Berks Co.) — Longtime farmers Mark and Nancy Wolfskill have a thriving operation to pass on to their son David and his family.

A dairy setup completed in January of 2000 includes a double-12 parallel milking parlor and a freestall barn with manure storage underneath the slatted floor. With the help of several hired persons, the Wolfskills milk 230 Holsteins, finish upward to 250 beef cattle each year, and grow most of the crops that feed and bed the livestock.

According to Mark Wolfskill, the decision to preserve land has helped ensure the family a future and a livelihood in agriculture.

Funds from preserving two of the family's farms went toward the purchase of another neighboring farm four years ago and toward the dairy facility they built on it.

The Wolfskills have sold development rights on about 400 acres here in Heidelberg Township through the Berks County Farmland Preservation Program, a move that has helped them expand and update their operation. They will host a field day on their farm June 7 celebrating a county milestone of 25,000 acres preserved — a number that is rapidly growing.

The county ranks second in the state and 11th in the country in number of acres preserved, according to program directors Susanne Sharadin and Tammy Hildebrand. Since the 25,000-acre mark was reached last winter, six more farms have been preserved in the county, totalling 27,208 acres on 219 farms preserved since 1990.

Sharadin said the program got a big boost in 1999 when the Berks County commissioners decided to take out a $30 mil-

Poultry Farming Is Best Job Of All, Says Bartho Family

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LANDISBURG (Perry Co.) — Optimistic that egg consumption and prices are on the rise, Bill and Sharon Bartho recently erected a 150,000 layer house on the family farm in Landisburg.

The couple, flush with the excitement of this new venture, are eager to list the many pluses of poultry farming.

"This is the best!" Sharon said when comparing farm and non-farming jobs the couple have experienced.

"You aren't tied down as much as milking cows required, and it's cleaner than hogs," Bartho said.

"It's clean. You don't need to trample through pigs or neuter them," Sharon said.

But the best thing, the couple reiterates, is that they can work together as a family.

"What other job offers the opportunity and flexibility to work together as a family at home?" she asks.

"We are probably the only chicken house with a playroom," Sharon said. The fully enclosed room is decorated like a family room, complete with sofa, television, and video recorder.

The Barthos said the playroom was a requirement, and one that required reviewing many plans to figure out how it could best fit into the operation.

The room has a large window facing the packing area so that Sharon can see at a glance what the children are doing.

"If they need supervision, I can shut down the lines and go into the playroom," Sharon said.

Bill and Sharon Bartho with Sarah, 3, and Nicholas, 5, are thrilled with the opportunity to work together in their new poultry layer operation.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
May 22, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was moderate to fairly good during midweek trading as dealers placed orders for the approaching holiday weekend. Offerings of bone-in breasts remained short and boneless-skinless breasts were closely cleared. Dark meat cuts were at least sufficient. Wings remained fully adequate. Shipping availability was problematic as seasonal trucking demand in the South remained strong. Movement through retail and distributive channels was moderate, with planned features stimulating the best draw. The market tone was firm on bone-in breasts, fully steady to instances firm on boneless-skinless breasts and about steady on the balance.

National Broiler Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment was steady in the West, steady to firm elsewhere. Retail demand was seasonally fair to good aided by retail features and Memorial Day needs. Food service was fair to fairly good. Supplies of smaller sizes were close balanced to short and confidently held, but heavier weights were at least sufficient. In the Midwest, movement for the holiday weekend was questionable due to previous flooding and possible cooler weather and rain. Truck shortages in parts of the South caused problems and some delays in shipments to other locations. In the parts structure, breast items were moving well with supplies better balanced to short of trade needs. The remaining items were at least adequate or easily available. In production areas, live supplies were moderate. Weights were desirable to heavy, but mostly desirable.

Corn Belt Feedstuff

St. Joseph, Mo.
May 21, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

CORN BELT FEEDSTUFF: Wholesale Bids. Truck or Rail dollars per ton. Feedstuffs prices were steady to higher for the week due to a slight pick up in demand. Soybean meal demand improved over the week. The upcoming holiday will spur some buyers to shop early due to mill closings. The eastern Corn Belt received ample moisture over the past couple of weeks and spring planting is lagging the average.

SOYBEAN MEAL: 48 percent rail 4.50 higher at 165.00-168.00. 48 percent truck 2.50 to 4.50 higher at 168.00-177.00 per ton.

CORN BY-PRODUCTS: Gluten Feed 21 percent, Interior Points, steady to 6.00 higher at 54.00-56.00; Chicago steady to 4.00 higher at 55.00-59.00. 60 percent Gluten Meal, Interior Points, steady to 7.00 higher at 212.00-225.00; Chicago steady to 11.00 higher at 216.00-220.00 per ton. Rail Hominy Feed, Central Illinois Points, steady at 53.00-64.00; truck steady at 55.00-63.00. Crude Corn Oil was steady at 16.50-17.50 cents per pound.

MIDDLINGS: Northwest steady to 7.00 lower from 45.00-60.00; Buffalo steady to 6.00 higher at 42.00-50.00 per ton.

ALFALFA PELLETS: Toledo, Ohio 17 percent dehydrated, steady to 18.00 lower at 149.00-165.00; meal steady to 18.00 lower at 152.00-168.00. 15 percent steady at 134.00-160.00 per ton; meal steady at 137.00-163.00.

DISTILLER'S DRIED GRAINS: Central Illinois 3.00 higher at 72.00-78.00; Chicago steady at 73.00-84.00; Lawrenceburg, IL 3.00 higher at 75.00; Kansas and Nebraska steady at 95.00-100.00; Minneapolis steady at 85.00-90.00.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
May 22, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3410-1.4509 Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3300-1.4619 mostly 1.3300-1.3850.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9200-1.0250; Class III - spot prices - .7500-.9600.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - In 0, Out 109; last week - In 0, Out 80; last year - In 0, Out 194. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 0, Out 0.

During April, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 12.51 billion pounds, up 2.9% from April 2001. The following are the April-to-April changes for selected states: Pennsylvania [0] .9%, Kentucky [1] .3%, Texas [2] .9%, Virginia [3] .1%, Vermont [4] .1%, New York [4] .8%, and Florida 5.7%. Currently, milk production is steady.

Much cooler weather returned to much of the East. Snowfall and/or frost were reported from New England to the Carolinas. It continues to be wet in the northern half of the region. Fieldwork and alfalfa cutting are behind normal, seasonal schedule. Cooler temperatures in Florida and other Southeastern states are slowing milk production declines. There have been reports of milk output rebounding in some areas. This, coupled with school closings, has surplus milk volumes increasing in the Southeast where manufacturing plants are all operating at or near capacity and expect to be at those levels well into June.

The Memorial Day weekend milk volumes are shaping up to be heavier than the past four-five years have been. Contacts are well prepared and they feel that milk volumes will be handled within the region. Bottled milk sales are slower because of the holiday weekend and the fact that many Southern schools have already closed for the summer. This weekend marks the 'opening of the shore" for summer, but bottlers report little change in orders from resort-area retailers.

The condensed skim market is little changed, but orders are slower for the weekend and some cheese makers have cut back their operations to five days a week due to slower demand. This further adds to the milk and condensed skim that has to be pr[illegible]sed.

The fluid cream market remains weak, but spot interest has shown some improvement. However, some cream users will be down for an extra day this weekend. Spot prices are up as the CME butter average for last week jumped more than six cents. However, CME trading this week saw butter drop nearly four cents on Monday (5/20). This is leading some buyers, especially butter makers, to take cream based on the CME, date of delivery. Multiples are steady to slightly lower this week. Ice cream production is slow to develop, particularly soft serve. The cold weather is having a negative impact on frozen product consumption. Cream cheese production is about steady. Bottled cream sales are improving as strawberries are coming into season. Churning activity is still heavy, but some plants were able to cut back when their cream demand improved.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC — THIS WEEK WITH

MEMORIAL DAY, MAY 27

BLOOMER'S BLOOMERS

In Homer, New York, on May 27, 1818, Amelia Jenks was born She grew up to become the suffragette and American reformer Amelia Jenks Bloomer, who popularized the balloon-legged outfit—bloomers In her travels, she adopted the three-quarter-length skirts and Turkish-style trousers that she saw other women wearing, and she promoted them versatility in The Lily, a newspaper devoted to women's issues, of which she was the editor A general outcry followed, with many calling the new style "indecent " Fashions barely changed, but bicyclists, horseback riders, and bathers took up the costume, which has continued to be called by her name

The costume of women should be suited to her wants and necessities.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☆ Add powdered milk or Epsom salts to your bath for a relaxing soak.

BANANA-CINNAMON WAFFLES

1-3/4 cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 egg whites, beaten
1-1/2 cups skim milk
2/3 cup mashed banana
1/2 cup applesauce

Oil waffle iron, and heat Combine dry ingredients In another bowl, combine egg whites, milk, banana, and applesauce Add dry ingredients to wet, and mix briefly Cook until golden

Makes about 6 waffles.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If June be sunny, harvest comes early

In the hay season, when there is no dew, it indicates rain.

OPINION

A Sense Of History

Some time ago, Harlan Ellison, a major American short fiction author and multiple award-winning film and television scriptwriter, noted how appalled he is sometimes when he speaks to groups of teen-agers.

While speaking to the group of young people, Ellison mentioned various historical figures from the 1960s and 1970s. Afterward, there were audience questions that literally left him dumbfounded. Ellison was amazed at how little the group knew about American history, even something as omnipresent as American TV.

The writer commented about how most teen-agers know what happened about two weeks ago, but that was about the extent of their historical recollection. Two weeks, that's about it — the attention of the American public on any given subject.

That follows a recent conclusion drawn up from the National Assessment of Educational Progress history scores for the nation's seniors and fourth and eighth graders. Nearly six of 10 high school seniors lack a basic knowledge of U.S. history. Only two-thirds of fourth and eighth graders demonstrate a basic understanding of the subject.

Already, some say, the events of Sept. 11 have disappeared into the post-two-week endless slough of despond called forgetfulness, washed from many people's minds.

Worse yet is the evidence that college "studies" are now turning up. Those studies point out what most farmers around here have gathered over simple day-to-day common-sense practices on the farm since time immemorial.

For instance, we read in the winter/spring 2002 issue of Sustainable Agriculture newsletter, published by the University of California Cooperative Extension, that dairy farmers have "experimented with manure as a commercial fertilizer alternative." (We kid you not). The information comes by way of an abstract from the 2001 California Alfalfa and Forage Symposium in Modesto, Calif., last December. The report, "Happy Cows, Happy Environment: It's The Manure," by Stuart Pettygrove, soil specialist, University of California, Davis, and Alison Eagle, dairy Biologically Integrated Farming Systems (BIFS) project coordinator, also from UC Davis, noted that "some dairies are targeting manure application for each irrigation based on crop N needs, viewing the manure pond as a fertilizer tank" (emphasis ours).

They write: "California dairy producers are faced with a number of challenges that limit the implementation of improved manure management and are not directly addressed by the BIFS project. These include 1) insufficient storage capacity, resulting in manure application based on pond capacity instead of crop needs, 2) insufficient fresh water supply, in winter or year-round, for dilution of manure water, so application rates end up being higher than crop needs, and 3) fresh water coming from different sources, such as wells, making appropriate mixing of manure and fresh water difficult, and requiring some significant pipeline changes. Attitudes and values of dairy producers, their crop consultants, farm managers, and farm workers may require some changes in order to adapt to the new perspective on dairy manure as a resource rather than a waste in need of disposal."

Yes, dairy manure water, according to Sustainable Agriculture, can effectively replace synthetic fertilizer.

They needed a "study" for this? Why not just give your best land stewards, the family dairy farm operators, a call and ask for their expertise?

You can see the whole report on the Internet at http://alfalfa.ucdavis.edu/SUBPAGES/2001Symposium/Proceedings/CAS01HappyCowsPETTYGROVE-5.PDF

What are they going to tell us next? That milk actually comes from cows, and not from the local minimarket?

To Continue To Conserve Water

Recent rains have caused lawns to be lush and green and have provided good levels of moisture in the surface soil in southeastern Pennsylvania. However, this region continues to be under a drought emergency and this has caused confusion for some people.

It is important to remember a number of factors are considered when a drought emergency is declared. One of the criteria is the level of groundwater supplies. While groundwater levels are improving, they are still at drought emergency levels or worse for most of the southeastern counties.

As of May 22, a number of counties had 30-day average groundwater levels at record lows. These counties are Berks, Chester, Delaware, Lebanon, and Lehigh. With the summer months upon us, when water demands are the highest, it is imperative that we continue to conserve water as much as possible.

To Be Aware Of The Cancellation Of Poultry Shows At This Year's Fairs

The threat of avian influenza continues to be very high in the northeastern U.S.

In order to protect Pennsylvania growers from the disease, Dr. John Enck, state veterinarian and director of the Bureau of Animal Health with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, has canceled all poultry shows in Pennsylvania until further notice. Many fairs typically offer a number of poultry exhibits, but this year there will be no feathers, no dressed poultry, and no egg classes offered. Since avian influenza cannot be transmitted to humans through the ingestion of poultry, eggs, or meat, food stands are permitted to serve poultry products.

Ron Miller, administrator of the Pennsylvania Fair Program, points out that all fairs must meet the 12-department minimum and five exhibitors per department to qualify for reimbursement from the Pennsylvania Fair Fund. With the cancellation of poultry shows at fairs, changes must be made to offer other departments to be in compliance with the Fair Fund Act. If you have a question about department requirements, contact Ron Miller at (717) 787-5342.

To Understand The Increased Threat Of Lyme Disease In Pennsylvania

Blacklegged ticks are on the move in Pennsylvania. And their spread has coincided with an increase in reported cases of Lyme disease in the past few years, said an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"We're seeing blacklegged ticks from areas where previously none had been reported," said Steven Jacobs, extension entomologist, who oversees the entomology department's Insect Identification Laboratory.

"Fifteen years ago, these ticks were mostly limited to the southeast corner of the state, the north central region around the Allegheny National Forest, and the Presque Isle peninsula in Erie," Jacobs said. "Now they seem to be established in more areas of central, western, and southeastern Pennsylvania. In fact, the vast majority of counties have at least a small, localized population of ticks."

Blacklegged ticks for several years were known as deer ticks in the northern United States, until scientific studies confirmed that deer ticks were in fact smaller versions of the blacklegged ticks common in the South, and not a separate species.

The apparent increase in the tick's range is a concern because of the role it plays in spreading the bacteria that causes Lyme disease, a neurological disorder that can cause a variety of symptoms, including a bullseye-like rash, fever, stiff neck, muscle aches, and headaches. Left untreated, victims can suffer facial palsy, arthritis, and even paralysis. The disease normally is treated with antibiotics, but if not caught early, recovery can be slow and difficult.

Lyme disease accounts for more than 90 percent of vector-borne disease cases in the U.S., according to Jacobs. "In 1990, there were fewer than 700 new cases of Lyme disease in Pennsylvania," he said. "In 2000, the number of cases was more than 2,300, an increase of more than 300 percent. Pennsylvania now ranks third in the nation in the number of new cases per year.

"It's unclear whether there's a direct relationship between the tick's spread and the increase in disease," Jacobs said. "The increase could be partially due to increased public awareness and better diagnosis. But I suspect that because the ticks are found in more places, more people are coming into contact with them and contracting the disease."

To survive and thrive, blacklegged ticks need appropriate hosts. The adult ticks often are found on white-tailed deer, and nymphal stages will attach to mice, chipmunks, birds, and other small animals. While awaiting a suitable host, the ticks usually are found on leaf litter or low branches in brushy, wooded areas. Regions such as southeastern Pennsylvania with deer populations that are concentrated but have limited mobility because of surrounding development — provide prime tick habitat.

"Blacklegged ticks can be found on many bird species," Jacobs said. "Because of their migratory paths, birds may transport ticks to new areas along or east of the state's mountain ranges. Ticks also can hitch rides with travelers and their pets, particularly on 'working' dogs that are taken into the field for hunting or show field trials."

With blacklegged ticks spreading into many areas of the state, Jacobs urges continued caution. "It's more important than ever that people take steps to avoid coming into contact with ticks, especially if they plan to be in high-risk areas," he said. "Also, know the signs of Lyme disease and see your doctor if symptoms develop."

Thanks for a very timely editorial regarding the wise use of land. Certainly the present trend is only beneficial to the developer and to those who have land for sale.

There are many who are beating their drums for ag land preservation, but I see little action taken. Certainly large lot sizes is not the answer. What is needed is high-density development with state-of-the-art effluent disposal systems.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE MARKS OF JESUS

Background Scripture:
Galatians 5:16 through 6:18.
Devotional Reading:
Colossians 3:5-17.

Some years ago, when we visited the shrine of San Giovanni Rotondo in Italy, one of the monks there placed in my hands two of the gloves with which Padre Pio had tried to hide the wounds of Christ that marked his hands.

Padre Pio, a remarkable and mystical monk of the 20th century, is in the process of canonization as a Roman Catholic saint. Pio was one of a number of Christians who have borne the stigmata or wounds of Christ on their bodies. St. Francis of Assisi, I believe, was the first bearer of the mystical yet physiologically evident stigmata.

The term "stigmata" has come to indicate this spiritual/physical phenomenon. But, at the every end of his letter to the Galatians, Paul uses the word "stigmata" when he says: "Henceforth let no man trouble me; for I bear on my body the marks of Jesus" (6:17).

Translated into English, the term "stigmata" is rendered as "marks."

In the Old Testament, the word "mark" was used to indicate a physical sign. So the "mark of Cain" (Gen. 4:15) was a physical mark that was to brand Cain as both a murderer and a repentant sinner. Circumcision was regarded as the mark of an Israelite (Gen. 17:13). Hebrew prophets sometimes were marked by a distinctive scar (1 Kings 20:35-43). In Paul's world, slaves were branded with a stigmata that indicated the master who owned them and soldiers bore a mark signifying the leader whom they served.

Stigmata, Anyone?

When Paul speaks of the "marks of Jesus" to the Galatians, he is implying a rich meaning for these stigmata. In one sense, these "marks" are probably scars from the various beatings and stonings Paul has had to suffer as an apostle. Also, I believe Paul is intending these scars as the physical evidence that he serves as a slave to Christ and, like the soldier, acknowledges that he is one of Christ's men. If he were to be challenged as to the authenticity of his apostleship, Paul could point to his scars as the marks of it.

You and I are not likely to be beaten or stoned as disciples of Jesus, but Paul gives us some impressive "marks." Christians do not wear distinctive clothing, but there are definite marks that should identify us: "... the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness. goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control" and I love when he adds, "against such there is no law" (5:23b). The Spirit does not live in and through us just because we say so, but because our lives bear fruit of the Spirit's presence in us.

Paul also suggests some other "marks" of Christian discipleship: "If we live by the Spirit, let us also walk by the Spirit. Let us have no self-conceit, no provoking of one another, no envy of one another" (5:25,26). Paul is not finished: "And let us not grow weary in well-doing. ... So then, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all men, and especially to those who are of the household of faith" (16:9,10). Note that Paul doesn't say that we are to "do good unto" just those who do good unto us, but even to those outside the household of faith.

Walking With Jesus

Note also that Paul's "marks" here are not which church we attend, what denomination we follow, or whether when baptizing we dip, sprinkle, or pour. It has nothing to do with whether we use grape juice or sacramental wine for communion, whether we recite the Apostles' or Korean Creed, or call our clergy "Father," "Pastor," or "Preacher." The marks of Jesus that Paul bore on his body are the signs that he has met and walks with Jesus in his life, the same ones we are to bear in our lives, too.

Think for a moment what we could do for the cause of Christ right now if, in the next week before us, all of us, the writer and readers of this piece, were to pledge that we would bear in our lives each of the marks that Paul enumerates: "love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control" — just for starters!

I'm willing. Are you?

"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."

"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day; and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape"

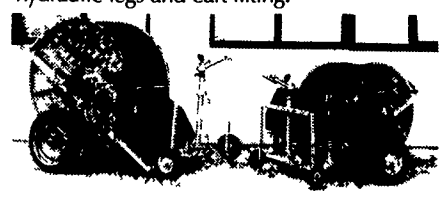
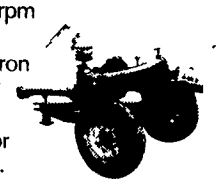
We Water the Earth When Mother Nature Needs a Helping Hand
Need Irrigation or Waste Water Disposal?
CHOOSE AMERICA'S PREMIER TRAVELER FROM TICO/FERBO
• 52 Different Models
• 5 Drive Systems • 15 Hose Lengths
From 30-630 gallons per minute output and with hose lengths from 395 ft. up to 1650 ft. Standard features include Automatic Speed Compensation, galvanized cart and stabilizer legs, turntable, pto wind-up and optional hydraulic legs and cart lifting.


Economic Irrigation: With low input pressure requirements and constant speed irrigation, FERBO Travelers remain the leaders in low cost automatic irrigation. There isn't another traveler available that is simpler to operate or less expensive to maintain.
Waste Water Disposal: Our engine driven travelers are the simplest and most accurate on the market. Our computer controlled speed regulation ensures 99% accuracy to meet Federal/State design criteria while our simple yet efficient engine/gearbox drive ensures low maintenance.

Plus: We manufacture and market a complete line of. Slurry pumps, pump fittings, irrigation pumps, wheel row, giant sprinklers, hand move, trickle center pivots

ROVATTI SLURRY PTO DRIVE PUMPS
Rovatti TL slurry pumps are high-pressure slurry pumps with a unique "bolt on" chopper system
The standard pump features a high efficiency open-vane impeller with an interchangeable wear ring and fixed cutting blade to handle all but the very toughest of straw, hay or other difficult residuals. For these conditions, the chopper unit can be simply bolted to the pump where it is driven by the existing pump shaft, enabling it to handle virtually any waste products requiring chopping.
A number of additional features make these the most versatile and reliable units on the market:
• Special permanently lubricated mechanical seal for longer life
• Over-sized bearings
• Lubricated chopper shaft bearings
• Chopper shaft shear-pin to reduce risk of damage to the shaft and impeller
• A range of four tractor pto pumps and four bare-shaft pumps with flows from 105-1000 gpm
• Replaceable wear ring
• 540 rpm or 1000 rpm speeds
• Finest grade cast iron for high efficiency
• Unique water-cooled gearbox for extended gear life.


The pump is mounted on a heavy-duty wheeled cart with pto shaft, 6" quick-action suction fittings and 4" discharge fittings as standard.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

President Signs Farm Bill

- Countercyclical payments.
- Extension of the support program.
- 2.4 million pound annual cap per operation.

President Bush signed the 2002 Farm Bill into law on Monday, May 13. The new law, called the "Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002," contains many dairy provisions including an extension of the dairy price support program at $9.90 per CWT (3.67 percent milkfat) through Dec. 31, 2007, extension of the Dairy Export Incentive Program through 2007, a requirement that dairy importers to pay an assessment for dairy promotion that is equivalent to domestic producers, and creation of a new National Dairy Market Loss Payments Program that will contain countercyclical payments for dairy producers whenever milk prices fall below a certain level.

It is the latter provision, the National Dairy Market Loss Payments Program, that is getting a lot of attention from dairy producers. The program (let's call it the "countercyclical payment program") will work as follows.

First, a monthly payment will be made to a producer whenever the announced Class I price of milk in Boston is below $16.94 per CWT. The payment rate will be equal to 45 percent of this difference.

Let's take May 2002 as an example. The announced Class I price for fluid milk in Boston was $14.51 per CWT. The difference between this and $16.94 per CWT is $2.43 ($16.94-$14.51). The payment rate will then be 45 percent of this difference, or $1.09 per CWT.

Where did the $16.94 come from? That was the limit under the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact. Where did the 45 percent come from? That is the Class I utilization rate for the Northeast. Remember, these were the parameters agreed to by the House-Senate Conference Committee.

The payments are limited to 2.4 million pounds of milk per farm operation for a given fiscal year. This is equivalent to the output of a farm with 133 cows producing 18,000 pounds of milk per cow. The current government fiscal year will end Sept. 30.

The next question is, what is a dairy farm operation? Is an operation a place of business with cows, housing, a bulk tank, and milking equipment? Or is it Mom, Dad, and a working son or daughter on a farm location? Or is it an owner with three different operations in three different sites each qualifying for the 2.4 million pound cap? Also, will the 2.4 million pounds of milk be prorated to 2 million pounds during the first fiscal year (Dec. 1, 2001 to Sept. 30, 2002)? Maybe not.

There are still more questions to ask. How will things be managed the first fiscal year? Will a large operation that exceeds the 2.4 million pound cap be able to pick and choose the months that they wish to apply their cap? That would allow them to avoid low-price months.

But here's the problem with that. Let's say USDA decides that a total of 2 million pounds of milk is the cap for the months Dec. 1, 2001-Sept. 30, 2002. And let's assume the average payment rate is $0.88 per CWT. That will mean a farm with 133 cows will get a total of $17,600. However, if a large farm that produces 2 million pounds of milk per month could choose a month, they may elect May 2002, when the payment rate was $1.09. In that case, the large farm would get a check for $21,800. That would be a larger check than the farm with 133 cows. But then again, on a hundredweight basis, the larger farm would get much less than the farm with 133 cows.

Not to confuse things even more, the law intends to make a transition payment that would cover the Gates® Not Just Another Belt!

SUPER HC® AND SUPER HC® MOLDED NOTCH BELTS are designed for use where conventional V-Belt drives are impractical, where space, weight or sheave limitations are present and where increased horsepower capacity and higher speeds are required.

FEATURES:

- Gates "Curves" Concave sides, Radius Relief and Arched Top combine to minimize wear and assure proper support and strength.
- Full Oil & Heat Resistance Special material used throughout the belt provides resistance and also helps resist ozone, sunlight, weather and aging.
- Tough Tensile Members for Extra Strength Superior resistance to fatigue and shock loads Special bonding material surrounding tensile members provides long service without separation
- Molded Notches Reduce Bending Stress Notches are precision engineered for uniform distribution of stresses. Also dissipate the heat of rapid flexing.
- Bandless, Precision Machined Edge for Even Wedging Action Precisely machined to exact dimensions for uniform fit and reduction of belt slippage.

Gates®

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY - week ending May 17. Receipts: Total - 291,800, last week 346,400 Auctions - 220,100, last week 229 000 Direct - 71,700, last week 98,500. Video/Internet - N/A, last week 19,400. Old Format - 108,000, last week 182,400, last year 185,500. This week's auction volume included 48 percent over 600 lbs and 48 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers sold mixed according to the USDA's Livestock Market News Service The majority of the cattle sold in the Plains traded steady to 3.00 lower, with a few transactions on cattle over 800 lbs firm to 2.00 higher. Northern states traded the bulk of their cattle less than 700 lbs steady to 1.00 higher, with the opposite over 700 lbs selling from steady to 1.00 lower.

The Southeast was mostly steady as the big push for light calves has already passed Heavy rains throughout the Midwest have caused major planting delays, although pastures are lush allowing for a few more stocker cattle to be turned out for summer grass. One last surge of wheat pasture cattle has hit sale barns in the Plains, with OKC recording more than 15,000 head to kick off the week. Large numbers of heavier cattle continue to pass through auction barns, with cattle over 600 lbs increasing by 8 to 9 percent over the last two weeks on this report.

The direct feedyard trade was postponed again this week as both sides dug in, with feedlots finally accepting 66 00-67.00 late in the week, which is 1.00-2.00 lower than a week ago and 2.00-3.00 lower dressed at 106 00-107.00.

Most analysts had Friday's Cattle on Feed report pegged with placements coming in 6 percent less than a year ago, and April marketings 10 percent above this time a year ago. With the Memorial Day weekend right around the corner, beef demand should be on the rise, although many competitive proteins remain on the market due to Russia's poultry ban last month Boxed beef cutout values rose over 4.00 this week, with both live and feeder cattle contracts at the Mercantile Exchange rather quite through Friday where nearby contracts closed 7 to 97 cents lower lion dollar bond "solely dedicated to protecting farmland."

Berks County To Celebrate Farmland Preservation Efforts

With funds also provided by the state's preservation program, the county has about $10 million to use for farmland preservation annually, enough to ensure 50 to 55 additional farms each year will be designated farms in perpetuity.

According to Mark Wolfskill, the decision to preserve land has helped ensure the family a future and a livelihood in agriculture.

Funds from preserving two of the family's farms went toward the purchase of another neighboring farm four years ago and toward the dairy facility they built on it.

The Wolfskills had already been renting that farm for a number of years to grow crops. When the opportunity came to buy it, Mark saw the future of the dairy operation on the level hilltop overlooking contour strips of corn, barley, and alfalfa.

"I said to David, 'Just look out over here. You can build another barn,'" said Mark.

One of the reasons they chose the site is because of good air movement on the hill for ventilating the animal facilities.

Building the manure pit under the barn was more expensive than building one at an open location. One reason: about 110 concrete and steel posts plus a wall running lengthwise support the 156-by-112 foot slatted floor where the cows stand over the pit.

But as Mark pointed out, there is "no lagoon to spoil more land" on another site. With the freestall floors never needing to be scraped, the setup also saves a significant amount of labor over the years and helps keeps the cows drier, he said.

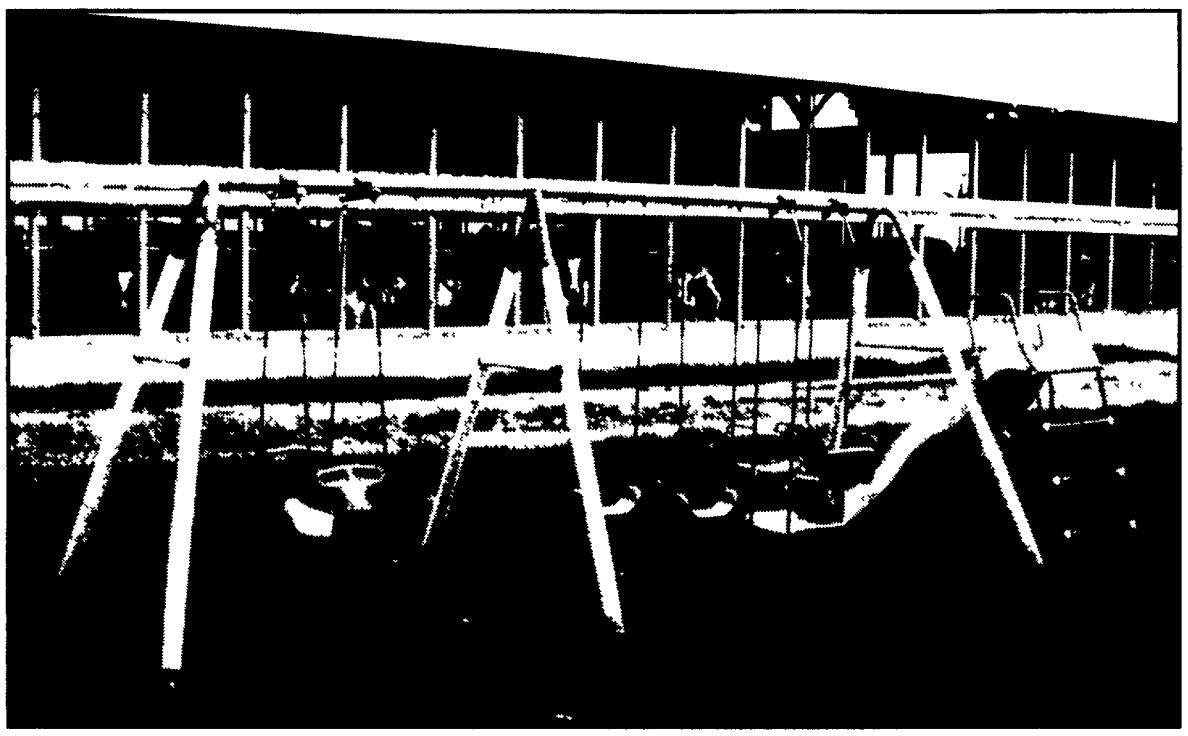
The soils on the Wolfskill farms are Class 2 and 3, well-drained, silt loam types — a chief factor in determining the land's eligibility for preservation, according to Hildebrand of the county preservation office.

Other important considerations that help farms qualify for preservation are "clustering potential" and "farmland potential."

Clustering potential refers to the amount of neighboring land still used for farming, community support, and whether the land is zoned for agriculture. Farmland potential is determined by looking at the farm operation's ability to grow and be productive. The Wolfskill farms had high rankings, Hildebrand said.

Appraisals for preservation run from about $1,700 to $2,300 per acre for the county's farms. The maximum landowners can receive through the program is $2,000 per acre. If the appraisal is greater than that, owners, in effect, donate the difference between the appraised value and the $2,000 per acre they receive in preserving the farm.

With high residential development potential in the area, preserving farmland is not a matter of "looking for a gold mine" — but will definitely help in passing the farm on to the next generation, Mark Wolfskill said.



A swing set for the Wolfskill's grandchildren is situated between the freestall barn and the milking parlor.

The Wolfskills have eight grandchildren, including David and his wife Cindy's two children, ages 5 and 2.

Fulltime herdsperson Lorraine Gechter and hired man Harold Keeney, along with his three young sons, are an important part of the operation. Two local students also help out with the milking.

Mark was 10 years old in 1948 when he moved onto the first of the farms owned by his parents, Martin and Anne Wolfskill. They chose "Mar-Anne" as the prefix name for the dairy herd. Mark has been farming here practically his whole life.

"This is a good valley," he said. "We need to keep whatever we can."

The farmland preservation celebration takes place Friday, June 7, at the Wolfskill's Mar-Anne Farms on N. Church Street, several miles north of Robesonia. It is open to the public. Registration is at 9:30 a.m. and the program begins at 10 a.m.

Scheduled to speak at the celebration are Scott Sechler, owner of Bell and Evans, the poultry company, and owner of a Berks County preserved farm.

Guests are also welcome to tour the Wolfskill dairy facilities. A light lunch will be provided.

For more information about the event, call (610) 378-1844.

McDonald's Official Responds To Beef Criticism

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Responding to the concern of the Livestock Marketing Association (LMA) over its decision to use imported beef, McDonald's Corp. recently said it was committed "to the U.S. agriculture industry," noting it is the largest purchaser of U.S. beef.

The burger giant, in a letter to LMA President Patrick Goggins, also said its imported beef "must meet the same requirements as the products produced domestically, including our requirements for feed certification and animal welfare."

Goggins last month wrote Michael Roberts, president of McDonald's USA. He expressed the marketing sector's concern over McDonald's decision to use imported beef at about 400 of its restaurants in the Southeast.

Goggins also pointed out that LMA and beef industry groups several months ago agreed to "implement a somewhat onerous producer certification program demanded by McDonald's . . . to assure that the domestic beef supply was meeting the highest standards of food safety."

Given the imported beef decision, Goggins said many markets and producers "now feel abandoned by McDonald's . . . decision. . . ."

McDonald's repeated its earlier claims of a "shortage of lean beef in the U.S.." The letter, signed by the senior vice president for supply chain management, also said the "vast majority" of the beef in its hamburgers comes from U.S. beef. It also noted that "all national hamburger chains have used or are now using a significant portion of imported beef."

To her, this is one of the big pluses of having a layer operation. Few other jobs would allow this flexibility, Sharon said.

The hours required packing eggs seem to be just the right amount of time for the children to look forward to going to the chicken house each day. They spend two hours each morning and 2½ hours each afternoon in the playroom. By that time, the children are ready for a change of pace and eager to return to the family's log home, about one mile from the chickenhouse site.

The Barthos' story is a bit unusual in that neither of them had any previous experience with chickens. Bill grew up on the family's 378-acre farm with a beef and hay operation. For many years after high school graduation, he worked for a local farmer and mowed fields and other seasonal work for surrounding farmers.

When he helped clean out a manure pit of a chicken house, Bartho was intriqued. He asked the owners many questions about the operation, and thought poultry farming sounded enticing.

Nonetheless, Bartho did not pursue a poultry farm at that time. Instead he went to work for a farm equipment dealer.

Sharon worked on a hog farm during her high school years. She was active in FFA and showed hogs. Although she had an interest in farming, she worked as a medical assistant for 10 years after high school.

But her desire to stay home with the kids grew. When the couple saw an ad about land needed to erect a layer house, they decided to check it out.

"We did not rush into this. We did a lot of research," Bartho said.

For a year, the couple visited many poultry operations under contract with several different companies and studied endless information. In the end, they decided to go with Heritage Poultry Management Services (PMS). Under contract with them, the Barthos provide the house and PMS brokers the chickens, provides the feed, and oversees the operation.

After erecting the building and setting up the fully-computerized equipment, the couple faced Feb. 22, 2001 with trepidation. "Would it work?"

Bartho said, "It is one thing to install equipment. It's another to see if everything runs smoothly."

There were adjustments to make, but they were quickly solved by PMS, the couple said.

Learning to understand how to read and operate all the computerized equipment was a bit mindboggling at first, especially since Bartho had little experience with computers. However, his wife was well-versed in computers through her previous job with medical records. With her help and by studying the manual, Bartho soon became confortable with the system and did not need to take a computer course that had been recommended.

"Those first weeks, I was drained," Bartho said of the long hours and stress of needing to learn to know and understand the new operation. "I couldn't believe how much there was to learn."

Despite the overwhelming task in those begining weeks, the Barthos said that never once did they regret their decision to build.

"Some of our friends thought we were crazy," Sharon said. "They asked, 'why do you want to do something that ties you down so much?'"

Today, the work is fairly routine. Bartho begins his day by walking the house between 5-5:30 a.m. Sharon sometimes walks through, but is more prone to begin at 5:45 a.m. By 8 a.m., the couple are ready to pack eggs. They have a hired hand to help.

Bartho takes care of equipment and the computer work required in the house such as daily entering egg production, water and feed consumption, weight and other statistics. His wife takes care of accounting and payroll.

"It's no problem, no big headache now," Bartho said.

But he is a stickler when it comes to details. "I'm always here during egg packing. I'm always inspecting. That's the only way to determine what's going on in the building and with the flock."

If dirtied or cracked eggs are coming on the conveyor belts, Bartho hurries to determine where the problem lies.

"It can be so small and hard to find if one thing is a little out of alignment. I watch eggs from the top and climb down a ladder to watch from the bottom," Bartho said of his efforts to locate misalignments.

From this spot, Sharon can help with egg packing and keep an eye on the children. A fully-enclosed playroom with a window is to her right.

"I want every transaction to be as smooth and as gentle as possible," he said.

Bartho estimates he puts in 9-10 hours a day, more or less. "I always come back in the evening and check on everything. If I go away, I call in several times to get computer readings to make sure everything is O.K."

The Barthos knew their flock did well last year, but they did not realize exactly how well until recently when they received the PMS' top award for meeting or exceeding flock performance, egg quality, and standards for cycle production.

Bartho's dad died two years ago. His mom owns the land, which is farmed by a neighboring farmer, and the three tenant houses on it. To enable his mom to keep the land, the Barthos pay the taxes as rent for the land required for the chicken houses.

The 150,000-layer house was erected in such a way that a second chicken house can easily be added.

The farm name KNS stands for the initials of the couple's three children—Kurtis, Nicholas, and Sarah.

Bartho said that higher standards for egg production have been put into place by the American Egg Board recently. Next year will have even tougher standards.

At 66 weeks of age, the flock was put through a molt. The Barthos are packing 100,000 eggs daily and expect that to increase to 125,000 within the next two weeks.

This will be the last time the flock will be allowed to molt, according to the Barthos. New standards set by McDonalds will not allow this practice due to animal rightists complaints.

The flock is scheduled to leave Dec. 16, and a new one will arrive Jan. 6. The extra week is to enable the Barthos to take a family vacation.

"We'd like to put in a swimming pool, since our off-the-farm time is limited," Bartho said.

Bartho figures he has an advantage over those who have

period from Dec. 1, 2001 through the end of the month proceeding the sign-up date. The idea is to make one big payment to producers retroactive to Dec. 1, 2001 and to pay them monthly thereafter through Sept. 30, 2005. Right now, the transition payment for the months December 2001 through May 2002 will average $0.89 per CWT.

Producers will be eligible to sign up for the countercyclical program as early as July 13. So, if a producer signs up in July, their transition period will be December 2001-June 2002. During this period, the law states payments will be made on "eligible production." Some are saying it is not apparent that any production cap will be required for producers during this period. It is more likely, however, that USDA will define "eligible production" to be some prorated amount of milk based on 2.4 million pounds per year, or cap eligible milk at 2.4 million pounds. Without a cap, USDA could easily shell out $1.3 billion dollars during the 10-month period ending September 2002. That could result in a potential increase in the milk supply

The fact is, nobody knows how USDA will interpret the rules on the production cap. There is a meeting that will take place within the next few weeks between members of the conference committee and USDA officials to discuss this. But the ball is clearly in USDA's court. They have to decide the rules and regulations.

In the discussions I've had, most people are expecting USDA to be fiscally conservative and enforce the 2.4 million pound cap on a farm operation. In other words, they will likely not allow a husband and wife to split the farm and each qualify for a total of 2.4 million pounds. That said, the USDA lawyers know that if they implement the rules too conservatively and get sued, the courts will go back to what the intent of Congress was.

When it comes to the dairy provisions in the Farm Bill, it boils down to what U.S. Sen. Patrick Leahy of Vermont thinks. He has made it clear that he intended the bill to allow multiple partners (husband and wife) to qualify for the 2.4 million pound cap.

USDA likely won't decide anything until the end of this summer. At that time they will issue a fairly large retroactive check to producers going back to the period December 1, 2001. Thus, as a word of caution — don't plan on spending any of this money until later this summer.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day
Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)
Cows will clean better after freshening. Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitis problems. Great for reproduction rate and cows will cycle better after freshening. Will help rumen function over freshing. Less feet problems and less stress.
This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

Grange Fills Marketing, Legislative Positions

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Grange, the oldest grassroots agricultural and rural advocacy organization with more than 300,000 members nationwide, recently announced it has filled two strategic positions in its departments of marketing and sales, and legislative affairs.

Chief operating officer, Richard B. Weiss, has named Dori-Ann Gedris marketing and sales director, with direct responsibility for member benefit and marketing programs, product development and merchandise sales. Prior to joining the Grange, she was director of client services at E-site Marketing, an Internet marketing firm based in Bethesda, Md. A native of Farmingdale, N.J., Gedris earned an undergraduate degree in international relations and a MBA from American University in Washington, D.C. Gedris can be reached at (202) 628-3507, ext. 108, or dgedris@nationalgrange.org.

Also appointed was Joanne Manelli as legislative program assistant to assist the Grange in national and state grassroots policy development in its legislative affairs department as the Grange continues to provide public policy initiatives that help maintain the quality of life in rural America. Manelli is a native of Washington, D.C., and earned her undergraduate degree in international relations from Catholic University in Washington. She can be reached at (202) 628-3507, ext. 105 or jmanelli@nationalgrange.org.

"Both of these professionals not only have excellent credentials," said Weiss, "but reflect the Grange's desire to grow and continue to represent traditional diverse American families in a very different American than when we were founded in 1867."

GIS Technology In Use In Agricultural, Environmental Arenas

fessor in avian medicine and pathology, university of Pennsylvania, New Bolton Center, addressed the necessity for accurate GIS information in Pennsylvania agriculture.

After procuring a grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture to begin GIS work in the commonwealth, Davison and other colleagues and partners began to map the poultry operations in Pennsylvania.

"If we have a disease problem, we can help with disease transmission and control. If we have a serious disease come into Pennsylvania we will know where our animals are.

"We need something to help us out in trying to control diseases. We can't keep driving around" the countryside trying to find the poultry operations, she said.

There are 23 million birds in Pennsylvania, most of them layers.

"Our main concern is to stop the spread of disease and make sure we have a rapid response. If we can communicate with people about the problem, we can stop the spread and decrease losses."

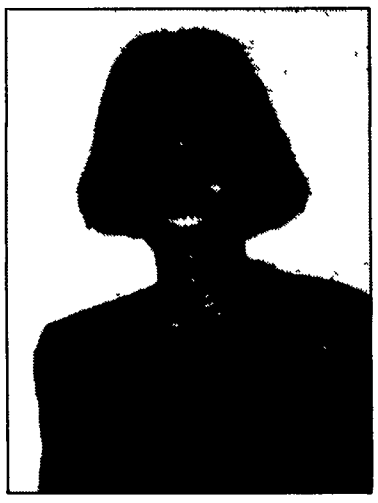
For example, with the help of GIS mapping, avian influenza (AI) outbreaks can be quickly addressed. AI, a viral respiratory disease, infected seven flocks in Pennsylvania in December 2001.

"We made maps within a day," she said. The maps detailed where the other poultry operations were located and helped authorities establish a buffer zone of several miles.

The maps helped authorities quickly find other poultry operations and test and market the birds right away.

Another benefit was that they were able to show Japanese authorities — who had placed an embargo on Pennsylvania poultry — how the outbreak was being controlled.

"They were impressed that we had a GIS program and we could show them it was such a small portion" of the overall poultry industry in the commonwealth, she said.



Sherrill Davison, associate professor in avian medicine and pathology, University of Pennsylvania, New Bolton Center, addressed the necessity for GIS in agriculture.

Because of the quick response made possible by GIS technology, the outbreak was limited to an economic cost of $400,000.

Davison compared this to Pennsylvania's devastating outbreak in 1983. "The only thing that we had changed is that we were on a new system and were able to get onto it very quickly," she said.

"It's essential to map animal agriculture. We're ahead of the game, but we have got to keep plugging to get as many operation into it as possible. We need to get the state mapped and integrate it with other states so we have better control if something happens."

One challenge that Davison is facing is finding the small poultry farms, along with exhibition birds and backyard flocks.

Other groups at the New Bolton Center in other aspects of the industry are hoping to map other animal facilities such as dairy, beef, and swine operations, she said.

On the environmental issues topic, Brian McCrodden, Hydrolics, and Michael Miller, Advanced Technology Solutions, presented information on a project sponsored by the North Carolina chapter of the Nature Conservancy. The organization is working to protect significant natural areas along a 137-mile corridor of the Roanoke River. To accomplish this, flood modeling software, along with Arc View GIS, were combined to make a Depth of Flood and Flood Event Analysis program.

The result of these software programs was vegetative-flood grid maps. With the maps, which illustrate the impact of flooding on the selected study area, authorities can evaluate the flooding area and what land cover — which includes homes and roads — the waters could possibly flood.

By multiplying the river's reach times the land cover times the depth of flood, programmers could produce a flood depth grid. Armed with specific information generated from GIS data, authorities can also make decisions to alter dam water flow.

Coal was another environmental issue, and Andrew Ross, Advanced Technology Solutions, discussed a coal availability study. In the study, GIS techniques help to calculate the volume of coal reserves.

According to Ross, the U.S. has almost 475 billion tons of coal in reserve.

"To put that in perspective, that would be enough coal to cover U.S. energy needs for almost 200 years," he said. That estimate, however, does not take into account technical and environmental restrictions placed on coal mining.

A new study developed by the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) and state geological surveys will take into account those constraints to more accurately determine coal reserves. The Coal Availability Analysis System is a GIS-based method to model coal seams on a regional scale, said Ross.

A test case in Indiana County used GIS information to determine the depth, thickness, and extent of coal already mined. The program also includes restrictions such as airports, homes, wetlands, and historical sites to calculate the tonnage that can be mined.

Edgar White, Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), described the soil data viewer (SDV) program to display soil survey data in Arc View. The SDV allows users to look at soil properties, giving the user a tool for quick soil analysis for resource assessment and management.

According to White, the program could be used by local governments, companies making environmental assessments, or for producers perhaps purchasing new ground, since the program will reveal whether the soil will be productive or even susceptible to erosion.

Presenters Ed White, NRCS, and Michael Miller, Advanced Technology Solutions, discussed soil data and flooding analysis applications of Geographic Information Systems.

The luncheon speaker, Barbara Ryan, associate director of geography at USGS, discussed "Building a Secure Future with the National Map."

There is an unprecedented demand for map information after a disaster, said Ryan, as in the case of September 11. Consequently, for homeland security and smart growth planning reasons, integrated information is necessary.

"Geospatial information affects many sections of the economy," said Ryan. "We need geospatial information for conducing the business of this economy.

"It is key to making effective resource management decisions."

Ryan envisions a comprehensive, coast-to-coast data map with many layers that include transportation, elevation, water bodies, and political boundaries.

A national map is under way, as several states have begun pilot programs to update and digitize topographical map information.

The map needs to be seamless, have its digital data continually maintained, and have attention paid to land cover, she said.

Although a topographical map of the country does exist, the average age of these maps is 23 years old.

"If we learned anything after September 11, it was that the data must exist before, during, and after an event, be readily available, and be integrateable," she said.

GIS information was used at Ground Zero in New York City to sample for asbestos concentrations and determine the location of underground fires. By also gathering information about the rubble's height, authorities could estimate cleanup time.

Small-Scale Poultry Processing, Composting Tour Set

MIFFLINBURG (Union Co.) — The Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) is sponsoring a tour of the Eli Reiff farm and poultry processing operation here June 12 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Reiff processes poultry for small-scale producers throughout the region. Tour participants will also see his operation for composting poultry offal.

John Sworen, USDA meat inspector, will be on hand to speak and field questions.

The cost of the meeting is $10, including lunch. The fee can be paid on the day of the tour.

Register by calling PASA at (814) 349-9856, ext. 6. Call Dave Hartman, Columbia County extension agent, at (570) 784-6660 with any questions.

been in the business for many years. He said, "The older guys are having a tougher time changing. But I don't need to unlearn any practices. I was taught the new standards right from the beginning. I have the latest technology which enables me to meet higher standards."

Five sensors throughout the building automatically turn fans off and on as needed in order to maintain temperatures within 1½-degrees.

This was put to a test recently when erratic weather caused outside temperatures to plumet 26 degrees within three minutes during a hail storm.

The plunge happened so fast it barely enabled the thermonstats to make the adjustments. Alarms sounded, but in less than 5 minutes the equipment had adjusted the temperatures.

The lightening also knocked out the well. One of the alarms pinpointed the problem. Immediately, an alternate well was turned on. Two wells or a holding tank are required for just such emergencies. Within hours, the problem was solved. Lightening protectors had prevented the well pump from being damaged. Instead the lightening knocked out the electrical box.

"There is always more to learn, but it's exciting. Best of all — I'm my own boss," said Bartho.

Berks County Agribusiness Highlighted

Several speakers join this group of economic development representatives to teach the value of the agricultural industry in Berks County.

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Approximately 20 economic development representatives gained new insight into Berks County agriculture and agribusiness thanks to the efforts of several representatives of the agriculture industry.

"Today we want to introduce them (economic development representatives) to the value of agriculture in the Berks County economy," said County Commissioner Judy Schwank. "We want to get them attuned to the idea of promoting agriculture."

The day's speakers included Schwank, Clyde Myers, Penn State extension agent, Berks County; William Lesher, owner of dairy operation Way-Har Farms, Bernville; Rich Hawk, owner, Farr Nursery and Landscape Company, Womelsdorf; Mike Firestine, senior vice president and senior agriculture loan officer, Lebanon Valley Farmers Bank; and Russell Redding, assistant secretary of Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

In the afternoon participants toured the operation of Joe Jurgielewicz & Son, Ltd., producers of several styles of duck for major cities on the East Coast.

Poultry Association's Golf Tournament Named In Honor Of John Schwartz

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Upon the decision of the board of directors, the 8th annual Lancaster County Poultry Association Golf Tournament has been renamed in honor of the late John H. Schwartz, adviser to the Association and director of the York County and (formerly) Lancaster County extension offices.

When announcing the tournament honoring Schwartz, Andy Bradford, association president, noted, "For those who knew John, you would know that he loved the game and was introducing his son John to the game as well. This seemed a fitting tribute."

The Inaugural John H. Schwartz Memorial Golf Tournament will take place June 6 at the Foxchase Golf Course at Stevens, rain or shine. The cost is $60 per person, which incudes green fee, cart, range balls, refreshments, prizes, and a chicken barbecue meal after play. Registration and lunch begin at 11:30 a.m. with the shotgun start scheduled at 1 p.m.

Deadline for registration is May 31. The tournament is limited to the first 144 golfers.

Contact Dennis Herr, 3057 Harvest Road, Elizabethtown PA 17022, (717) 367-6670.

Hole sponsorships ($100) are being taken again for this year's tournament. By sponsoring the tournament, the company will be highlighted during the tournament and will help defray the cost of hosting the event.

For more information on sponsorship opportunities for the tournament, contact Andy Bradford at (717) 367-1195.

REDUCING HEAT STRESS IN DAIRY CATTLE — PART ONE

Extension Dairy Agent
Lancaster

An earlier article, "Understanding Heat Stress in Dairy Cattle," explained how heat stress affects cattle. This article focuses on the use of shade and exhaust fans to help protect cows from heat stress.

Part two of this article, in an upcoming issue, focuses on circulation fans, evaporative cooling, and other practices that can help reduce the effect of heat stress on cattle.

Provide lots of shade, preferably in a dry, breezy location that is close to feed and water. The more shade you have, the less risk there is of cows bunching up. To help prevent the area from becoming sloppy and unhealthy, it should be "paved" and cleaned frequently or located on a well-drained site. To prevent mud, don't let cows linger long in any one spot.

In addition to rotating pastures, also try to rotate shade areas so they have a chance to dry out. In the absence of natural shade, use shade nettings over lots and feeding areas.

Good ventilation is important, not only for lactating cows in the stable and feeding area, but also for cows in the holding area, for transition cows, and for cattle you are trying to get bred. Good ventilation provides animals with a comforting breeze, but more importantly it helps to remove excess moisture and heat and replaces unhealthy air with fresh air.

Good ventilation also keeps barns drier, which reduces the risk of mastitis. Open barns up and turn them into clean comfortable shade areas that can be kept clean and comfortable, and areas that can provide cows easy access to feed and water. Pole barns can be built with curtain walls and 14-foot high eaves plus 2 inches of ridge opening per 10 feet of building width. Tiestall barns can also be built with curtain walls, and possibly with ridge openings or large chimneys.

Exhaust fans and tunnel ventilation: Fans can be used to help exhaust stale air, at a minimum of 1,000 cubic feet per minute (cfm) per 1,000 pounds of body weight — more is better. Most tunnel ventilation systems greatly exceed this exchange rate. Remember too, the use of fans in the daytime helps prevent animals' body temperature from rising. The use of fans at night help cows cool down. Turning cows out at night also helps them cool down. That and early morning is also the time cows feel more like eating, so be sure they have easy access to feed at this time, too.

A rough guideline for a tunnel ventilation system in a tiestall barn is a minimum of two 52-inch fans per row of stalls, placed at one end of the barn. You will also need 2 feet of inlet area at the opposite end of the barn per 1,000 cfm of fan capacity.

To have good control over the direction of the airflow in the barn, and to help prevent dead air spots, avoid side wall openings. Tunnel ventilation can also be used effectively in pole barns, but you may want to consult the advice of an expert, because installation of the system is more involved because of the height and width of the structure.

Warning: in a tunnel system, the barn is closed up tightly, except for the inlets at the end of the barn. Provisions need to be made for when the system fails and no one is around, because the barn can turn into a deadly oven very fast.

Lancaster Farmland Trust To Join Dream Ride 2002

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust has announced that Pedal to Preserve has joined Dream Ride 2002.

"We decided to move our highly successful 'Pedal to Preserve' fundraiser to the 'Dream Ride' program this year," said Lee Dmitzak, chair of the trust board. "That way, our more than 500 loyal riders from all over the country who participated in Pedal to Preserve over the past five years will enjoy even more opportunities while we increase our ability to focus on our riders."

Dream Ride Projects hosts a bike ride, with tours of various lengths, and a bicycle race through historic Marietta that raises money for numerous nonprofit organizations in Lancaster County. Riders take part in the event and raise cash sponsorships for the participating organization of their choice.

This year's event is Saturday, June 15. The 30-mile "Counting Sheep Tour," the official ride of Lancaster Farmland Trust, starts at 8 a.m. Riders will pass by beautiful preserved farmland along the country roads of East Donegal Township, which contains the highest density of preserved farmland in the county. Riders may choose from three other tours, while still designating the Trust as the organization benefiting from their sponsorship pledge.

Riders who raise at least $100 in pledges will have their registration fee waived by the Trust, will receive a special gift after the ride, and will be invited to a special VIP reception on Wednesday, June 19, from 4 p.m.-7 p.m. at the Haldeman Mansion in Bainbridge. If riders choose the 177-mile Nightmare Tour (June 8, at 5:30 a.m.), they may still collect pledges for the Trust, and the benefits will apply if they commit to raise pledges of $177 or more.

Dream Ride 2002 features a food smorgasbord; free 10-minute post ride massages, special drawings for door prizes, awards for best bicycle/helmet birthday decorations, a DJ, and live musical entertainment.

All rides begin and end at the Riverview Elementary School, located on Rt. 441 (River Road) three miles west of Rt. 30 at the Marietta/Columbia exit. The school is visible to your left approximately one mile west of the intersection of Rts. 441 and 23 in Marietta. Saturday morning registration will begin at 6 a.m. Tour start times are staggered every 30 minutes starting with the Sweetdream Tour at 7 a.m. and finishing with the Catnap Tour at 8:30 a.m.

Registration and pledge forms may be obtained by calling the Trust, (717) 293-0707, or can be printed directly from the Dream Ride Website, www.dreamride-projects.org.

Pasture Walks Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A series of pasture walks have been organized by local graziers in cooperation with Lancaster County Cooperative Extension for people who are interested in grazing dairy cattle.

Hours for all the walks are 10 a.m.-2 p.m., DST. For biosecurity reasons, all who attend are encouraged to wear clean clothes, wash their footwear before visiting the host farm and before returning home, and stay out of feeding and young stock areas.

Lunch plans vary with each location, as described here. In an effort to help host farms make necessary arrangements, reservations will be appreciated and can be made by calling the Lancaster Cooperative Extension office at (717) 394-6851.

Dates, places, and other details are:

- June 6. Ivan Esh Farm, Lancaster, 2210 Creek Hill Road, south of Rt. 23 and west of Hartman Station Road. Ivan is a seasonal, all-grass grazier with 120 acres and 75 cows. A pasture walk will be conducted in the morning. Afternoon discussions will center on his double-6 swing parlor, mowers, and irrigation equipment. Refreshments will be available, but bring your own lunch.
- June 27. Arden Landis Farm, north of Kirkwood at 667 Puseyville Road, west of Rt. 472. Arden is a certified organic producer with 120 acres. He milks 90 cows in a double-8 swing parlor. In the morning, there will be a pasture walk and observation of grass variety plots and liquid waste irrigation. The afternoon speaker will be Joel McNair, editor of Graze and writer for Milk Weed. Refreshments will be available, but bring your own lunch.
- Aug. 1. Jeff Stoltzfus Farm, south of Kirkwood at 32 Lakeview Road, east of Rt. 472. Jeff is a certified organic producer, an all-grass grazier with 150 acres. He milks 70 cows in a homemade parlor and has a simple manure and mortality composting system. Drinks will be available, but bring your own lunch.
- Sept. 19. John Stoltzfus Farm, Parkesburg, north of Rt. 30 and west of Rt. 10 at 7643 N. Moscow Road. John is a certified organic producer with 50 acres of grass and 11 years of grazing experience. He milks 50 cows and feeds a mixture of grass and TMR. Lunch will be provided.
- Oct. 10. Jake Zook Farm, southwest of Christiana at 1178 White Oak Road, between Nobel Road and Bartville Road. Jake has nine years of grazing experience and 100 acres of grass. He milks 50 cows and feeds no grain. A light lunch and drinks will be provided.

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH!

Lancaster Farming plans its annual festive June Dairy Month issue June 1. The issue will be packed with dairy farm features from around the region. Also scheduled will be dairy recipes and columns of interest to the dairy producer.

Ag Secretary Hayes Calls For Bioterrorism Readiness

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Bioterrorism is a frightening new word for many Americans. But experts at a recent Penn State seminar said farmers can use existing techniques to lessen risks.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr. said the state's farmers and food processors are generally well prepared for a terrorist attack, but both the state and the nation need more laboratories to combat bioterrorism that targets agriculture.

Speaking at "Risk Management and the Threat of Bioterrorism in the Food System," a seminar sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and Smeal College of Business Administration, Hayes was joined by national experts in bioterrorism, agroterrorism and biosecurity to discuss the threats to the nation's food supply.

Hayes pointed out that recent accidental outbreaks of mad cow disease and foot-and-mouth disease in other countries have increased U.S. farmers' awareness and provided a jump start on dealing with accidental or intentional disease threats here.

"Every day, agriculture is faced with diseases that can attack our plant and animal kingdom," Hayes said. "So the agricultural sector is probably in a good position as part of our domestic economy; we have been out front and continue to do quite well. While agriculture has probably done more than any other sector, there are still risks, and we have to work every day to minimize them."

Hayes said he has requested $10 million in the department's budget to build three diagnostic laboratories capable of quickly and effectively identifying plant and animal diseases that could ravage the state's agricultural economy. He said the state is woefully deficient in biosecurity laboratories capable of handling diseases such as anthrax.

The state, according to Hayes, also should press the development of vaccines for foreign animal diseases, build a more robust biosecurity infrastructure for food processors and increase consumer awareness of potential food-safety threats.

"You could take down our nation's agricultural industries very quickly without effective biosecurity defenses and a quick emergency response," Hayes said. "That would mean no milk, ham, poultry meats or eggs — a nation without those commodities is obviously at risk."

Seminar keynote speaker Ernest Del Bueno Jr., vice president of the crisis management firm Rowan and Blewitt Inc., offered biosecurity tips for food-processing companies drawn from more than 20 years of experience as a crisis manager, public affairs coordinator and antiterrorist planner. He said most food processors already have food recall plans, but may need to prepare an umbrella crisis management plan.

"Food security is really nothing more than another form of food safety, and it uses many of the same principles and procedures," Del Bueno said. "Instead of guarding your process against contamination from the inside, food security prevents someone from contaminating the product from the outside."

Nan Hanshaw Roberts, emergency programs coordinator for the state agriculture department's Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services, described the state's preparations against agroterrorism. They include the Emergency Management Stakeholders Council, which brings together industry and governmental groups and state legislators to protect Pennsylvania livestock by focusing on prevention, preparation, response and recovery.

Roberts noted several agroterrorism resources, including an animal emergency e-mail notification system that is available for members of industry, cooperative extension agents, veterinarians, food producers, laboratories and other states.

Farming's transition from small, isolated traditional farms with minimal animal or human movement to today's larger, concentrated animal groups and rapid animal movement is at the root of agriculture's need for biosecurity, said Larry Hutchinson, Penn State professor of veterinary science.

"Rapid movement of people and animals means that the whole contamination process can happen quickly," he said. "Contaminated California vegetables can be in Pennsylvania within five to seven days."

Hutchinson said all farms should have a biosecurity plan that should include methods of restricting entry to production areas, keeping records of medications and health histories, networking with other producers, specific feed handling techniques, access to manure and manure handling, and testing and screening. The plan also will increase food quality assurance and consumer satisfaction, he said.

ASA Seeks Nominees For Conservation Awards

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) is seeking nominations for the 2003 Conservation Legacy Awards. The Conservation Legacy Program is a national program designed to recognize the outstanding environmental and conservation achievements of U.S. soybean farmers.

Along with ASA, the program is co-sponsored by Monsanto and Soybean Digest, an Intertec/Primedia publication.

Producers interested in receiving the award will be asked to complete an application form. The form is available by calling (800) 688-7692 or on ASA's Website, www.SoyGrowers.com. A national selection committee composed of soybean farmers, environmentalists, soybean industry representatives, and government officials will judge applications. Award winners will be selected based upon a combination of environmental criteria.

Any ASA member who actively farms, including an individual farmer or farm family, is eligible to receive the Conservation Legacy Award. One ASA member actively engaged in soybean production will be selected from each of the following four regions: Western, Southern, Midwestern and Northeastern. A national winner will be selected from the regional winners, based on the nomination form and on-farm visits to each regional winner's farm.

All four regional winners and a spouse/guest will receive a trip to Commodity Classic, the annual joint convention of the American Soybean Association and National Corn Growers Association, Feb. 27-March 1, 2003, in Charlotte, N.C. The national winner will also receive a plaque and yard sign and will be featured in a special Soybean Digest article.

Nominations are due to ASA by Aug. 1.

Woodland Workshops Planned In Ohio

WOOSTER, Ohio — Trees, wood and timber are the focus of "Lumber from Your Woodlot," a workshop by the Ohio Woodland Stewards Program on Saturday, July 13, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in Wooster.

Registration, which includes class materials, measuring sticks, lunch and refreshments, is $25.

Among the topics: safe cutting, moving logs, sawing strategies, caring for and treating lumber, and Ohio tree species and which ones yield useful products.

Also covered will be wood identification, how to grow quality timber, how to measure trees, and how to grade and scale logs.

There will be indoor and outdoor presentations. Participants should dress for the weather. Enrollment is limited to 50 people. Pre-registration with payment is required. The deadline is July 3.

For more information or to register, contact the Ohio State University School of Natural Resources, 2021 Coffey Road, Columbus, Ohio 43210, (614) 688-3421, slyby.5@osu.edu.

"Lumber from Your Woodlot" will be presented again on Sept. 14 in Hardin County and on Dec. 7 in Butler County.

The Ohio Woodland Stewards Program is sponsored by Ohio State University Extension in cooperation with the Ohio Department of Natural Resources Division of Forestry. Providing woodland owners with forestry skills is the goal.

Also ahead from the program is a "Woodland Owners Workshop" Sept. 11-13 in Auglaize County and Oct. 2-4 in Geauga County and "Crop Trees" Nov. 8 in Logan County.

Department Of Agriculture Prepares For 2002 Plum Pox Survey

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Reaffirming the Schweiker Administration's commitment to fighting plum pox virus, Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes announced that surveys for the virus are now under way in plum pox quarantine zones in south-central Pennsylvania, and that the commonwealth will launch a statewide survey by June 1.

"The Department of Agriculture is committed to helping our stone fruit growers eradicate this devastating disease," Hayes said. "That is why we are beginning to survey all homes, business and commercial orchards within plum pox quarantine zones, and then begin a statewide survey by June 1.

"It's important to note that infected fruit can be eaten fresh or as processed fruit because the virus poses absolutely no threat to consumers. However, plum pox virus is an extremely serious threat to the peach, nectarine, apricot, and plum industries of Pennsylvania. The virus dramatically reduces a tree's ability to produce fruit."

Discovered in Adams County in 1999, plum pox virus causes disease in stone fruits and related ornamental trees in the genus Prunus. These include many ornamental plants such as the purple-leaf plum, sand cherry, flowering almond, and flowering peach. The virus is spread by aphids from infected trees to healthy trees.

Hayes said that plum pox quarantine zones cover the following areas: in Adams County, the townships of Huntington and Latimore, portions of Menallen and Tyrone townships, and the Borough of York Springs; in Cumberland County, the townships of Dickinson, South Middleton, and Southampton as well as Mount Holly Springs Borough; in Franklin County, Mont Alto Borough and Quincy Township; and in York County, Washington and Franklin townships.

Hayes reiterated that fruit growers and property owners in the quarantine zones are not permitted to plant any tree susceptible to plum pox virus until state officials lift the quarantine. He added that in an effort to help speed the eradication process and ensure public confidence, the department is intensifying its surveying and testing for plum pox virus.

Agriculture officials are currently in the field working with landowners to verify problem fields, identify susceptible trees, and to begin testing and sampling of trees. In the quarantine zones, the Department of Agriculture is surveying and testing 100 percent of the trees. For the statewide survey, agriculture officials plan to survey 25 percent of the trees in an orchard.

In addition to the survey work for plum pox virus, the USDA, in cooperation with the state Department of Agriculture, will be planting 400 plum pox virus-susceptible trees in the quarantine zones to begin a sentinel program. Sentinel trees are placed in areas where trees have been removed because of plum pox virus. The sentinel trees serve as an early warning system for remaining plum pox virus, and will be removed from the areas at the completion of this program.

The intensified testing program is possible through the completion of the new Greenhouse and Headhouse project at the Department of Agriculture. The greenhouse expansion and renovation project provides the needed laboratory space to conduct testing in a more effective manner and in a shorter time period.

For more information on plum pox virus, quarantine zones, survey reports and plant alternatives, contact the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Plant Industry at (717) 787-4843, or visit the plum pox virus Website located on the Department of Agriculture's home page through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, Keyword: "agriculture," or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

USDA Honors Food Safety Pioneer

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently presented the first Howard E. Bauman Award for food safety at a science symposium hosted by USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service. The award was given posthumously to Dr. Bauman and was accepted by his daughters, Victoria Zobel and Kay Rose.

The Howard E. Bauman Award was created to recognize individuals showing longstanding commitment, leadership, and service to improving food safety.

Howard E. Bauman, who passed away last year, was the innovator behind the Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Point system. Bauman played a most significant role in developing HACCP in the 1960s to provide uncontaminated food to astronauts.

Employed by Pillsbury Company at the time, Bauman worked collaboratively with government scientists to develop the HACCP approach to ensuring the safety of food. HACCP has emerged as a solid scientific tool to prevent contamination in food and is required by USDA in all federal and state inspected meat and poultry plants.

Veneman presented the award during the opening of the "Pathogen Reduction: A Scientific Dialogue," scientific symposium conducted here. The symposium is one of nine public meetings this year to stimulate thinking and generate new ideas toward the goal of enhancing the safety of meat, poultry and egg products.

May 1 Cattle On Feed 2 Percent Lower Than Year Ago

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in the U.S. for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 10.96 million head on May 1, 2002, according to the National Agricultural Service (NASS). The inventory was 2 percent below May 1, 2001 but slightly above May 1, 2000.

Placements in feedlots during April totaled 1.45 million, 6 percent below 2001 and 15 percent below 2000. Net placements were 1.37 million.

During April, placements of cattle and calves weighing less than 600 pounds were 210,000, 600-699 pounds were 255,000, 700-799 pounds were 512,000, and 800 pounds and greater were 476,000.

Marketings of fed cattle during April totaled 1.99 million, 10 percent above 2001 and 6 percent above 2000.

Other disappearance totaled 83,000 during April, 7 percent below 2001 and 8 percent below 2000.

7 States 2 Percent Lower

Cattle on feed May 1, 2002, in the historic seven states for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 9.39 million, down 2 percent from the previous year and down slightly from May 1, 2000.

Placements in feedlots during April totaled 1.24 million, 7 percent below 2001 and 16 percent below 2000.

Marketings during April totaled 1.71 million, 11 percent above 2001 and 7 percent above 2000.

Other disappearance during April was 71,000 head, 4 percent below 2001 but unchanged from 2000.

CATTLE ON FEED: Number on Feed, Placements, Marketings and Other Disappearance – 1,000+ Capacity Feedlots, United States, May 1, 2001-2002

PENNSYLVANIA'S PRIVATELY-OWNED FORESTLANDS
Seth P. Cassell
Service Forester
DCNR Bureau of Forestry

When people talk about Pennsylvania's forests, they often refer to state forestland — the Susquehannock, Elk, Tioga, Bald Eagle, Gallitzin, and others. The vast state forests and other public lands are indeed the backbone of Pennsylvania's forest industry.

However, many are surprised to learn that a vast majority (75 percent) of the state's forestland is privately owned. Private forests surround hunting cabins, cover hillsides, and dot farm fields throughout the state. With an average size of 23 acres, these forests comprise most of Penn's Woods.

In many respects, we are fortunate to have the forest we enjoy so much today. Throughout most of our state's history — from the time the first settlers prodded into the wilderness to when the last logging railroad chugged out of the mountains — people have used the forest without much consideration for the future. At the dawn of the 21st century, as our forests push forward to maturity and timber harvesting increases, we as a community are again faced with important management decisions that will ultimately shape the future of Penn's Woods.

With maturing forests and high hardwood timber prices, many landowners are considering the decisions involved with harvesting timber. Most do not own their land as a timber investment, but instead for aesthetic and recreational purposes. Still, most do not want to ignore the economic and management opportunities that timber harvesting offers.

Unfortunately, many do not adequately consider the long-term management of the resources on their land before harvesting. Service foresters with the Pennsylvania Department of Conservation and Natural Resources (DCNR), Bureau of Forestry, assist landowners in managing their woodlands. All too often, they receive telephone calls from landowners who say, "I just had a timber harvest on my property. Could you come out and see if I did the right thing?" However, preparing for the right outcome starts well before the first tree is cut.

It all begins with a plan. Few people would consider going on vacation, investing, retiring, or building a house without a plan. The benefits of having a plan in these instances — helping achieve goals, setting a course of action, setting priorities, and so forth — also apply to managing your forest.

Plans written by natural resource professionals will help you learn more about your property and schedule management activities, whether they include timber harvests or not. Management plans also help you identify and consider special ecological features on your property, such as vernal ponds, stream buffers, and rare species and communities. They can incorporate aesthetic and recreational goals, as well.

The Forest Stewardship Program assists landowners in establishing resource plans for their woodlands. The program is designed to account for all forest values — wildlife, timber, water, aesthetics, and recreation, to name a few. The program links landowners with a wealth of technical assistance to manage their woodlands according to their objectives.

Low Temperatures Could Damage Young Corn, Soybean Plants

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Unseasonably low temperatures in central Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio may have damaged newly emerged corn and soybean plants.

Growers will want to closely assess damaged plants before making future decisions, said Matt Antos, an agronomist with Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., in State College.

"The bottom line on diagnosing low temperature injury to corn and soybean plants is to wait three to five days after the weather event before assessing the extent of the damage," said Antos.

Antos explained locally-reported temperatures on a clear night can be 2 to 5 degrees colder at the soil surface. Corn can be killed when temperatures drop to 28 degrees, and soybeans can withstand slightly colder weather.

"The recovery will depend on whether the growing point region was damaged," said Antos.The growing point region of corn younger than six leaves, roughly knee-high, is below the soil surface and protected from aboveground frost damage. Inspecting the growing region too soon after a freeze may not show damage. Antos recommends waiting three to five days after the cold nights to fully assess the situation.

"Injury to the crop can look very serious the day after the event, but recovery may be possible if the growing points are not damaged," said Antos.

Initially, corn above ground may look severely damaged with droopy, greenish-black leaves. The damaged leaves will bleach to a straw color as the tissue dries. Antos said at this point, the whorl may "knot." Knotted plants usually recover as expanding whorl tissues break the knots. If the growing point is below the soil surface and protected from above-ground damage, the corn should recover.

After three to five days, surviving corn plants should show new leaf tissue expanding from the whorls. Yield loss to frost-damaged corn younger than V6 is related to the degree of stand loss rather than the degree of leaf damage.

Antos noted that surviving soybean plants will show new leaves emerging from one or both nodes at the cotyledons. And, if a significant portion of the corn or soybean population is obviously dead after three to five days, replanting may be justified.

Spraying Weeds With Vinegar Inexpensive And Safe, Says ARS

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Some home gardeners already use vinegar as a herbicide, and some garden stores sell vinegar pesticides. But no one has tested it scientifically until now.

Agricultural Research Service scientists offer the first scientific evidence that it may be a potent weedkiller that is inexpensive and environmentally safe — perfect for organic farmers.

ARS researchers Jay Radhakrishnan, John R. Teasdale and Ben Coffman in Beltsville, Md., tested vinegar on major weeds— common lamb's-quarters, giant foxtail, velvetleaf, smooth pigweed and Canada thistle — in greenhouse and field studies.

They hand-sprayed the weeds with various solutions of vinegar, uniformly coating the leaves. The researchers found that 5- and 10-percent concentrations killed the weeds during their first two weeks of life.

Older plants required higher concentrations of vinegar to kill them. At the higher concentrations, vinegar had an 85- to 100-percent kill rate at all growth stages. A bottle of household vinegar is about a 5-percent concentration.

Canada thistle, one of the most tenacious weeds in the world, proved the most susceptible; the 5-percent concentration had a 100-percent kill rate of the perennial's top growth. The 20-percent concentration can do this in about 2 hours.

Spot spraying of cornfields with 20 percent vinegar killed 80 to 100 percent of weeds without harming the corn, but the scientists stress the need for more research. If the vinegar were sprayed over an entire field, it would cost about $65 per acre. If applied to local weed infestations only, such as may occur in the crop row after cultivation, it may only cost about $20 to $30.

The researchers use only vinegar made from fruits or grains, to conform to organic farming standards.

ARS is the U.S. Department of Agriculture's chief scientific research agency.

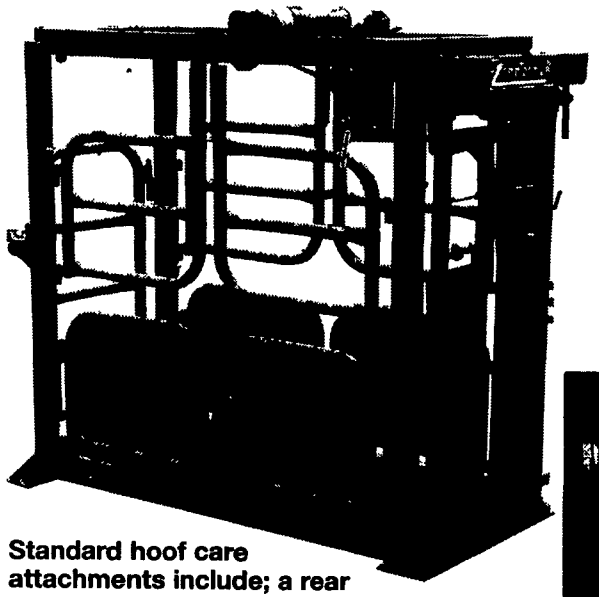
Combination Hoof Care/Vet Chute



This highly versatile equipment can be used to secure a cow safely and efficiently for foot care or veterinary services.

Side panels and gates easily replace hoof care accessories to create a vet chute where almost any common vet procedure can be performed.

Standard hoof care attachments include; a rear splatter board, rear foot winch, two front foot winches and a full width belly band and winch to lift the animals weight off their feet. All winches have heavy duty friction brakes providing constant, positive holding action.

ALL STEEL PARTS ARE POWDER COATED USING THE PBZ FIVE-STEP PROCESS.

Once in the chute with the belly band winched into working position, the cow is safely secured for foot treatment

State Water Plan Update Urged During Visits

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — DEP Secretary David E. Hess called for updating the state's water plan and identifying critical water-planning areas during visits to the Hourglass Foundation's Water Forum held May 16 in Lancaster and the Lehigh Valley Water Suppliers' annual Water Issues Luncheon May 10 in Bath.

"Gov. Schweiker has proclaimed May 5-11 Safe Drinking Water Week in Pennsylvania to bring greater awareness to our valuable water resources," Hess said. "The economic and environmental future of our commonwealth depends on a safe and plentiful supply of water.

"Drinking water doesn't simply come from your faucet. It comes from a well, a stream or a reservoir. Clean and plentiful water depends on each of us and on the public and private water-system operators who work hard to make sure we have a safe supply to drink."

Hess urged the state Legislature to pass the Water Resources Conservation and Protection Act to update the state's water plan and to identify critical water planning areas.

Throughout April and May of last year, DEP conducted 15 water forums across the state to gain input from more than 1,700 citizens about their water-resource needs. That input is the basis of Gov. Schweiker's proposed water-resources legislative initiative, which would provide a historic opportunity to:

- Update the state water plan.
- Identify Critical Water Planning Areas.
- Promote voluntary water conservation.
- Improve stormwater management and establish private water-well standards.

After a week of special events including a water festival called HydroMania, the Lehigh Valley Water Suppliers (LVWS) wrapped up the week with their annual Water Issues Forum. The luncheon has been a tradition of the non-profit group for more than a decade as the 17 member utilities gather to celebrate National Drinking Water Awareness Week.

LVWS President Doug Bowen, manager of Whitehall Township Authority, said the organization's activities during this week have been focused on promoting water awareness among the Lehigh Valley's youth.

"We completed HydroMania, our second annual water festival, where approximately 1,000 students learned about the importance of source water protection," Bowen said.

As part of Safe Drinking Water Week, DEP recognized 1,567 Pennsylvania water-supply systems that have complied with all federal and state drinking water-quality standards and monitoring requirements during 2001.

"We want to recognize the extraordinary record of compliance for water suppliers who have met all of their monitoring and treatment requirements during the year," Hess said. "These suppliers have produced water for public consumption that complies with and often exceeds additional drinking-water standards."

Each system will receive a certificate from DEP to recognize its work in preserving water as a precious natural resource, for conserving drinking and groundwater supplies, and for maintaining water quality.

"Everyone can get involved in protecting water supplies by joining a local watershed-protection group, taking steps to conserve the water they use, and supporting local water-system improvements that will ensure safer drinking-water supplies," Hess said.

At the Hourglass Foundation Water Forum In Lancaster, Hess served as the featured speaker on a panel discussion on the topic, "Is Lancaster County Running Out of Water?" Also on the panel were Jeanne Sanntag, chair of the Lancaster County Water Resources Task Force; Tom Baldrige, president, Lancaster Chamber of Business and Industry; and Daniel Zimmerman, Warwick Township Manager and chair of the Lancaster County Planning Commission. The panel moderator was Donald Roseman Jr., president of the Hourglass Foundation. More than 50 people attended the forum, including Lancaster County Commissioners Paul Thibault and Ronald Ford.

During the forum, Hess urged the state legislature to pass the Water Resources Conservation and Protection Act, which would update the state's water plan and identify critical water-planning areas.

"Last week, I toured nine different watershed-restoration projects with the Lancaster County Conservation District, and it was obvious the people of Lancaster care deeply about improving water quality," Hess said. "We now need to carry that concern one step further and deal with water-quantity issues."

The mission of the Hourglass Foundation is to inform citizens about the issues arising from the growth and development of Lancaster County and provide both public forums and open channels of communication by connecting local people, organizations, communities and government to discuss common issues and to solve growth-related problems.

For more information on drinking water or the water systems recognized, visit DEP through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: "drinking water." To see pictures of the visit, go to DEP's website and click on "scrapbook."

Marketers May Be Exempt From License Registration

PIKETON, Ohio — Ohio farmers who sell their products at farmer's markets, farm product auctions, and similar direct marketing outlets may be exempt from food license registration and inspection if they meet certain requirements.

An amendment in Ohio's Uniform Food Safety Code, Senate Bill 136 passed by the Ohio General Assembly last fall, allows for retail food establishment license and inspection exemptions from direct agricultural marketing facilities based upon the types of foods being sold.

John Ellerman, an Ohio State University Extension agricultural marketing specialist, said the change in the law was designed to make it easier and less expensive for smaller farmers to maintain their business.

"When the Uniform Food Safety Code was originally passed, all direct food marketers had to have a retail food license that was obtained from the local health department. Prices ranged anywhere from $100 to $500," said Ellerman, who works at Ohio State's South Centers in Piketon, Ohio. "This created a public outcry because for the small-scale producer selling a couple hundred dollars of vegetables a year, he simply can't afford that cost."

According to the change in the law, farmers who sell at a farmer's market can claim exemption if they only sell one or more of the following:

- Commercially pre-packaged food that is not potentially hazardous, on the condition that the food is contained in displays on the premises where business is conducted and the total space of the display is less than or equal to 100 cubic feet.
- Fresh unprocessed fruits or vegetables.
- Maple syrup, sorghum or honey.
- Products from a cottage food production operation and if they are properly labeled. Labeling requirements include name and address of the operation; name of the food product; ingredients; net weight or net volume; and a statement in 10-point type that the product is home produced.

Farmers who sell at farm auctions can claim exemption if one or more of the following items are offered for sale:

- Eggs sold to the final consumer if obtained from an exempt farm (500 or fewer hens).
- Poultry sold to the final consumer if obtained from an exempt farm (1,000 or fewer chickens raised, processed and sold per year).
- Non-amendable meats sold to the final consumer, such as rabbit, bison, ostrich or emu.
- Fresh unprocessed fruits or vegetables.
- Maple syrup, sorghum or honey .
- Products from a cottage food production operation and if they are properly labeled. Labeling requirements include name and address of the operation; name of the food product; ingredients; net weight or net volume; and a statement in 10-point type that the product is home produced.
- Cider and other juices manufactured on-site.
- Eggs sold to the final consumer if obtained from an exempt farm (500 or fewer hens).
- Poultry sold to the final consumer if obtained from an exempt farm (1,000 or fewer chickens raised, processed and sold per year).
- Non-amendable meats sold to the final consumer, such as rabbit, bison, ostrich or emu, on the condition that the person offering to sell the meat raises and processes the animals.

Ellerman said that home bakers are also exempt from obtaining a license if they are not producing any potentially hazardous baked goods. "Things like bread are fine, but if someone wants to bake and sell something like a creme pie, a home bakers license is required," he said. "One item that is still controversial is marketing meat and eggs at farmer's markets. You can sell them directly to the final consumer at product auctions and farm markets, but not at farmer's markets without a mobile retail food license. The meat has to be state or USDA-inspected when sold with a mobile retail food license."

Ellerman said that farm markets, farmers' markets, and farm product auctions seeking exemption must register with the Ohio Department of Agriculture. Forms or further information is available at http://www.ohiofruit.org or http://www.ohiovegetables.org by following links on "Growers News" and "Legislative and Regulatory Issues." Information may also be obtained from the Ohio Department of Agriculture's website at http://www.state.oh.us/agr/ and following links on "Food Safety."

More information is available regarding cottage food production, maple syrup and sorghum processing, beekeeping and selling honey, mobile retail food license labeling, additional miscellaneous exemptions, and other definitions relative to the Uniform Food Safety Code and Senate Bill 136 at the above web sites. Specific questions should be addressed to the ODA, Division of Food Safety at (614) 728-6250.

"Farmers should contact their local health department to apply for a mobile retail food establishment license and they can use the license anywhere in the state," said Ellerman.

"My recommendation is that sellers at farmer's markets, roadside markets and produce auctions be assertive in working with their local health departments. It has been my experience that most health department personnel working with food safety issues will work with producers to help them meet food safety requirements," said Ellerman. "It's important for a farmer to ask for help. By doing so they can develop a win-win situation."

Ellerman also encourages producers to involve their local Extension agent in the process. "There are obstacles in farmers getting the knowledge they need to do it right, and that's where county agents can play a role," he said.

Direct agricultural markets are increasing throughout the USDA, farmer's markets have increased 63 percent from 1994 to 2000. More than 2,800 farmer's markets operate in the U.S. The ODA lists more that 600 statewide farm markets, roadside markets, produce auctions, and other agricultural markets in its Ohio Farmers Market Directory.

USDA Grants Protection To 30 New Plant Varieties

WASHINGTON, D.C.— The USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) recently issued certificates of protection to developers of 30 new varieties of seed-reproduced and tuber-propagated plants. They include barley, bluegrass, corn, cotton, peanut, and wheat.

The 30 certificates are being issued under the Plant Variety Protection Act.

The certificates require that the varieties be new, distinct, uniform, and stable. The owners will have the exclusive right to reproduce, sell, import and export their products in the U.S. for the duration of protection.

The 30 certificates are:

- The A629 variety of barley, developed by Plant Breeders 1 Inc., Moscow, Idaho.
- The TAMBAR 501 barley, developed by Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, College Station, Texas.
- The Sabre II variety of rough bluegrass, developed by Cebeco International Seeds, Inc., Halsey, Ore.
- The 01HGI4, 17INI30, 94INK1A and 16IUL2 varieties of corn, developed by Dekalb Genetics Corporation, DeKalb, Ill.
- The El Dorado Acala variety of cotton, developed by Phytogen Seed Company, Corcoran, Calif.
- The ZOIand Drima varieties of cotton, developed by J. G. Boswell Company Cottonseed Breeding, Corcoran, Calif.
- The HI560 variety of cotton, developed by Louisiana Agricultural Experiment Station, Baton Rouge, La.
- The DP 6204 Acala variety of cotton, developed by Olvey & Associates, Inc, Maricopa, Ariz.
- The Diva and Acala GTO Maxxa varieties of cotton, developed by California Planting Cotton Seed Distributors, Shafter, Calif.
- The Sure-Grow 180, Sure-Grow 209, and Sure-Grow 248 varieties of cotton, developed by Sure-Grow Seed, Inc., Scott, Miss.
- The PM 1330 BG and PM 1330 RR varieties of cotton, developed by Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station, Fayetteville, Ariz.
- The Tamrun 98 and Coan varieties of peanut, developed by Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, College Station, Texas.
- The Gregory variety of peanut, developed by North Carolina Agricultural Research Service and Dr. Thomas G. Isleib (breeder), Raleigh, N.C.
- The Betty variety of common wheat, developed by Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station, Manhattan, Kan.

Zitter Wins IPM Award

GENEVA, N.Y. — There wasn't any throwing of rotten tomatoes when Thomas Zitter received the 2001 Excellence in IPM Award at the New York State Vegetable Growers Conference in Liverpool.

The Cornell professor of plant pathology is too popular for that — and his life has been dedicated to making rotten vegetables a thing of the past.

For 33 years Zitter has been studying diseases of fresh-market tomatoes, peppers, potatoes, squash, cucumbers, and other vegetables, finding solutions to the diseases that afflict them. For instance, he's helped tomato growers minimize fungicide sprays but maintain yields and quality by using disease forecasting systems, improved sprayers, and alternatives to chemical pesticides, such as bicarbonates and mineral oils.

Zitter demonstrated bacterial wilt as a new concern for growers of pumpkins and summer squash and has educated them about the disease since 1998. He also showed the potential of a biological product known as "Harpin" to protect certain vegetables against disease, and in some cases, to increase yields.

"There isn't a season that goes by that I don't learn something that can be applied in future research — some little kernel of information," said Zitter. "We have to be holistic and integrative in our approach."

From 1984 to 1992, Zitter helped the NYS IPM Program to grow by chairing the Vegetable IPM Commodity Committee and serving on the program's Operating Committee. He's the author of 30 Cornell disease fact sheets and bulletins, he edited the Compendium of Cucurbit Diseases and the Compendium of Tomato Diseases (both by APS Press), and was senior editor for the New York Cucurbit IPM Scouting Procedures.

Curt Petzoldt, vegetable IPM coordinator for the NYS IPM Program, has worked with Zitter since the mid-'80s. "Diagnosis is critical for IPM," said Petzoldt, "and Tom's the king of diagnosis at Cornell — the one everybody looks to regarding vegetable diseases."

Carrying statewide responsibilities for extension and research, Zitter collaborates with Extension educators, growers, and scientists to determine which biological agents, resistant varieties, and other controls are effective. he also serves as a resident backup for Cornell's Plant Disease Diagnostic Lab.

Extensive educator Carol MacNeil has worked with Zitter since he came to Cornell in 1979, "I don't know what we'd do without him," she said. "He's a tremendous resource, and so responsive to answering the very practical questions that growers have about diseases in crops."

Zitter works with dozens of growers across the state, but last summer he tackled a unique problem with John Hand, owner of Hand Melon Farm in Greenwich, N.Y. Because of a persistent soilborne fungus, Hand was unable to get his favorite varieties of melons to thrive. Once planted, they'd wither and die. Resistant varieties didn't offer comparable flavor or sweetness.

Zitter and his technician, Jessica Drennan, grafted the leafy stems of the favored melons onto disease-resistant root-stocks, secured them with little hair barrettes, then transplanted them into the field. The results? Four to five healthy fruit per plant. "It was spectacular," said Zitter. "We're going to do it again this year." Hand is a believer, too. "Whenever I've needed assistance in diagnosing problems and deciding on a course of action," he said, "Tom Zitter has been there."

Abby Seaman and John Mishanec, extension educators for the New York State IPM Program, regularly seek Zitter's advice with demonstration projects on growers' fields. "The quality about Tom that really stands out for me," said Seaman, "is how much I learn every time I have the opportunity to spend an afternoon in the field with him. Field plant pathologists like Tom are becoming an endangered species, but we in the field would be lost without them."

"Tom's unique at Cornell," said Mishanec. He's very willing to come out into the field and is always there to give information. The bottom line is that he wants to help the grower."

That's one reason why two years ago Zitter, with Cornell plant pathologist Meg McGrath and Dawn Dailey O'Brien, released "Vegetable MD Online," a free, internet diagnostic site for vegetable growers. Access it, and you'll find more than 600 slides and information on the vegetables grown in New York and their major diseases, including a new section on weed hosts for vegetable viruses. In 2001 the site was accessed more than 8,000 times a month.

"I decided to put as much of my knowledge as possible on the web," said Zitter, "and we've tried to make it one-stop shopping."

Zitter said developing this site gave him a creative thrill. "You can get caught up in your science," said Zitter. "It's great to have refereed publications, but when it's all said and done, growers really want the information right at hand. That's where Cooperative Extension should be."

Professor Gary Bergstrom, a colleague of Zitter's who nominated him for the award, said, "I'm pleased that he was getting recognized. Tom's an exemplary IPM educator. He embodies the values of the IPM Program and his recommendations are actually implemented by growers."

Zitter sums it up a bit differently: "That's what agriculture is all about. It's the people who make the difference."

USDA Honors Food Safety Pioneer

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently presented the first Howard E. Bauman Award for food safety at a science symposium hosted by USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service. The award was given posthumously to Dr. Bauman and was accepted by his daughters, Victoria Zobel and Kay Rose.

The Howard E. Bauman Award was created to recognize individuals showing longstanding commitment, leadership, and service to improving food safety.

Howard E. Bauman, who passed away last year, was the innovator behind the Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Point system. Bauman played a most significant role in developing HACCP in the 1960s to provide uncontaminated food to astronauts.

Employed by Pillsbury Company at the time, Bauman worked collaboratively with government scientists to develop the HACCP approach to ensuring the safety of food. HACCP has emerged as a solid scientific tool to prevent contamination in food and is required by USDA in all federal and state inspected meat and poultry plants.

Veneman presented the award during the opening of the "Pathogen Reduction: A Scientific Dialogue," scientific symposium conducted here. The symposium is one of nine public meetings this year to stimulate thinking and generate new ideas toward the goal of enhancing the safety of meat, poultry and egg products.

DEP Secretary Participates In Farm Tour

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — DEP Secretary David E. Hess joined Rep. Tom Creighton (R-Lancaster) and leaders of the Lancaster County Conservation District May 10 for a tour of nine Growing Greener sites throughout Lancaster County.

Also joining the tour were staff from Sen. Noah Wenger's and Rep. Jere Strittmatter's offices.

"The projects we visited show the benefits this program is having not only in Lancaster County, but around the entire state," Hess said. "It's a great chance to show legislators how the program is really changing things for the better."

Sponsored by the Lancaster County Conservation District, this year's event replaced the group's annual Legislative Breakfast.

"The tour emphasized not only the Growing Greener Grant projects themselves, but the relationships developed between local elected leaders, local watershed associations, local businesses, and private citizens," said Lancaster County Conservation District Manager Don Robinson. "Working together, these folks address concerns of the community."

The tour included nine Growing Greener project sites in the Lititz area. Among this year's locations were the Luke Weilder Farm, the Millport Conservancy Nursery, the Millport Conservancy Dam Removal, the Millport Conservancy Mill Pond, the Banta Project, the Hurst/Wenger Farm, Wynfield Business Park, Newport Square Development, and the Emory Martin/Leon Good Farm.

Hess said the locations represent only a portion of the positive effects of the Growing Greener program, but they do highlight the program's benefits to the community.

In its first three years, Growing Greener has supplied $8.9 million in grant money for 142 projects in the 15 counties of south-central Pennsylvania. The grants have been used to create or restore wetlands, restore stream buffer zones, eliminate causes of nonpoint source pollution, plug oil and gas wells, reclaim abandoned mine lands, and restore aquatic life to streams that were lifeless because of acid mine drainage.

For more information on the Growing Greener Program, visit the Pennsylvania homepage at www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: 'Growing Greener." To see pictures of the tour, visit DEP's Website (directLINK "scrapbook").

ACBP Conducts Beef Ball, Preview Show

BONNEAUVILLE (Adams Co.) — The Adams County Beef Producers (ACBP) organization conducted their 26th annual Beef Ball on April 20 at the Bonneauville Fire Hall.

Jim Delaplaine, president, awarded William Huffman of New Oxford, the 2002 Member Recognition Award.

Melissa Jeffcoat was crowned the 2002-2003 Beef Queen. Katie Martin and Jenn Bittle will also represent the beef producers this year as princesses.

There were seven bulls ranging in breeds of Black Angus, Charolais, Limousin, Polled Hereford, Scotch Highland, Shorthorn, and Simmental participating in the parade of bulls.

The country music band Ashley Marie and Family provided entertainment and various door prizes were donated from local businesses.

In conjunction with the Adams County Beef Producers' Beef Ball was the 4-H and FFA Preview Show. The show took place April 13 at the South Mountain Fairgrounds. There were 53 entries from Adams, Franklin, York, and Frederick County, Md.

The grand and reserve champion steers were awarded their checks from the participating champion sponsors at the Beef Ball. Show results are as follows:

Brown Swiss Calf Sale Breaks Record

FREDERICK, Md. — An average price of $2,942 per animal marked a new record at this year's Mid-Atlantic Brown Swiss Calf Sale at the Frederick Fairgrounds. The 28th annual event featured 34 calves.

A yearling heifer, D J Jetway Cindy-Twin, topped the sale at $6,000. Consigned by Dale and Deanna Bendig and John Heizer of Gettysburg, this calf was named top summer yearling at the mid-April New York Spring Show in Syracuse, New York. She was purchased by Adam Goldenberg of Texas.

The Wagner family of Quarryville consigned the second high-selling heifer, Bo Joy Ensign Goldie. She was bought by Dylan Fry of Chestertown, Md., for $5,550.

A March-born calf, Brothers Three Passion ET, was consigned by Josh Hushon of Airville and brought $5,200, third highest in the sale. Mt. Ararat Farm, Port Deposit, Md., was the buyer.

The calves went to buyers in 11 states, with bidders participating both in person and by phone.

The sale also offered embryo packages featuring genetics from lead Brown Swiss cow families. A total of 28 embryos in nine packages averaged nearly $600. Three embryos from Top Acres Pre Bouqet sold for $1,275 each to buyers Tom and Bonnie Remsburg, Middletown, Md. This top package was consigned by Wayne Sliker of Ohio.

The annual sale is sponsored by the Maryland Brown Swiss Association and is next scheduled for April 26, 2003, at the Frederick Fairgrounds.

Retail Promotions Should Help Stimulate Demand For Pork

DES MOINES, Iowa — Retail promotions aimed at the grilling season should help to stimulate demand for pork and help to offset the sudden decline recently in the prices paid for market hogs, according to Dallas Hockman, vice president of demand enhancement at the National Pork Board.

"We have a lot of activity coming up," said Hockman, "including the 'Where There's Pork, There's FireSM' campaign that uses Pork Checkoff dollars to assist retailers in promoting pork products for outdoor grilling.

"We're not seeing any retailers backing off their plans to promote pork right now," said Hockman, who is responsible for Checkoff efforts to help producers move more pork through retailers and foodservice outlets. "But with abundant supplies and low prices for beef and poultry, there is bound to be some substitution. We're sticking to our plans, which also include extra emphasis on fall Checkoff promotions, such as 'The Other Tailgate PartySM'."

Market prices for hogs dropped due to a combination of factors, all of which were negative, said Dr. Steve Meyer, director of economics at the National Pork Board. "I would not characterize this as a hog supply or a pork demand problem," Meyer said.

Meyer listed a number of factors he believes contributed to the sudden price decline, including:

- Near-record production of all meats this year — up 2.6 percent from the same period in 2001.
- Record high dressed weights for cattle, poultry and hogs due primarily to a mild winter.
- The Japanese safeguard tariff that was in place until March 31, plus recent Japanese holidays, which have resulted in reduced exports to Japan in 2002.
- Cessation of poultry trade with Russia from March 1 until recently, when Russian officials authorized the resumption of U.S. poultry purchases. Hogs then either have to be sold to U.S. consumers or put into storage with an abundance of poultry on the market.
- The earliest Easter in 11 years, which put any additional demand for hams farther from normal summer seasonal pork demand increases.

Meyer said most of the factors helping to create the recent price decline are outside the control of pork producers and the demand-enhancing programs of the Pork Checkoff and the National Pork Board. By law, funds from the Pork Checkoff can be used only for research, promotion and consumer information. "The Checkoff is all about long-term demand change," Meyer said.

Meyer also said he expects the lifting of the Russian export ban to reduce some of the pressure on meat supplies in this country, although he said it is difficult to predict how long that might take. "Whenever you unexpectedly have that much product on the market, it puts negative pressure on the market," Meyer said.

Meyer also noted that packer margins do not appear to have widened beyond what he terms their normal level, based on a survey of the last eight years. Hockman said that additional Checkoff funds have been committed to fall promotions for pork because the U.S. Department of Agriculture's March Hogs and Pigs Report projects a 2 percent increase over 2001 in fourth quarter slaughter.

New Members In Charolais Association

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mark and Suzie Sattizahn, of Schuylkill Haven, along with Michael Telesz, of Volant, have recently joined the American-International Charolais Association (AICA), a progressive purebred beef cattle association working with commercial cattle producers, according to Mr. J. Neil Orth, executive vice president of the international organization with headquarters in Kansas City, Mo.

The AICA is the official beef cattle registry of the Charolais breed, with more than 5,500 active and junior members. The association maintains the pedigree, performance and carcass information on individual animals for its members. These computerized records are used to calculate the most accurate and up-to-date EPD to promote the use of Charolais genetics to all profit minded purebred and commercial cattle.

For more information about the Charolais breed, call (816) 464-5977 or visit the AICA Website at www.charolaisusa.com.

NASS Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

Editor's Note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

Farm Bill

The newly enacted Farm Bill will be in effect for six years. It is formally called the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002.

Statistics from the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) will be an important part of the development and administration of the commodity programs in Title I of the Farm Bill. The Farm Service Agency, which administers farm programs, has already begun meeting with NASS staff to discuss the statistical needs of the new Farm Bill.

NASS statistics may also be used in evaluating the impact of other Farm Bill titles, too. For more details on all 10 titles in the new Farm Bill, see www.usda.gov/farmbill/.

Here is a list of the northeastern commodities included in Title I of the Farm Bill: dairy, corn, sorghum, barley, oats, wheat, soybeans, minor oilseeds, apples, other fruits vegetables and specialty crops, wool and mohair, and honey.

NASS surveys may directly affect the commodity programs on which growers will rely on during the next six years. Your timely responses to our surveys will help to provide accurate agricultural statistics for the administration of these programs. This is one of many ways that statistics work for agriculture. "Thank you" to all growers that take the time to cooperate on NASS surveys!

2002 Crops And Hog Counts

Over the past many months, drought has received a lot of attention. Ironically, much of the state has received more than normal precipitation since April 1. This has allowed major field crops and pastures to be rated as mostly in good condition.

Although weather always impacts yields, we need to have a good measure of field crop acreage as a first step to understand potential crop production for 2002.

The annual June Agricultural Survey collects data about plantings, and this year it also contributes to the upcoming 2002 Census of Agriculture. The survey also measures grain stocks, livestock, farm numbers, and land values. The quarterly Hog Survey is conducted at the same time and coordinated to reduce additional contacts for hog farmers. These surveys are all under way from late May through mid-June.

The survey includes different phases to keeps costs low and quality high. Our interviewers will visit about 200 land segments across the state that are about one square mile each. They will contact all operators within the segment to draw operation boundaries on aerial photographs and account for all land use within the selected area.

Surveys that use these aerial photos will also help the Ag Census to measure what is missing from the census mail list. If you are visited by our staff with these photos, your cooperation is very important because these 200 square miles, plus 100 more in the fall, represent all 45,000 square miles in Pennsylvania.

In addition, we've sampled about 1,300 crop farmers and approximately 300 hog growers from our list of agricultural operators. They will get letters to explain the upcoming survey. They will be contacted during the survey period to answer acreage and livestock questions that don't require using the more complex aerial photos.

These USDA surveys are all completed at the same time nationwide. So it is important that Pennsylvania producers be properly represented among the other states. Crop statistics provide producers with vital information for cash crop farmers and current and potential feed supplies for milk and livestock producers. Hog growers can review national trends to help with production decisions.

As with all our surveys, by federal law, your name and address and data about your operation are completely confidential. Survey results are published as totals so that no individual data can be discovered or calculated. The same law also protects your data from requests under the Freedom of Information Act.

By law, no one can gain early access to the results of any survey. The reports are available to everyone at www.usda.gov/nass/. Use the "Search" button to find "Acreage" report, June 28 (8:30 a.m.); "Crop Production," July 11 (8:30 a.m.) with potatoes; "Grain Stocks," June 28 (8:30 a.m.); "Quarterly Hogs and Pigs," June 28 (3 p.m.); or "Farms and Land In Farms," every February.

We count on your help to represent Pennsylvania agriculture properly. If you are contacted personally or by telephone, please remember that your response is important so that we can publish the most accurate statistics possible, because agriculture counts!

Floriculture Report Published April 25

A big "thank you" is due to the Pennsylvania producers who helped in this annual effort. The report can be used by growers to evaluate crops raised and average prices in Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

Pennsylvania is the sixth largest floriculture state with $180.6 million in sales in 2001. This measures only one part of the greenhouse and nursery industry, which is the fourth largest sector of Pennsylvania agriculture, after milk, cattle, and mushrooms (based on 2000 cash receipts).

The Nursery Crops Report is published every other year — the most recent report is for the 2000 production. The reports can be found at www.usda.gov/nass/ by using the "Search" button and looking for "Floriculture Crops" or "Nursery" in the "Commodity" listing.

Farm And Home Foundation Awards Seven $4,000 Scholarships

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Seven high school seniors planning to pursue ag-related or consumer science college degrees each received a $4,000 scholarship Tuesday evening at the Farm and Home Center.

"Since its inception, 396 scholarships have been awarded," Leon Ressler, county extension director, said. The Lancaster County Farm and Home Foundation scholarships are derived from irrevocable trust fund earnings set up by the late Elmer L. Esbenshade.

High school seniors in all Lancaster County schools are eligible to apply for the scholarships. Scholarships are awarded in the amount of $1,000 each year for four years as long as recipients continue ag- or consumer-science related studies.

This year's recipients include the following:

Jordan Martin —Growing up on a dairy farm influenced Jordan to pursue a degree in ag science at Delaware Valley College. Although he lives in the Cocalico School District, Jordan attends Ephrata High School in order to participate in the ag program. He is Cloister Chapter FFA chaplain and a member of the National Honor Society.

The son of Dennis and Sharon Martin, Stevens, Jordan selected Del Val College after visiting the campus. He hopes his career choice will enable him to participate in testing at research farms.

Justin Risser — The Gerald and Joyce Risser family milk 175 cows three times a day on their Bainbridge farm. Their 18-year-old son Justin knows the characteristics of everyone.

"I love working with cows," Justin said. He's headed for Delaware Valley College to study dairy science with the hope of returning to the family farm to help expand it further. The Rissers own 600 acres and have recently expanded the herd and added a free-stall barn with tunnel ventilation.

The second oldest of four sons, Justin helps whenever possible on the farm. He is also quite busy at Elizabethtown Area High School, where he is FFA president, and team member of three career development events that won local, state, and regional awards. His ag salesmanship team competed at the national level.

At school, Justin is also a member of the student council, National Honor Society, basketball team, and Bible study group leader for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He was one of 14 selected from the county to attend the Washington D.C. Forum Close Up. At church, Justin is a member of the youth group and an usher.

G. Eldon Miller — Eldon is the second member of his family to earn a Farm and Home Foundation Scholarship. The third of six siblings, Eldon's interest in culinary nutrition was honed through cooking for the family. His mother and older sister are professional seamstresses and Eldon said he was often consigned cooking duty. "At first I hated it, but now I love cooking. It's so much fun to experiment and be creative, especially with desserts," Eldon said.

He enjoys cooking so much that he turned down a science-related scholarship.

Because the 19-year-old can't stand a dirty kitchen, he cleans up after himself.

Eldon will pursue a four-year degree in culinary nutrition at Johnson and Wales University. His goal is to become a chef on a cruise ship.

At Donegal High School, Eldon is a member of the National Honor Society, the Math Honors Society, member of the newspaper staff, and captain of the wrestling team. He also is active in his church youth group.

"I love challenges and anything to improve myself," Eldon said.

Derick Bollinger — Through Derick's prolific involvement in raising steers, sheep, and pigs, his photo is a familiar one in this newspaper. The 18-year-old also works on a neighboring 80-herd dairy farm.

Derick wants to study large animal science at Delaware Valley College. Derick said that he is the first of his family of two older sisters to attend college. He is the son of P. Eugene and Carol Bollinger, Manheim.

Last summer, Derick participated in a six-week Pennsylvania Governor's School of Ag Science at Penn State. But Derick selected Delaware Valley because he prefers a small atmosphere that enables more connection with teachers.

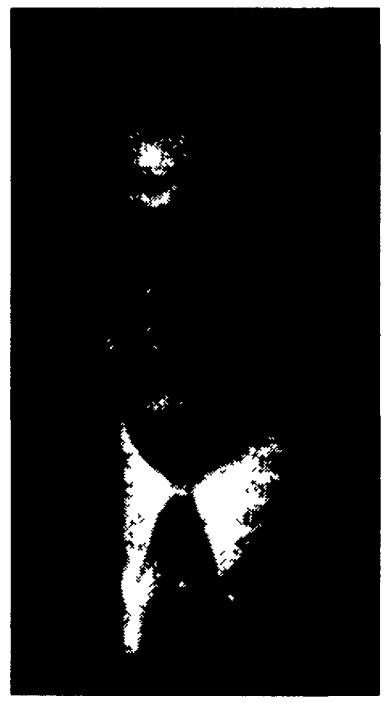
"I don't want to be a number. I'd like the professor to know my name," Derick said.

An FFA student at Manheim Central High School, Derick has been selected as Lancaster New Era's Teen of the Week.

Katie Nickles — Ag science and environmental resource management perked Katie's interest when she studied local and state history last year. The Conestoga Valley class offered students trips to local sites, where Katie's appreciation grew for the county's rich farming history. Katie also participated in an outdoor school at Trout Run Environmental Center, where she taught soil science concepts to middle school students.

Katie is accepted in the Shreyer Honors College at Penn State University's Main Campus. The honors program, based on SAT scores and essay writing ability, enables her to take advanced courses with smaller classes and other perks.

At Conestoga Valley, the 18-year-old daughter of Bruce and Becky Nickles, Akron, is co-editor of the yearbook, a member of the National Honor Society, student council, and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Katie plays field hockey and Lacrosse, which she helped to establish at her high school. She is a member of the community Leo Club, affiliated with Lion's Club, and was selected to attend the Washington D.C. Presidential Classroom Conference. Katie is active in her church youth group and has participated in many community service projects.



Nathan Hoover is also a scholarship recipient.

Katie has also received a $1,000 scholarship from the Lancaster County Conservation District and another $1,000 scholarship from ComCast Cable Company.

Nathan Hoover — Agriculture ag business management is Nathan's major at Penn State. The 18-year-old son of Lloyd and Elaine Hoover, Leola, attends Lancaster Mennonite High School.

Krista Yoder — As a member of Lancaster Mennonite High's hockey team, Krista became interested in how to eat healthy and stay in shape. Now she wants to study dietetics. She is especially interested in how eating habits affect cultures.

Krista plans to attend Gordon College, Massachusetts.

"I love the area and it has a good hockey team," Krista said of her choice.

In addition to field hockey, Krista's school involvement includes membership in the National Honor Society, senior class committee, and Campus Chorale. She was president of her church youth group.

Krista and two younger brothers live with their parents, Nelson and Patricia Yoder, in Narvon.

Biotech Consortium Seeks Broad Improvements

COLUMBUS, Ohio — In recent years, biotechnology has largely been associated with genetically modified organisms (GMOs), genetically engineered organisms (GEOs), or some other form of cross breeding or genetic alteration.

However, for over 70 researchers at 11 universities throughout Ohio, biotechnology embraces a much broader range of scientific study that not only seeks to increase opportunities in agriculture, but have a positive impact on the environment and benefit people as well.

Through research projects ranging from botany to zoology, participants of the Ohio Plant Biotechnology Consortium share information on issues that are important to Ohio's agricultural and natural resources industries.

"The idea was to optimize interaction between scientists with different areas of expertise throughout the state to the end of providing information and potential products that consumers, farmers, and businesses could use," said Terry Graham, an Ohio State University plant pathologist and chairman of the organization. "Research activities are broad, going from really basic research to more applied projects. It is important to realize that many projects that fall under the realm of biotechnology don't even involve genetic engineering."

Universities that are part of the consortium include Ohio State, Bowling Green State University, Cleveland State University, Kent State University, Medical College of Ohio, Miami University, Ohio University, University of Cincinnati, University of Toledo, Wright State University and Youngstown State University.

Research projects include controlling disease in chestnut trees; developing new corn hybrids; developing defense mechanisms in soybeans to control insects and diseases; developing new yeast varieties to improve wine making; establishing genomic libraries for crop plants; working with predacious insects to control crop pests; and working to make seed oil more nutritious.

The Ohio Plant Biotechnology Consortium, which has been in existence for two years, is funded by a competitive grant program administered through Ohio State University's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC). For more information on the consortium log onto http://opbc.osu.edu.

Meat Goat Judging School In Maryland May 31

McHENRY, Md. — The Alternative Agriculture Center at Garrett Community College (GCC) will host a Meat Goat Judging School May 31 at the Garrett County Fairgrounds from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The judging school will be a hands-on, practical approach to selection of meat goats. Meat goat producers will gain valuable knowledge for selecting breeding stock and market animals.

Meat goats are one of the fastest growing livestock species at fairs and festivals. Many fair officials are forced to use dairy goat or other livestock judges for meat goat shows because trained meat goat judges are not available. This is an excellent opportunity for extension agents, dairy goat judges, and other livestock judges and other livestock judges to learn more about judging.

Dr. Alan Fires and Susan Schoenian will conduct the school. Fires has been involved in raising and showing meat goats for more than 20 years. He is an official judge with the IBGA, a member of the Herd Improvement Committee, and a member of the Official Judges and Shows Committee of the IBGA.

Fires and his family have a herd of purebred boer goats and are in the commercial and pureblood buck production business on his ranch in Kermit, Texas.

Susan Schoenian is an area extension agent for sheep and goats with the University of Maryland. She has experience in raising meat goats and hair sheep and has been involved with the Lower Shore Goat Producers Association. Schoenian has also traveled to many Caribbean counties in her extension roles. For the past two years, she served as the judge for the National Sheep and Goat Show in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. In her new role, Schoenian is stationed at the Western Maryland Research and Education Center in Keedysville, Md.

The judging school will include classes on judging market wethers, commercial does and doelings, and boer bucks. The cost of the school will be $20, MPWV members and family members $15, and youth under 18, $10. The fee will include lunch and materials.

For more information or to register, call Willie Lantz at (301) 387-3331.

Meat Goat Conference

The judging school will be conducted in conjunction with the fifth annual Meat Goat Conference, also sponsored by the Alternative Agriculture Center at Garrett Community College (GCC).

The fifth annual Meat Goat Conference will begin at 3 p.m. at GCC. The conference will feature speakers on meat goat topics such as health, production performance, scrapie, and meat goat research projects in feeding goats. The cost for the conference will be $10.

The conference will be followed by first annual meeting of the MPWV Chapter of the Mid West Meat Goat Producers Association, which will feature a banquet dinner with goat meat. The cost of the meal is $15.

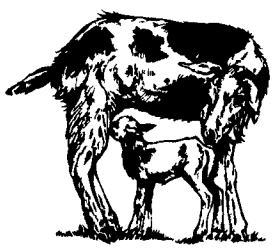
Boer Goat Show

Saturday, June 1, the MPWV Chapter of the Mid West Meat Goat Producers Association will host the third annual Mt. Top Boer Goat Show and Sale to begin at noon at the Garrett County Fairgrounds.

Classes will include fullblood and purebred boer does and bucks, percentage boer does, and meat goat classes (bucks, wethers, or does).

At 6:30 p.m., a Boer Goat Production sale will be conducted by the MPWV chapter. The sale will feature approximately 50 animals. Animals will be consigned by MPWV members only and will feature the best members have to offer. Members will be selling percentage does and fullblood/purebred does and bucks.

For more information on the show and sale, call Willie Lantz at (301) 387-3331 or log on to www.gcc.cc.md.us/agriculture/.



Producer Petition Requests U.S. Justice Dept. To Investigate Irregularities In Livestock Markets

AMES, Iowa — A new petition requesting the Department of Justice to investigate irregularities in livestock markets began circulating among producers Saturday, May 11, at the Livestock Price Crisis Meeting in Omaha, Neb.

"After the packer ownership ban was dropped from Farm Bill legislation, we've heard countless producers report that they want the issue addressed," said National Farmers Organization (NFO) President Paul Olson. "This grassroots producer petition requests the United States Department of Justice to focus its attention on market movement over the past several weeks that has been highly irregular."

Olson said that members he spoke with are determined that they must take control of their destiny, and that this petition is just one of the tools they can use to accomplish that goal.

The petition will be circulated in hard copy to farmers and ranchers nationally through numerous ag groups, and is available on the Web at www.nfo.orgPetition/Petition.asp. The petition signature deadline is June 14.

The livestock producer fairness petition requests the Justice Department to investigate:

- How the ownership or control of livestock by packers is effecting normal supply and demand factors in the futures markets.
- Whether supply is being manipulated to force massive swings in the market.
- If there were commodity trading funds taking short positions in the futures market in quantities higher than usual. If so, did they represent large agribusiness interests and is there a conflict of interest or collusion involved?
- Were there any traders in the futures market since March 1 who don't normally trade livestock futures.

Producers believe that since March 1, unexplained forces have driven live cattle and live hog futures prices lower. While packers immediately followed this movement with lower cash prices, boxed meat prices remained relatively stable. Therefore, consumers did not benefit from those lower prices.

The organization points out that those movements coincided with the expiration and subsequent renewal offers of supply contracts that producers first entered into following the 1998 crash in the hog market, and a market overreaction to foot and mouth testing in Kansas. The Senate passage of the Ban on Packer Ownership of livestock also occurred during the period in question.

"Producers can visit the NFO Website and sign the petition electronically by pointing their browser to www.nfo.org and clicking on the petition button in the tan box," said Olson. Farmers can also print out a hard copy of the petition to circulate and mail to the NFO home office at 528 Billy Sunday Rd., Ames, Iowa 50010.

Red Angus Completes Reproduction Predictions

DENTON, Texas — The Red Angus Association of America (RAAA) is proud to announce the release of the industry's first Reproduction Traits Sire Evaluation.

The sire evaluation includes genetic predictions for the four economically relevant reproduction traits — Calving Ease Direct, Heifer Pregnancy, Calving Ease Total Maternal, and Stayability EPDs. Calving Ease Direct predicts the ability of a calf to be born unassisted while Heifer Pregnancy predicts the probability of a sire's daughters conceiving to calve as a two year-old.

Calving Ease Total Maternal predicts the probability of a sire's daughters to calve unassisted, and Stayability predicts the probability that a sire's daughters will stay in the herd until they are six years of age.

"The goal of the RAAA is to comprehensively describe the three general areas of reproduction, growth and carcass utilizing as few EPDs as possible. In terms of profitability, reproduction is the most important group of traits in cow/calf production; so objectively describing reproduction has been one of the RAAA's highest priorities", said Dr. Bob Hough, RAAA Executive Secretary.

"The formulation of these reproductive EPDs is the result of ten years of groundbreaking research by Colorado State University (CSU), sustained RAAA Board leadership, and dedicated Red Angus breeders building the necessary database" said Hough.

The 2002 RAAA Reproductive Traits Sire Evaluation includes EPDs for 527 sires, and is available by contacting the Red Angus Association of America National Office at 940-387-3502, or mailto: info@redangus1.org" info@redangus1.org.

Grange Congratulates President

WASHINGTON, D.C.— Kermit W. Richardson, president of the National Grange, sent a letter of appreciation to President Bush, congratulating him for signing the 2002 Farm Bill.

The bill is considered a compromise — but necessary — piece of legislation that will direct federal farm programs for the next six years. It is budgeted to spend more than $173 billion on farm programs, conservation, rural development, and energy security programs.

The National Grange regards the new Farm Bill as an important part, but not exclusive answer, for achieving our national goal of revitalizing rural America and returning U.S. family farmers to prosperity.

"The Grange looks forward to working closely with Congress and the administration to ensure other critical legislation gets passed," said Grange Legislative Director Leroy Watson.

All-American Dairy Show Continues To Grow

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 2002 All-American Dairy Show will take place Sept. 22-26 at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex.

Entering into its 39th year, the All-American Dairy Show continues to exhibit the very best dairy genetics of Pennsylvania and the nation. Many dairy animals entered in the competition have achieved national recognition for their pedigree, milk production, and type quality.

Expositions such as the All-American Dairy Show provide an opportunity for dairy breeders and other persons associated with the dairy industry to exchange ideas and seek information to help advance America's great dairy team.

"The All-American Dairy Show is one of the great agricultural expositions in the nation and a spectacular showcase for the dairy industry," said Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes. "Expositions, like the All-American, bring the very best of our dairy industry together. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is pleased to have the All-American at our Farm Show Complex, and we are pleased to provide financial resources for the exposition."

The All-American Dairy Show was started in 1963 to recognize the importance of genetic quality and excellent dairy cattle. At this time in its history, the All-American Dairy Show takes pride in setting an exemplary standard of excellence on the national show circuit. The Pennsylvania-based dairy show was recognized at the 2001 International Association of Fairs and Expositions (IAFE) 111th Annual Convention in Las Vegas, Nev. as the Best Non-Fair Agricultural Event.

Over the span of five days, eight state, regional, and national dairy shows will be conducted. The All-American will culminate on Sept. 26 with the Parade of Breed Champions in the Large Arena and the selection of the supreme champion.

To better serve agricultural expositions such as the All- American, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has initiated a landmark construction project at its Farm Show Complex. The historic $76 million investment in Pennsylvania agriculture will provide a world-class facility for many of the nation's world-class expositions.

The present Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex has 660,000 square feet of exhibit space, 16 acres under one roof. The current construction will add another 350,000 square feet.

The new construction will add a new Exposition Hall of 175,000 square feet, a second large arena, and another livestock barn. This new construction is scheduled to be completed in December 2002 with more than 1 million square feet of combined, all-weather, under-one-roof exhibitor space.

More than $160,000 will be offered in premiums at the 2002 All-American. Each entry at the All-American will receive a cash award.

For the first time at the All-American Dairy Show, a supreme champion will be selected from the Youth Show. The winning youth will receive a cash premium of $2,000.

To help youth exhibitors invest in their future, each youth breed grand champion will also receive a $1,000 savings bond for their achievement.

"The future of America's dairy industry rests in the hands of today's young men and women. The All-American Dairy Show strives to recognize their importance," Hayes said.

More than $8,400 in premiums will be offered to recognize the high quality of dairy animals taking center stage during the youth shows in the Large Arena of the Farm Show Complex. This is the first year that premiums will be offered in all six youth breed shows.

Total youth premiums offered at the 2002 All-American reflect a 137 percent increase from 2001.

USDA Tests Internet Payment To Farmers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In a discussion with farm broadcasters and farm print reporters from around the country, Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman announced this week that USDA is testing a new program that will allow farmers to receive program payments via the Internet.

The pilot program will allow producers in selected counties in 21 states to receive loan deficiency payments (LDPs) via the Internet. Veneman said the new program is part of implementing the new Farm Bill using electronic services to the extent feasible.

"Our hope is that we can institutionalize this type of technology as we implement the new Farm Bill," said Veneman. "This type of service would save time and resources that producers now spend in USDA offices. Our hope is that this pilot program will move us closer in that regard."

The 21 counties in which the pilot program is being implemented are Cross County, Ark.; Cass County, Ill.; Adams County, Ind.; Jasper County, Iowa; Marshall County, Kan.; Christian County, Ky.; East Carroll County, La.; Jackson County, Mich.; Lyon County, Minn.; Nodaway County, Mo.; Chouteau County, Mont.; York County, Neb.; Sampson County, N.C.; Cass County, N.D.; Sandusky County, Ohio; Texas County, Okla.; Northumberland County, Pa.; Spink County, S.D.; Obion County, Tenn.; Collin County, Texas; and Jefferson County, Wis.

Producers using the new e-LDP service will no longer need to come into USDA offices to get their LDPs. They will be able to apply for and receive LDPs from their homes when it's convenient for them. Besides saving producers time traveling to and from county offices, applying online will eliminate paperwork and speed up payment processing. The service has stringent security measures to protect participants' private information.

"We are finding that more and more of our producers are using the Internet. This enables us to provide faster, more efficient, and accurate services to the nation's farmers," Veneman said.

Veneman also announced that USDA's Economic Research Service will release a side-by-side comparison of the 1996 Farm Bill and the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002. The tool, available on USDA's Farm Bill Website at http://www.usda.gov/farmbill and ERS's Website at http://www.ers.usda.gov/, will include title-by-title comparison, glossary of Farm Bill terms, links to background information, and economic analysis.

Exhibitors 'Upbeat' About Expanded Complex, Farm Show 2003

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — About 75 Farm Show commercial exhibitors were on hand during a meeting here Wednesday evening to hear a progress report on Farm Show Complex construction, slated for completion in time for the 2003 Farm Show.

Dennis Grumbine, Farm Show executive director, noted that the exhibitors "are pretty upbeat about the future and their enthusiasm about exhibiting at the Farm Show."

Grumbine said the meeting was "very positive" and that construction remains on schedule.

The dinner meeting, conducted at the cafeteria in the complex, included prospective and current commercial exhibitors.

The historic $76 million investment in Pennsylvania agriculture will provide a world-class facility for many of the nation's world-class expositions.

The present Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex has 660,000 square feet of exhibit space, 16 acres under one roof. The current construction will add another 350,000 square feet.

The new construction will add a new Exposition Hall of 175,000 square feet, a second large arena, and another livestock barn. This new construction is scheduled to be completed in December 2002 with more than 1 million square feet of combined, all-weather, under-one-roof exhibitor space.

Growing Greener Project Completed

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An acid mine drainage abatement project made possible through the Growing Greener program is complete in Westmoreland County.

DEP's Bureau of Abandoned Mine Reclamation conducted a final inspection May 9 for a project in Keystone State Park, Derry Township, in the Loyalhanna Creek watershed.

The project consisted of constructing a mine drain and drainage conveyance system 1,325 feet long that intercepts and lowers the groundwater table within an abandoned deep mine and eliminates the existing acid discharge seeps. This phase of the operation provides a sole point of discharge and clears the way for the construction of a treatment facility to treat the discharge in the next phase.

For more information about this project, contact Chuck Schenkemeyer at (814) 472-1800 or e-mail cschenkemeyer@state.pa.us. For more information on Growing Greener, visit www.GrowingGreener.org.

Ground-Breaking

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Groundbreaking for the Pennsylvania Agriculture Department's new Livestock Evaluation Center was scheduled to take place Friday, May 24 at 11 a.m. near Rockspring, Centre County.

This unique building will be the largest facility of its kind in the nation, according to state officials.

Scheduled for completion in February, 2003, it will establish Pennsylvania as a leader in the performance evaluation of the meat species (beef, swine, sheep). The new center will include classrooms for use as an educational tool for agriculture students, and a meeting place for industry representatives.

Conference To Demonstrate Well Construction

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Ground Water Association will demonstrate proper residential well drilling, grouting, and decommissioning practices at a one-day field conference to be held on June 28, in Newville, Perry County.

Demonstrations include:

- Two residential water wells will be drilled, constructed, and then decommissioned.
- Proper grouting methods will be demonstrated as the wells are constructed.
- Best management practices for control of cuttings and water will be shown.
- Proper decommissioning (plugging) methods will be used to "abandon" the wells.
- There will also be a special demonstration of a soil vacuum excavation unit.

New legislation that will set standards for the proper construction, testing, and decommissioning of residential water wells has passed in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives and is being considered by the Senate.

This Field Conference will demonstrate the proper construction, grouting, and decommissioning procedures addressed by this legislation. Each procedure will be explained as it is happening, and the audience may ask questions at any time.

For more information, including the schedule of events, types of displays, registration form, and location map, go to the Pennsylvania Ground Water Association Website at http://www.pgwa.org.

Schumacher Receives Adventurers Award

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — The New England Fellowship of Agricultural Adventurers presented August "Gus" Schumacher Jr., of Washington, D.C., with the 2002 Agricultural Adventurers Award at the annual meeting of trustees of Eastern States Exposition, May 16, in Springfield, Mass.

Schumacher, a native of Lexington, Mass., has had a lifetime career serving agriculture both in the U.S. and abroad. He began his career after graduating from Harvard in 1961 with a degree in economics.

After graduation in 1963, Schumacher began a 30-year career with the World Bank in Washington, to serve Massachusetts agriculture, U.S. agriculture and foreign agriculture around the world. He has served as an economist and mission chief leading teams to Uruguay, Argentina, Paraguay and Eastern Africa resulting in a series of World Bank loans for the development of beef cattle sectors in each nation.

He was instrumental in increasing the number of farmers markets from 8 to 89 and founding the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) and Seniors Farmers Market coupon programs, now known nationally, and substantially increasing funding for farmland protection.

Currently, Schumacher is the managing director for the Washington, D.C. operations of SJH & Company of Danvers, Mass.

Sign Up For Apple Grower Assistance Under Way

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that sign up for the 2000 Apple Market Loss Assistance Program (AMLAP-II) began April 29. AMLAP-II will provide about $75 million to eligible growers for their 2000-crop apple production.

The payments will help offset economic losses due to low prices in the U.S. apple market. Growers can receive a payment per pound for their 2000-crop apple production, and they will be paid on a maximum of five million pounds per separate apple operation.

To receive cash payments, eligible apple producers must: (1) have produced and harvested apples during the 2000-crop year; (2) not have received compensation from any other federal program, other than crop insurance, for the same market loss; and (3) apply for cash payments during the application period for each apple operation. The deadline for application under the AMLAP-II program will be announced later.

Applications may be filed at the Lancaster County Farm Service Agency, located at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Lancaster, Pa.; or other county FSA offices.

Nominations Sought For Environmental Awards

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Northeastern Pennsylvania Environmental Partners are accepting nominations for the 12th annual Environmental Partnership Awards and the seventh annual Thomas P. Shelburne Environmental Leadership Award. The awards will be presented at a dinner this fall.

The Environmental Partnership Awards are presented to recognize individuals or organizations who have achieved environmental and conservation excellence through public and/or private partnerships. In addition, the Shelburne Award is presented to the individual for his or her long-term commitment to environmental quality in Northeast Pennsylvania.

The NEPA Environmental Partners include the Pennsylvania Environmental Council's Northeast Office, DEP, DCNR, Wilkes University, Northeast Pa. Alliance, PPL, and Procter & Gamble Co.

To receive nomination materials, contact PEC at (570) 270-4420. Nominations must be postmarked no later than July 12.

USDA Launches Farm Bill Website

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA launched a new website aimed at helping farmers, ranchers, and the general public learn the latest information about the new Farm Bill.

"The new farm bill is very broad and contains many new programs to assist America's farmers and ranchers," said Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman. "This website will serve as a repository of information on the new farm bill as we begin vigorously implementing its provisions."

The website can be directly accessed from USDA's official website at http://www.usda.gov/farmbill or by simply clicking on the 2002 Farm Bill icon on USDA's main website at http://www.usda.gov/. The 2002 Farm Bill icon will also appear on USDA agency websites.

The new website will include farm bill program details, questions and answers, program applications and sign-up forms, as well as other important materials from USDA agencies on farm bill implementation. The website will also contain advanced electronic applications to help program applicants receive program benefits faster and more efficiently.

The website will help farmers, ranchers and others locate information through one site rather than searching through web pages of the many agencies that make up USDA. Information will be indexed by farm bill title and by agency. Users will be able to access specific agency information through the site and easily return to the home page by clicking on the Farm Bill 2002 logo located throughout USDA agencies' web pages.

Information to be posted on the site over the next several weeks includes:

- A comparison of 1996 Farm Bill provisions and 2002 provisions prepared by the Economic Research Service;
- Fact sheets in English and Spanish that cover the changes in conservation programs administered by the Natural Resources Conservation Service;
- Information from the Farm Service Agency on program details and instructions on how to calculate new yields; and
- On-line applications and electronic forms to help make processing time more efficient.

The website will be updated regularly as new information and program announcements become available. The "What's New" link will alert users to updates and added information.

President Bush signed the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 into law on May 13.

Core Fundamentals for Poultry Biosecurity

Limit Traffic –

- Only approved people cleared for entry to farm (log visitors)
- Limit contact with birds at other locations
- Secure entry points to housing (locks if necessary)
- Ensure vermin controls are in place and maintained Make houses bird-proof
- Stay in houses only as long as needed to carry on the task
- Limit accessibility to the farm location (a gate away from the farm buildings)

Maintain Proper Sanitation–

- Use all-in all out flock movement (if possible)
- Use footbaths and maintain them
- Full suit-up for all visitors to poultry farms
- Wash-down / disinfect vehicles entering the facilities
- Clean and disinfect equipment on a periodic basis Entire house upon depopulation
- Use "downtime" as a sanitizer for housing
- Use appropriate sanitizer compound for conditions and material to be sanitized
- Shower / clean clothes after visit to other poultry facility or meeting prior to return to farm
- Properly dispose of mortality
- Properly handle manure

Maintain Bird Health Surveillance–

- Vaccinate for protection of known viral diseases in the area
- Post sample of bird mortality for clinical signs
- Maintain blood sampling program for viral loads
- Send proper samples of birds and tissues to a nearby diagnostic laboratory at the onset of major disease symptoms

$1 Million Awarded For Source Water Protection

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — DEP Secretary David E. Hess announced the award of more than $1 million in grants to 24 municipalities and community water suppliers to develop plans to protect their drinking water sources.

Hess announced the grants at the opening of DEP's third annual Groundwater Symposium May 15 in Carlisle.

"These grants provide an incredible opportunity to municipalities and community water systems that otherwise could not afford to develop programs to protect their sources of drinking water," Hess said. "Thousands of Pennsylvanians will benefit from source-water protection programs that will ensure safe drinking water in their communities."

The recipients will use the grants to develop local programs that will protect their sources of drinking water under DEP's Source Water Protection Program.

Source water protection programs are locally designed, voluntary efforts to protect drinking water sources used by public water systems. They usually take one of two forms — watershed protection for surface-water sources or wellhead protection for groundwater sources — or may involve both.

"Source-water protection grants complement Pennsylvania's Growing Greener program by helping communities and water suppliers protect public health and their watersheds," Hess said.

More than 250 people attended DEP's Groundwater Symposium in Carlisle. The symposium brought together federal, state, and local scientists and managers who are involved with groundwater and watershed protection.

The symposium included a variety of sessions covering a wide range of groundwater issues such as state and community projects and programs to protect groundwater, water-quantity issues, and various threats to clean groundwater.

In his comments, Hess urged the state legislature to pass the Water Resources Conservation and Protection Act to update the state's water plan and to identify critical water planning areas.

"Water is one of Pennsylvania's most precious resources," Hess said. "With more than 83,000 miles of streams, nearly 4,000 lakes and over 80 trillion gallons of groundwater, our water resources are critical to our economy and the survival of natural systems and habitats."

Following is the list of source water protection grant recipients by county:

- Blair — Martinsburg Municipal Authority, $49,569.45.
- Bradford — Canton Borough Authority, $19,375.
- Butler — Municipal Authority of Buffalo Township, $95,000.
- Cumberland — South Middleton Township, $48,640.25.
- Fayette — Mountain Water Association, $50,000.
- Franklin — Greencastle Area Water Authority, $49,400.
- Lycoming — Montgomery Water and Sewer Authority, $29,067.05.
- McKean — Smethport Borough, $17,651; Mount Jewett Borough Authority, $18,126; Port Allegany Borough Municipal Authority, $23,850.
- Monroe — Twin Falls Mobile Home Park, $13,535.25.
- Montgomery — Borough of East Greenville, $60,099.
- Potter — Austin Borough, $20,625; Northern Tier Children's Home, $27,275; Galeton Borough Authority, $29,378; Genesee Township Water Authority, $20,625.
- Philadelphia — Philadelphia Water Department, Office of Watersheds, $199,932.59.
- Tioga — Tioga Borough, $36,505; Wellsboro Municipal Authority, $33,647.75.
- Venango — Barkeysville Municipal Authority, $31,260.
- Wayne — Roamingwood Sewer and Water Association, $29,922.
- York — Dillsburg Area Authority, $50,000; Franklintown Borough Municipal Authority, $50,000; and Wrightsville Borough Municipal Authority, $45,900.

LEAD Maryland Seeks Future Agriculture Leaders

WESTMINSTER, Md. — LEAD Maryland, a nonprofit organization dedicated to developing leadership for agriculture and rural communities, is accepting applications for its third class which begins in February 2003. The application deadline for LEAD Maryland fellowships is Oct. 1. Finalists will be interviewed and a class of up to 25 fellows will be named by the end of 2002.

"LEAD Maryland is an extremely valuable program for developing the next generation of rural leaders," says Bradley H. Powers, deputy secretary of the Maryland Department of Agriculture and LEAD Maryland board member. "In addition to learning from nationally and internationally — recognized experts, each fellow brings experiences and perspectives to the class that enhance the strength and breadth of the program."

Farmers, government managers, and representatives of private companies and nonprofit organizations all benefit from enrolling in the two-year program. Besides a series of eight three-day seminars, fellows participate in a study tour to Washington, D.C. and to an international location to help the leaders-in-training compare and contrast political, economic, social and cultural issues. Class I traveled to Belgium and the Netherlands and Class II plans to travel to Cuba in January.

Candace Lohr, a member of Class II whose family owns and operates a fruit and vegetable operation in Harford County signed up for the program because it seemed to be a great opportunity to meet more people in production agriculture and to expand on her agriculture knowledge. "I am working with 22 other great people involved in agriculture," she said. "It's given me a more rounded look on agriculture."

The LEAD acronym stands for Leadership, Education, Action and Development — all qualities that are taught in the class. Successful candidates will have demonstrated emerging leadership abilities as well as a genuine interest in agricultural and societal issues. Fellows learn through lecture, discussion, self-assessment, group activities and by completing a leadership project. Graduates go on to serve their industry, community, organizations and to serve through public office.

The five founding organizations are the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Maryland Farm Bureau, Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation, Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board, and the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension.

Past and current fellows are from Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Caroline, Carroll, Cecil, Charles, Frederick, Harford, Kent, Montgomery, Queen Anne's, St. Mary's, Talbot, Wicomico, and Worcester counties.

For further information about the program, contact Susan Harrison, executive director of LEAD Maryland, at (410) 827-8056 x136 or sh194@umail.umd.edu.

Northeast Order Uniform Price Announced For April

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Marketing Area, has announced that the statistical uniform price paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order for April 2002 is $12.94 per hundredweight ($1.11 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The April statistical uniform price is $12.84 for delivery to plants in New York, N.Y., and $12.74 for delivery to plants in Philadelphia. The statistical uniform price is the benchmark minimum producer blend price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks and by the location of the plant(s) to which the farm's milk is delivered.

Mr. Rasmussen also stated that the producer price differential (PPD) for April is $2.09 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool on a hundredweight basis. The PPD, which is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components, is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant. The statistical uniform price and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the more distant the plant receiving producer milk is from Suffolk County, Mass.

The class prices for milk pooled in April are as follows: Class I, $14.72 (Suffolk County, Mass.); Class II, $11.88; Class III, $10.85; and Class IV, $11.09. Comparable prices for April 2001 were: Class I $16.69, Class II $15.10, Class III $12.06, and Class IV price $14.41. The component values for April are protein, $2.0109 per pound; butterfat, $1.2890 per pound; other solids, $0.0566 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.7575 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 2.241 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 38.9 percent of producer milk receipts. The average Class I utilization was 41.2 percent in April 2001.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 15.4 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 31.7 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 14.0 percent of the total.

Vinexpo Comes To U.S.

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Vinexpo is one of the largest wine trade conventions in the world and takes place every other year in Bordeaux, France. For the first time, it is coming to the U.S. at the Jacob Javits Convention Center in New York City Oct. 22-24.

If there is anything having to do with wine production, vineyards, selling wines, enjoying wines and anything remotely connected to wine, it will be at this meeting. There are hundreds, if not thousands of vendors represented. It is a daunting convention to see — somewhat like running a marathon over three days. Best of all, it is absolutely free to members of the wine industry, related hospitality trades, and the press.

If you need equipment for your vineyard or winery or winery tasting room, this is the place to find it.

Find more information and register online at www.vinexpo.com or call them at (800) 284-6976.

BOOST PRODUCTION IN THIN ALFALFA FIELDS

No till drill Century BMR Sorghum Sudan into your old stands of alfalfa after first cutting to boost the tonnage this summer. Century BMR is high in protein, digestibility and sugars. The BMR (Brown Mid Rib) Trait significantly increases digestibility without hurting the yield. Has potential to double the yield of thin old stands.

Makes high quality balage or haylage. Cows go for it and milk well on Century BMR. Grazers are very happy with the performance of Century BMR to fill in the "Summer Slump."

MEGA MILLET Hybrid Forage Pearl Millet is a new delayed maturing forage millet similar to Sorghum Sudan but has NO PRUSSIC ACID thus it's SAFE FOR HORSES. Yields aren't as high as MegaGreen but quality is even higher. Mega Millet should be grazed at 12 to 24 inches leaving a 6 inch stubble. Our cows pick up milk when grazing Mega Millet.

Mega Millet is widely adapted for different soil types and is very drought tolerant. It requires hot weather for maximum growth. Do not plant until soil temperature is 65 to 75 degrees.

BH533 110 Day Corn for Silage or Grain. Widely adapted. Good digestibility and standability, high yields.

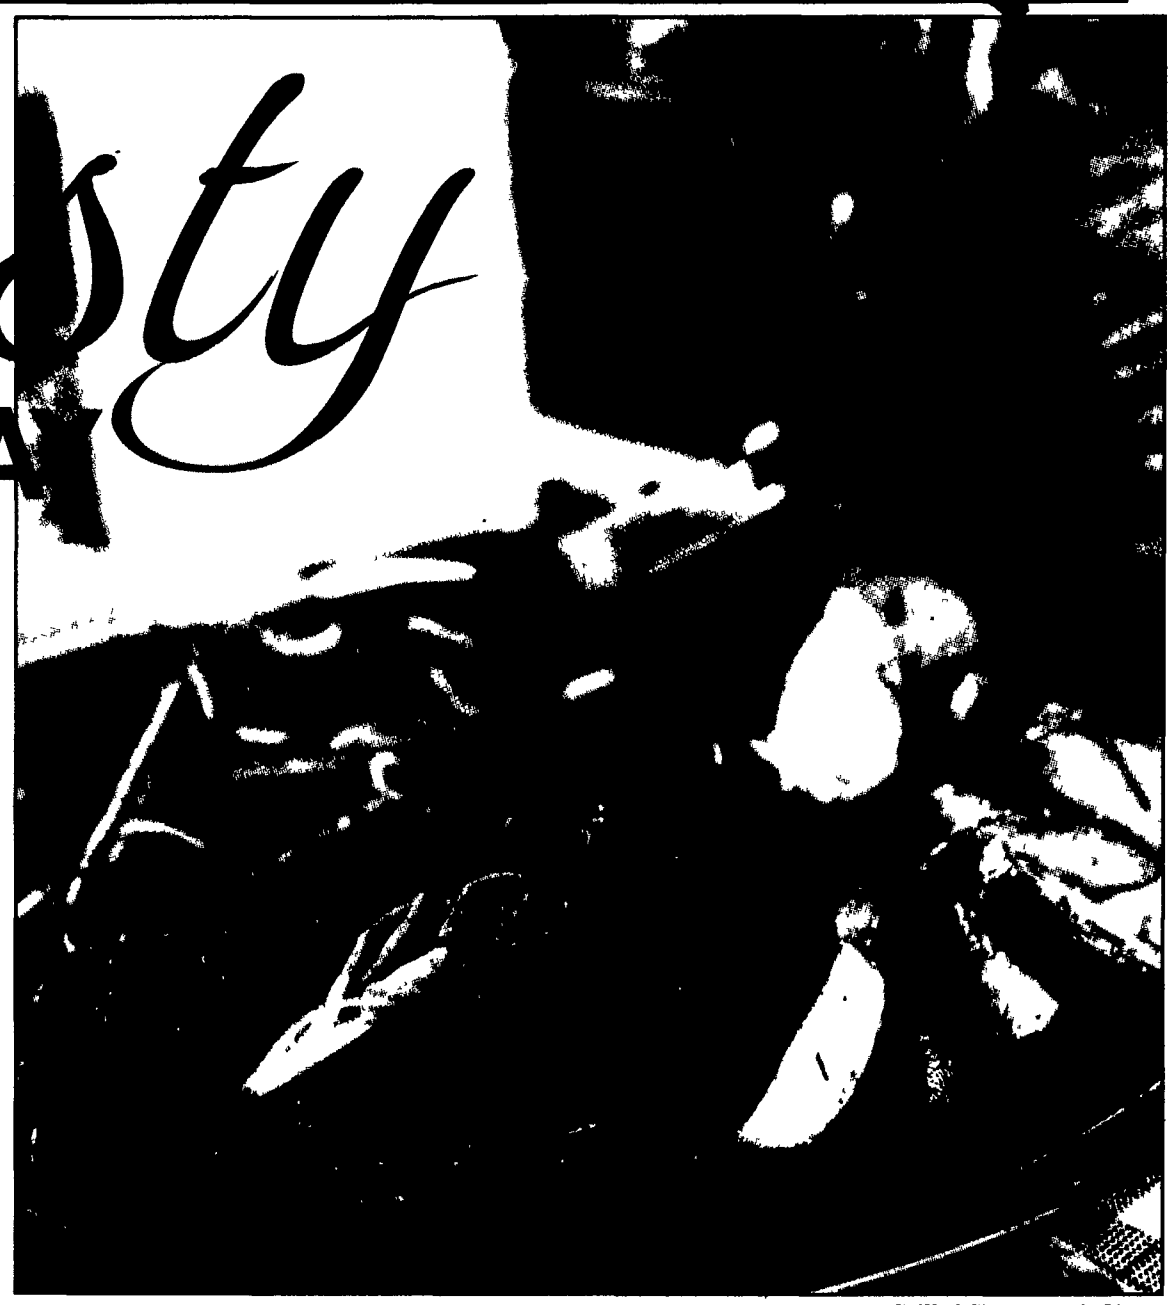
Tasty MEMORIAL DAY DELIGHTS



Grilled Sherry Pork Chops

Memorial Day weekend always calls to mind images of warm days and cool nights, gentle breezes and barbecuing. This year why not treat yourself and some friends to great barbecue recipes featuring an old standby, molasses.

The savory sweetness of all-natural molasses will impart moistness and a delicate caramel aroma to all kinds of recipes.

Follow up your tangy new creations with a drink that's as pretty as a summer's day and the perfect complement to one too. Lemon juice from concentrate will add the zing you're looking for in many of your summer recipes

TIPS FOR USING LEMON JUICE FROM CONCENTRATE

- Keep meats, poultry and fish moist while grilling—just brush lemon juice on several times
- Add flavor without added salt or calories.
- Substitute for vinegar or wine in marinades and dressings
- Use to help tenderize meat and poultry while marinating.
- Brush on fruits/veggies to prevent/slow browning
- Clean and freshen cutting boards
- Remove odors (i.e garlic) from hands
- Liven up beverages

TIPS FOR USING MOLASSES

- Use molasses in coffee, tea or decaffeinated beverages instead of sugar or artificial sweeteners.
- Add molasses to your favorite hot cereal
- Dip fresh apple slices in lemon juice, then in molasses; sprinkle with a cinnamon-sugar mix
- Substitute molasses in place of sugar in your recipes in the following amounts:

In place of this much sugar	Use this much molasses	And reduce liquid by
1 cup	1 cup	1/3 cup
3/4 cup	3/4 cup	1/4 cup
2/3 cup	2/3 cup	1/4 cup
1/2 cup	1/2 cup	3 tablespoons
1/3 cup	1/3 cup	2 tablespoons
1/4 cup	1/4 cup	1 tablespoon

Note: Don't reduce amount of oil the recipe may call for; liquids to be reduced are water or any type of milk. This substitution will produce a more moist baked product that will stay fresh longer.

Frozen Daiquiri Slush and Refreshing Berryade

Frozen Daiquiri Slush

2 cups water
2/3 cup sugar
1/2 cup lemon juice from concentrate
1/2 cup lime juice from concentrate
1 (1-liter) bottle carbonated water, chilled

Combine water, sugar, lemon juice from concentrate, and lime juice from concentrate, in medium-sized bowl; stir until sugar dissolves. Pour into 2-quart square baking dish. Freeze at least 6 hours or until firm.

To serve, scrape across surface with large spoon and place slush in glasses. Add carbonated water, stir to mix.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Grilled Sherry Pork Chops

1/4 cup sherry cooking wine
1/4 cup molasses
2 tablespoons soy sauce
4 pork chops (1-inch thick)

In plastic bowl, combine sherry, molasses and soy sauce; pour over pork chops Cover, refrigerate 30 minutes. Prepare grill. Drain pork chops Grill pork chops over medium-high heat 20 to 30 minutes or until pork is no longer pink in center, turning once and brushing frequently with marinade.

Note: Discard any remaining marinade. Do not baste during last 5 minutes of grilling

Makes 4 servings.

Refreshing Berryade

6 1/2 cups water, divided
2 cups fresh or frozen unsweetened raspberries
1 cup sugar
1 cup lemon juice from concentrate
Ice Cubes

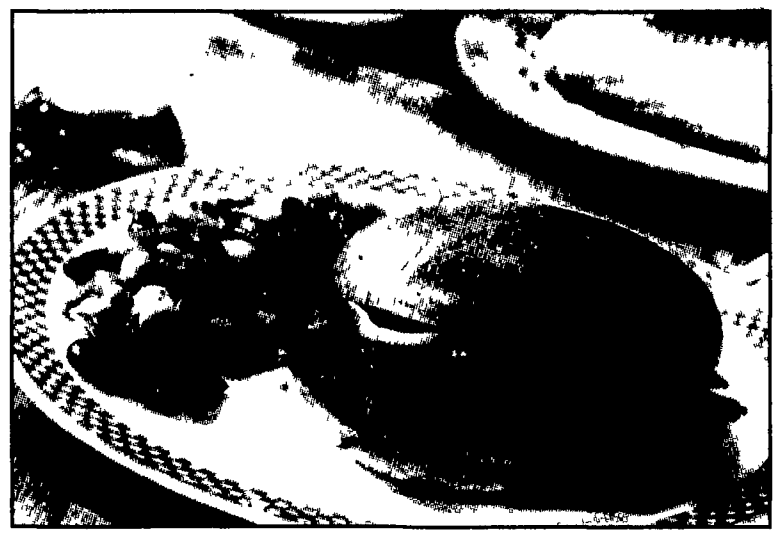
Combine 3 cups water, 2 cups raspberries and sugar in large saucepan. Bring just to a boil, stirring to dissolve sugar. Remove from heat. Cover and let stand 20 minutes.

Press mixture through fine-mesh sieve, discard seeds. Transfer to pitcher. Stir in remaining 3 1/2 cups water and lemon juice from concentrate Chill at least 3 hours. Serve over ice cubes. Garnish with fresh raspberries if desired

Strawberryade

Substitute strawberries for raspberries. Add 1 or 2 drops red food coloring if desired. Proceed as directed.

Makes 8 servings.



Tangy Barbecue Chicken Sandwiches

Tangy Barbecue Chicken Sandwiches

8 medium skinless,boneless chicken breast halves (2 pounds)
2 cups water, divided
1 cup lemon juice from concentrate
3/4 cup barbecue sauce
1/2 cup lemon juice from concentrate
1/3 cup molasses
6 to 8 hoagie buns, split
Green bell pepper slices or pickled jalapeño peppers, optional

Rinse chicken; pat dry. Combine water and 1 cup lemon juice from concentrate in large skillet Add chicken.

Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 12 to 14 minutes or until chicken is tender and no longer pink. Drain well. Shred with 2 forks.

Combine barbecue sauce, 1/2 cup lemon juice from concentrate and molasses in medium saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, stir in shredded chicken and heat through.

Serve on a bun with green pepper slices or jalapeño peppers if desired.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

A birdbath was never on my backyard agenda.

Why would we need one?

Several ponds bless the meadow below the house, the first almost within the proverbial "spitting distance" of the back porch. Plus, a stream — sparse at the moment — resurfaces just past the ponds. So we have lots of places for birds to bathe and drink.

"Mom, you must get Grandma's birdbath," our daughter admonished me as our extended family was winding down the intensive several-week cleanup of my parents' home. The old, poured concrete birdbath which sat in their terraced backyard garden had never even entered my mind. Along with my brothers, nephew and nieces, we had been concentrating simply on sorting through household "stuff."

Stuff. Our place has its share; your's may, too. Cleaning out a parent or relative's property can convert one into an avowed disciple of getting rid of stuff. (Except that probably won't happen and our kids will be lamenting in future years: "Where did they get all this stuff?").

Based on personal experience and similar tales related by friends, I've concluded that there are three categories of things which people accumulate in their lives, beyond significant property such as real-estate, investments, vehicles, etc.

At the top range of personal accumulations are "things." Things are those pieces which have antique, historic, or serious sentimental value to someone. Old family photos and letters. Special pieces of china or furniture or jewelry or collections or things passed down through the family. If only some clue had been left as to who or why or what their relevance is exactly.

At the other range is "junk." And that's pretty much self-descriptive. Not to forget that what is junk to me, may be, things to you. And vice-versa. Which keeps antiquers, flea market, and yard-sale enthusiasts busy.

Most everything else falls into the category of "stuff." Some of the stuff from our parents house has found a home here (hence the boxes of stuff still upstairs). My youngest brother has become the keeper of a large trunk of stuff and some things until some future date, when it may all become junk to others a generation or two down the DNA trail.

To some, the nondescript concrete birdbath would have been junk. None of us has a clue where it came from, most likely one of the public sales dad loved to attend, accumulating more junk. The birdbath bore no sentimental memories from our childhoods. It was just an ornament in the backyard of the home our parents had moved to after we had all grown and moved away. Except when it rained, I don't recall ever seeing it filled with water.

But, for our household of bird lovers and gardeners, the birdbath did seemed a natural fit. And no one else wanted it. The Farmer, who moved it with numerous other pickup-truck loads of things, stuff and junk, plunked it into a then-barren bed outside the east kitchen window, mostly because it was a handy spot.

In recent weeks, tulips, hostas, columbine, lilies and a nearby small rhododendron bush pushed up around the base of the birdbath, leafed out, filled the bed and begun blooming. When the weather warmed, I began filling it, dumping the water every few days to clean and refresh it. The morning I glanced out the window to spy two robins vigorously splashing in the shallow basin, chasing off other wannabe bathers, cemented my sentiment that the birdbath had come home.

Surrounded by greenery and blossoms, our backyard birds obviously enjoying it as it was intended, the old concrete yard ornament has been elevated from stuff to a special family thing.

On this Memorial Day weekend, when our hearts remember and prayerfully offer thanks for those who gave their lives for us, in many ways, and those we loved and lost, many folks will take flowers to graves.

And some of us will freshen the water in a memorial birdbath.

Home-Canning Workshop

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Remember those delicious home-canned goods that Grandma used to put up from her backyard garden? Canning procedures have changed dramatically over the years, but many folks still look forward to eating the "fruits of their labor" over the winter months with home preserved foods.

To make sure you don't endanger your family's health by following out-of-date canning instructions, Penn State Cooperative Extension is offering a hands-on workshop to teach to proper methods of home canning.

The three-hour session will be conducted on Thursday, May 30 session A from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and session B from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Montgomery County 4-H Center on Rt. 113 in Creamery.

Participants will learn the latest methods of using a boiling water bath and a pressure canner. They will receive a comprehensive Cooperative Extension canning book and take home two jars of properly processed fruits and vegetables.

Registration is required and class size is limited. There is a cost of $20 per person. To register, call the extension office at (610) 489-4315

Sarah Dell Reigns As Blair County Dairy Princess

KRISTIN RUSSELL
Blair Co. Correspondent

TIPTON (Blair Co.) — Sarah Dell was crowned Blair County Dairy Princess and Lydia Dively, alternate, on Saturday, May 18 at Delgrosso's Amusement Park outdoor stage.

Temperatures hovered only in the mid to lower 40's throughout the evening's festivities, making the 2002-2003 Blair County Dairy Princess pageant one of the coldest on record.

Despite the miserable outdoor conditions, the contestants presented their speeches with professionalism and enthusiasm to the crowd of about 150.

Mistress of Ceremonies for the pageant was TV-10 morning and mid-day news anchor and former PA Alternate Dairy Princess Amy Mearkle-Sylvester.

Sarah's presentation, "Agro-terrorism: The Next 9-11?" gripped the listener as she explained how an attack on American agriculture could be as life-changing as the events of September 11, 2001.

Sarah spoke with confidence and ease, stepping away from the podium to deliver her message, one of both concern and a positive call to action.

During the impromptu question, Sarah was asked the following question: "Many people are critical of youth today. What is one way you feel you can have a positive impact on our American society?"

Sarah responded that she felt that presenting a wholesome image, whether she was promoting milk and dairy products or just out in the public, would be her way of having a positive impact on society.

Sarah is the 16-year-old daughter of Leon and Elaine Dell, Martinsburg. The Dells are dairy farmers in the Clover Creek area of Blair County.

After receiving her new tiara and sash, Sarah was presented with a check for $200 from Allied Milk Producers by secretary Jan Itle. This money is given by Allied to help the princess and her family offset travel and wardrobe expenses for the year.

Sarah was also given a chance to address the audience. She thanked everyone for coming out to the pageant and pledged to do her best to promote the dairy industry in Blair County during her year as princess.

Lydia's speech, "We are one" was a look at how other English-speaking countries promote their dairy industries. She shared with the audience information about dairy promotion in Canada, the UK, New Zealand and Australia. Using pictures of their logos and examples of their tag lines and promotional campaigns, Lydia illustrated that dairy farmers of the world share a common interest in promoting the sale of their products. For Lydia's impromptu question she was asked how the events of Sept. 11th personally affected her or changed her life. Lydia shared that she has a friend in New York City and a cousin that works at the Pentagon, so she was very concerned for their safety initially. She also told the audience that she is still in disbelief that something like that could happen in America.

Lydia is the 17-year-old daughter of Andrew and Lenette Dively of Claysburg. The Dively's have sold their dairy farm due to health problems, but continue their connection to the dairy industry through Andrew's employment at Mill Hill Agway in Williamsburg.

The judges for the evening were Raylene Russell, agriculture teacher at Southern Huntingdon High School and former Sullivan County Dairy Princess; Ronnie Reese, dairy farmer from Centre County, and Mike Mowrer, dairy farmer from Huntingdon County and father of the reigning Pennsylvania Dairy Princess, Rebecca Mowrer. Each contestant had an interview with the three judges and ate dinner with the judges before the pageant.

Toward the conclusion of the pageant 2001-2002 Blair County Dairy Princess Emily Kirsch shared her closing remarks with the crowd. She stated that her experience as dairy princess had been wonderful and challenging. She cited the friendships made with other county dairy princesses and her experiences at the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess pageant as some of the highlights. Emily was chosen as a state finalist and awarded honorable mention for both her speech and skit at the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Pageant last September.

Chairwoman Twila Bigelow presented Emily with a scholarship for completing the second level of incentive during her reign. Her alternates were also given scholarship money and the 2001-2002 Dairy Maids and Misses were presented with "Got milk" duffle bags as a thank you for their work in promoting the dairy industry throughout the year.

Reigning Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Rebecca Mowrer was also in attendance. Rebecca spoke briefly the audience, congratulating the outgoing dairy princesses for a successful year of dairy promotion and encouraging the new royalty to make the most of every opportunity. Other special guests included Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes and State Representative Jerry Stern.

During the pageant other junior promoters were introduced. The youngest group are the future dairy princesses and their escorts the future farmers. These are children between the ages of 4 and 8. Their main event for the year is the pageant.

The future princesses include Lindsay Knab, 8-year-old daughter of David and Genee Knab of Hollidaysburg; Caroline Smith is the 7-year-old daughter of Doug and Veronica Smith of Martinsburg, Melinda Dively is the 8-year-old daughter of Andrew and Lenette Dively of Claysburg. Carrie Russell is the 7-year-old daughter of Rusty and Kristin Russell of Martinsburg, Tiffany Pheasant is the 6-year-old daughter of Wayne and Tammy Pheasant of Williamsburg, Alexis Pheasant is the 7-year-old daughter of Dale and Jodi Pheasant of Williamsburg, and Candis Baker is the 5-year-old daughter of James and Anita Baker of Martinsburg.

Escorts were Adam Russell, son of Rusty and Kristin Russell, Martinsburg; Colton Kensinger, Denny and Jody Kensinger; Joshua Russell, son of Rusty and Kristin Russell, Martinsburg; Jake Bigelow, son of Randy and Twila Bigelow, Williamsburg; Andrew Brumbaugh, son of Martin and Diane Brumbaugh of Curryville; Brandon Negly, son of Mark and Christine Negly, Martinsburg; and Ben Russell, son of Rusty and Kristin Russell, Martinsburg.

Dairy Misses are between the ages of 9-11 and help with promotions primarily during the summer months. Dairy Misses for the year will be Jeri Baker, 11-year-old daughter of James and Anita Baker of Martinsburg; Kristy Bigelow, 11-year-old daughter of Randy and Twila Bigelow of Williamsburg, Tara Brumbaugh, 10-year-old daughter of Martin and Diane Brumbaugh of Curryville; and Desteny Ramsey, 9-year-old daughter of Brenda and Ellery Amick of East Freedom.

Dairy Maids, between the ages of 12-15, serving this year are Emily Baker, 14-year-old daughter of James and Anita Baker of Martinsburg; Katy Bigelow, 12-year-old daughter of Randy and Twila Bigelow of Williamsburg; Jenna Smith, 13-year-old daughter of Max and Jeannie Smith of Martinsburg; Shasta Miller, 12 year-old daughter of Steve Clapper and Amy Miller of Williamsburg; Shanda Pheasant, 12-year-old daughter of Dale and Jodi Pheasant of Williamsburg; Tara Sollenberger, 12-year-old daughter of Earlyn and Lynette Sollenberger of Curryville, and Kelly Over, daughter of Glen and Cathy Over, Williamsburg.

Childcare Providers Workshop

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Childcare...for Mixed Ages is the title of the workshop being presented by Penn State Cooperative Extension. All childcare providers and interested parents can participate in the workshop at 7 p.m. on Thursday, June 6 at the Montgomery County 4-H Center on Rt. 113 in Collegeville.

Nancy Stevens, Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agent in Montgomery County, says "childcare providers will get ideas on how to make caring for children of different ages work. They will discuss some of the problems that arise when caring for children in a mixed age group."

Childcare providers can receive two Department of Public Welfare training credits for participating in the workshop.

For more information on the program, support materials and other services from "Better Kid Care Program," call the Montgomery County Extension Office at (610) 489-4315. Visit the Better Kid Care Website at www.betterkidcare.psu.edu.

What's In Your Glass? Calcium Needs Reviewed

The average 12 to 19-year-old male who drinks soda pop, drinks more than two cans a day (females are consuming one a day) which can add up to about 900 cans of soda pop (12 ounces) in a year.

Americans are consuming twice as much soda pop as they did 25 years ago. In addition, the market for non-carbonated, sweetened drinks like sports drinks, fruit-ades, and flavored iced teas is also on the rise. What is in your child's glass?

The concern is that these sweet beverages provide calories and sugar to the body, but do not offer other essential vitamins and minerals. There has been an association made with soda pop consumption and overweight and obesity because it can provide extra, non-nutritious calories and is often offered in very large sizes. Consuming extra calories, in addition to decreasing physical activity, may lead to gradual weight gain over years.

More importantly, by choosing these beverages, young people are not selecting milk, which does provide an important nutrient to the body—calcium.

Calcium is a key mineral that your body uses in many different ways; however, it is most noted for its role in bone and teeth strength. Eating and drinking enough calcium is important at any stage of life, but it is most critical during the pre-teen and young adult years. During the adolescent years (around 9-15), bones develop quickly. In fact, nearly half of all bone is formed during these years. Lifestyle choices at this time, such as getting enough calcium into your body, will effect the quality of bones in the future. Unfortunately, only 13 percent of girls and boys aged 12-19 are meeting their recommended need for calcium.

The recommended daily intake of calcium for youth aged 9-18 is 1300mg of calcium each day. As a reference, a glass of milk can provide about 300mg of calcium to the body. Young people should aim to eat or drink a food or beverage that is high in calcium at least four times a day! This can be easy if young adults chose a food or beverage high in calcium each time they have a meal or snack. It can taste good, too.

Not all calcium comes in a glass. Though milk (any flavor) is a concentrated source of calcium, most dairy products will also meet the body's craving for calcium. Foods such as low-fat yogurt, cheeses, custards, ice cream, puddings, powdered milk, and foods made with these items will be good sources of calcium. Some of your favorite foods may already fit—milkshakes, macaroni and cheese, cereal with milk, tacos, pizza, and sandwiches, to name a few. What other foods can you think of?

Kids and teens who do not like milk or dairy products can find calcium in foods/drinks such as calcium-fortified orange juice and other foods with calcium added such as cereals, cereal bars, and snacks. Other natural sources of calcium are soybeans, tofu (if preserved in calcium salts), some beans, salmon (canned with bones), greens, spinach, and broccoli, and almonds.

Look at the Nutrition Facts panel on the food label and search for the amount of calcium in that product. It is listed as a percent, pick a food or drink with at least 10 percent of the recommended amount of calcium per serving.

In addition to maintaining adequate intakes of calcium, it is important to keep bones healthy by being physically active, avoiding low body weights or extreme diets, getting outside in the sunshine, and choosing not to smoke cigarette or drink large amounts of alcohol. These are other lifestyle choices a parent or guardian may want to discuss with the young adults in their family. Finally, being a positive role model for young adults can help them to make healthy habits a part of their lives.

To celebrate National Osteoporosis Prevention Month in May, learn more about calcium. Contact your county's Penn State Cooperative Extension office. Ask for publications entitled: "Bone Builders: Are You Getting Enough Calcium? And "Bone Builders: Support Your Bones with Healthy Habits." On the Internet, check out whymilk.com.

Brenda's Secrets For Turning Castaways Into Flowering Assets

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — A bathtub in the front yard? An ironing board in the side yard?

That's exactly what passersby see and much more when traveling past Ed and Brenda Sensenig's home, 188 S. Market St., along a rural road in Ephrata.

Always on the lookout for novel flower containers to incorporate into her landscaping decor, Brenda snatches up mundane castaways from yard sales and auctions.

The old adage that one man's junk is another man's treasure is certainly proven with one glance at Brenda's yard.

Except in this case, much more than a casual glance is required to capture the full magnitude of Brenda's ability to turn junk into flowering assets.

The yard and home of this bubbly "over 50" woman has been featured on numerous house tours, and in newspaper and magazine articles. These days, she is digging into dirt from sunup to sundown to plant and get things in order on the couple's 1½-acre plot.

Brenda said her adventure with the unusual began eight years ago, after things had settled down from having four new grandchildren added in one year.

That's when she dug out a pond using a rototiller and shovel.

"Things sort of evolved ever since then," Brenda said. First she picked up rocks to add to the landscape. She built a stream, a patio, and had a wooden bridge installed across the stream.

At yard sales she kept seeing items that she envisioned would make great containers for container gardening.

"I just kept buying things. They cost only a few dollars—it's a lot cheaper than buying new planters and containers. I mean what could hold more flowers than a bed?" she asked.

So that white-painted iron bed bursts with color during the summer season.

The bathtub makes an ideal water garden. Circulating pumps keep the shower running throughout the outdoor season.

There's more than one way to use an ironing board.

If she had a bathtub and a bed, Brenda figured she might as well turn that spot in the yard into "a bed and bath." She added a washbowl planted with petunias, and a hampers, washtubs, and a few other items.

It seemed only natural to hang a pair of her husband's jeans nearby. She stitched the pant legs shut, filled them with plastic peanuts, and fastened a plastic pot inside the waistline with twistie ties. Voila! A unique container to hold flowering geraniums.

The ironing board was Brenda's mother's. Now it's covered with cat and kitten plants.

Another area, dubbed "Maw Maw's Nursery" features a toddler bed, pedal car, and swing covered and multiplying with flowers.

Although the landscaping ideas mostly flower from Brenda's imagination, she said her husband Ed helps out by painting many of the objects and assists with the layout of an outdoor railroad. That's right. In the front of the house is a wonderful train chugging along through the miniature village.

"I do the landscaping. I don't use any weed killers and sprays. I use lots of mulch — four dumploads, in fact."

Under the mulch lies a secret weapon against weeds. Brenda buys old sheets at garage sales, tears them up, lays them in position, and covers them with mulch. The sheets keep weeds from popping up but allows the moisture to seep through and eventually disintegrates into the soil.

"If I want to plant a flower, all I need to do is cut a hole in the sheet," Brenda said.

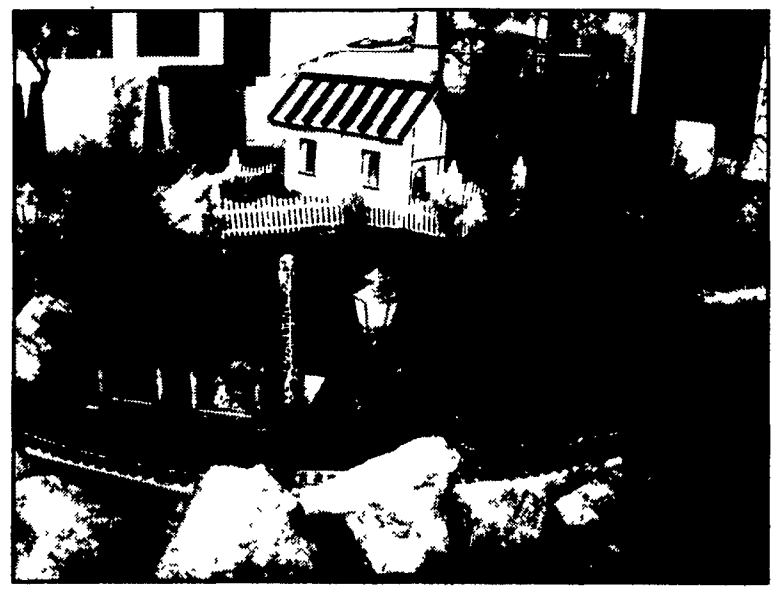
Strangers often tour the grounds surrounding the Sensenig home. Brenda dug out the pond and stream by herself.

"Bed and Bath" is what Brenda designated this area of the yard. It features an iron bed, washbowl, hamper, and a clawfoot tub with a circulating pump that keeps the shower running throughout the summer. Visitors inspect a pair of jeans that hold a flower pot, which will burst forth with colorful blooms later in the season.



This outdoor railroad can be admired by motorists traveling past the Sensenigs' home and from inside the home's sunroom.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

June is the month of flowers. We even have some in May as I write this article. On Saturday a grandchild visited me as I hoed the garden. We picked a big bouquet of buttercups that I foolishly allowed to grow in my iris bed. The one plant is now 10 plants. When she saw a plot of yellow in the nearby meadow, she ran to open a gate and gather some of them. I wish that I had had a camera to take her picture.

Our grandchildren cover several decades in age. The day that the oldest graduated from Duke University in North Carolina the youngest, at one year of age, was falling off a chair at the sink in his home in Maine. How much will happen until this little boy graduates from college?

Sports have become so much more important in the lives of youngsters than they were 50 years ago. Our children "tried out" for baseball and soccer but they were secondary to work on the farm. It seems that things have turned around and farm chores are secondary.

Some of our grandchildren are being raised in homes with no pets. Others have cats and dogs in their homes. Those on the farm have a lot of animals to tend. There are about 150 heifers, five little pigs, three big dogs, and more cats than we know about.

Farm children can't help but get into the habit of working. There is always something that needs to be done — a big lawn to mow, animals to bring up to the barn from the meadow, a shed to paint, a silo to fill or corn to plant.

We grandparents can only hope that they all grow up to be responsible citizens.

Food Safety, Sanitation Courses Offered

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension will offer the Food Safety and Sanitation Certification Course (ServSafe) on Thursdays, June 6 and 13 at the Montgomery County 4-H Center, one mile south of 113 and 73 in Creamery.

QUESTION — A reader wants some diabetic bread recipes that can be made in a bread machine.

ANSWER — Herbert Spangler requested a recipe for dandelion wine. Thanks to an anonymous reader for sending the following recipe, which they make to serve at Christmas. The recipe will produce five gallons, double everything for 10 gallons.

Dandelion Wine

5 quarts dandelion flowers (no stems)
Place dandelions into 5-gallon crock and pour two gallons of hot water over them. Let stand 24 hours.

Remove flowers by straining the mixture through a cloth. Add six oranges and 6 lemons, cut up including peel. Add 5 pounds granulated sugar. Let mixture set three days.

After this period, remove orange and lemon sections by straining through cloth. Add two 46-ounce cans pineapple juice, two 46-ounce cans apricot juice, two 46-ounce cans orange juice, 8-ounces lemon juice, 10 pounds granulated sugar. (The juice should be strained through a cloth before adding). Add enough water to fill crock and stir well.

Remove mixture from the crock and pour into a five gallon jug (or five one-gallon jugs). Fermentation will begin. Keep the jug or jugs filled to the top at all times by adding water each day. Be sure the jug or jugs are filled at all times until fermentation ends. When fermentation ends, place on each jug and let set until Christmas.

Thanks to Joan Yarnall, Gilbertsville, for sending her husband's grandmother's recipe, which she writes produces "good stuff." She writes that dandelion flowers make better wine if the flowers are picked first thing in the morning.

Dandelion Wine

5 quarts dandelion flowers
1 lemon, cut up, (skin and pulp)
5 pounds granulated sugar
3 quarts boiling water
2 oranges
1 yeast cake

Let flowers set in water overnight. Strain. Add lemon, oranges, sugar, and yeast to flower juice. Let set overnight or two nights. Bottle into quart jars. Do not seal until it stops fermenting. Add sugar water if necessary.

ANSWER — Peggy Hess, Lititz, wanted a recipe to make barrel dill pickles. Thanks to Leah Glick, Denver, for sending this recipe that she clipped from this column in 1995.

Barrel Kosher Dill Pickles

2 gallons pickles
3 quarts water
1 teaspoon crushed red peppers
1 cup coarse salt
20 black peppercorns
5 bay leaves, crushed
8 stalks dill
Boil together 5 minutes. Cool.
Add:
1¾ cups vinegar
8-12 cloves fresh garlic
Pack pickles and liquid into jars. Refrigerate.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe for making homemade noodles to cook with beef or chicken broth. Thanks to a subscriber for sending recipes for both regular and whole wheat noodles. She writes that beginners should not try to make noodles in damp weather.

Noodle Dough

On a large pastry board or marble table top, make a well with:
⅔ cup all-purpose flour
Drop into flour:
1 egg
Barely combine the following ingredients:
1 tablespoon water
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon oil

Work the mixture with your hands, folding the flour over the egg until the dough can be rolled into a ball and comes clean from the hands.

Knead the dough as you would knead bread, about 10 minutes. Let stand, covered, for about one hour.

Roll the dough, pulling it as you wrap it around the rolling pin, stretching it a little more each time. Continue to sprinkle it with flour between each rolling and stretching to keep the dough from sticking to the pin or board or developing holes. Repeat this procedure about 10 times until the dough is paper thin and translucent.

Let dough dry about 30 minutes. You may hang it as the Neapolitans do—like laundry on a line—over a piece of foil or plastic.

Before dough is brittle, roll up like a scroll and cut on the bias into strips on any width you prefer: ⅛-inch for soup or 1-inch for lasagna. Allow about 3 tablespoons uncooked noodles for each quart of soup. Cook the noodles rapidly in boiling salted water for about 10 minutes. Drain and quickly add to soup.

If stored for future use, keep noodles dry and uncooked in an air-tight container.

Whole-Wheat Noodles

Beat until very light:
3 eggs yolks
1 whole egg
Beat in:
4 tablespoons cold water
1 teaspoon salt
Work dough with hands:
2 cups whole-wheat pastry flour

Divide dough into three parts. Roll out each piece as thin as possible on lightly floured board. Place between two towels until partially dry. Remove from towels, roll up like a jelly roll, and with a sharp knife, cut into desired noodle width. Shake out noodles and dry before storing.

Last Week To Enter Dairy Recipe Drawing

June Dairy Month is "mooving" into the calendar next week. This is your last chance to send in your favorite recipe using dairy products for Lancaster Farming's annual dairy recipe drawing.

June Dairy Month salutes dairy farmers everywhere for their hard work in providing milk, which we so often take for granted. Lancaster Farming's annual drawing reminds us of all the wonderful dairy products available to produce culinary delights.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. These ingredients count as a dairy product: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your ingredients carefully. Margarine and nondairy substitutes such as frozen whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

With your entry, include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you and of your family is preferred. We and our readers love to "see" the people who send in the recipes.

Photographs will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the picture.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are at least 18-years-old. We require this because children who send in recipes often inadvertently miss measurements, ingredients or a part of the instructions.

Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address. If we do not have your complete mailing address, we cannot send your prize if you win.

Send entries immediately. Entries must be postmarked by June 3 to be eligible for the drawing. The state dairy princess and alternates will select the winners. Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winners will be printed in the June 29 issue.

Send entries to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522 or e-mail to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com.

Featured Recipe

Whether you celebrate Memorial Day with a casual backyard barbecue, patio party, or picnic, you will want to add this favorite of Morgantown reader V.J. Newswanger's to your menu.

Campfire potatoes make a tasty addition to any grilled meat entree.

Happy grilling!

CAMPFIRE POTATOES

5 medium potatoes, peeled, thinly sliced
1 medium onion, sliced
6 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup shredded cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons minced fresh parsley
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
⅓ cup chicken broth

Place potatoes and onion on a large piece of heavy-duty foil (about 20x20-inch); dot with butter. Combine the cheese, parsley, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper; sprinkle over potatoes. Fold foil around potatoes and add broth. Seal edges of foil well. Grill, covered, over medium coals for 35-40 minutes or until potatoes are tender. 4-6 servings.

Nutrition Label Workshop

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — If you are a diabetic, have cardiac disease, need more information on weight management or want to be a better shopper and choose healthier foods you will want to attend this workshop. Understanding Nutrition Labels will be held Thursday, May 30, at the Agricultural Center, 1238 County Welfare Road, Leesport. The program is sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension - Berks County.

Come and learn the difference percentage of Daily Value, ingredients by weight, and fat calories. Information on serving sizes and sugar content (natural and added) will also be shared by Brenda Daelhousen, M.S., R.D., instructor.

Advance registration is requested. Cost is $1 for the session. Make check payable to Berks County Cooperative Extension Special Account and mail to Understanding Nutrition Labels, Berks County Cooperative Extension, 1238 County Welfare Road, Leesport, PA 19533-0520.

Herb Gardening

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Kathy Lesher, of Deer Creek Farm, Route 222, one mile north of Adamstown, will be speaking about Herb Gardening at Eicher Indian and Arts Museum on Sunday, June 2 at 2 p.m. Kathy grows more than 300 varieties of potted herbs at the Herb Farm owned by her and her husband, Jesse.

"Whether you own acres or only have room for one pot, you can grow herbs and enjoy a summer of tasty harvests," Kathy said. She will discuss some important gardening questions you need to ask yourself before you begin the garden, offer some suggestions for improving your soil conditions, and share the joy of growing herbs.

Kathy will demonstrate the planting of a kitchen garden in a pot and offer it as a door prize. Planting an herbal theme garden has become very popular. She will give you some ideas for creating a butterfly and hummingbird garden, a culinary garden, a walkable garden, a moonlight garden, a Native American garden and even a reproduction of the plants in Williamsburg's gardens.

"The possibilities are endless!" Kathy said.

Ruth Rogers, standing, manager of Eicher Indian Museum and Shop, helps Kathy Lesher prepare herb planters.

Helpful Hints About Calcium Supplements

• Calcium carbonate needs stomach acid to be absorbed well. Take with a meal.

• If you are 65 or older, consider calcium citrate which does not require the amount of stomach acid that calcium carbonate requires to be absorbed.

• Look for a USP symbol on supplement labels.

• Calcium supplements can cause constipation. Drink lots of water.

• Take a calcium supplement at bedtime with a snack and with meals.

• Do not take more than 2500 mg of calcium per day.

• Take iron supplements at different meals from calcium supplements.

• Calcium can also decrease the absorption of zinc.

• Calcium taken as supplements can interfere with the absorption of some medications. Discuss your use of calcium supplements with your health care provider.

• Vitamin D is also important to absorb calcium.

• Monitor the amount of Vitamin A you take as supplements.

• Avoid using bone meal, oyster shell and dolomite as calcium sources. They may contain lead and other heavy metals.

To determine if your calcium supplement is being dissolved in your body, do the following tests:

Place one calcium supplement tablet in six ounces of room temperature vinegar. Stir occasionally. In 30 minutes it should be dissolved. If it does not, it probably will not dissolve in your body either. Select another calcium supplement.

Pennsylvania Streams and Lakes

Stream MAP of Pennsylvania

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Why every paddler needs this map

Pennsylvania is loaded with great paddling waters. This new edition of the famous Pennsylvania Stream Map highlights navigable streams and rivers and shows the degree of difficulty (highest letter/number the most difficult), access points, dams and waterfalls.

Professor Higbee's® Stream Map of Pennsylvania is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind.

This 3-foot-by-5-foot color map shows virtually all of the 45,000 miles of Pennsylvania streams plus lakes.

Work, Fun, Ice Cream Too

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

TIMBERVILLE, Va. — Weston Heatwole, 11, and his brother, Trenton, 9, live on a farm where lots of people come to buy milk from their dad's cows at the new creamery he built. If not buying milk, the customers are at the family's garden market buying fresh vegetables.

They also come for ice cream, snacks, lunch and supper. They seem to like coming where everything sits smack dab in the middle of fields.

Not only that, but the boys guide grownups and youngsters around the petting zoo with pens for sheep, goats, peacocks, donkey, ducks, chickens, rabbits, pigs and, of course, cute baby calves.

The petting zoo keeps the brothers busy, but some days the brothers just want to be by themselves. That's why having a river near the house is pretty neat. At least on the stream bank, the shoes can be kicked off and in undisturbed privacy the boys can fish for bluegills. Or, just catch tadpoles and watch leaping frogs that hop across big rocks.

Although farm chores keep the boys busy, they enjoy meeting farm visitors who tell about living in places that Weston and Trenton have never heard of before.

That's why they don't mind too much, being polite enough to carry heavy bags for customers when they are ready to leave.

Other than that, every morning and evening Weston and Trenton have a duty to feed the hungry little Holsteins. This job keeps them busy for at least an hour.

To see the calves drinking from pails when breakfast or supper arrives is funny enough to make visitors laugh.

Some "hommies" are so young that Weston serves them milk in a bottle because they don't drink well enough from a bucket.

Brothers Weston and Trenton Heatwole are pictured together at the calf hutches. Two summers ago at a petting zoo in Israel, they met animals like camels and monkeys.

Recently, one of the calves wasn't feeling good and Weston heard about a home remedy that might help the animal recover. Everyday he combined two eggs and a teaspoon of salt in a bottle, put the lid on tight and shook it really well. Then he gave the goop to the sick calf.

Jiminy cricket, two weeks later Weston saw that the Holstein baby was feeling much better.

"The favorite part of work is to get it done," said Weston, sounding just like an adult.

Trenton shook his head up and down in agreement. Weston is up at 5 a.m. each day to get his share of chores over with, but his brother waits until 6 a.m.

Two summers ago Weston and Trenton got to see camels and monkeys close up when their family took a very long trip. They flew over the Atlantic Ocean to visit the country of Israel.

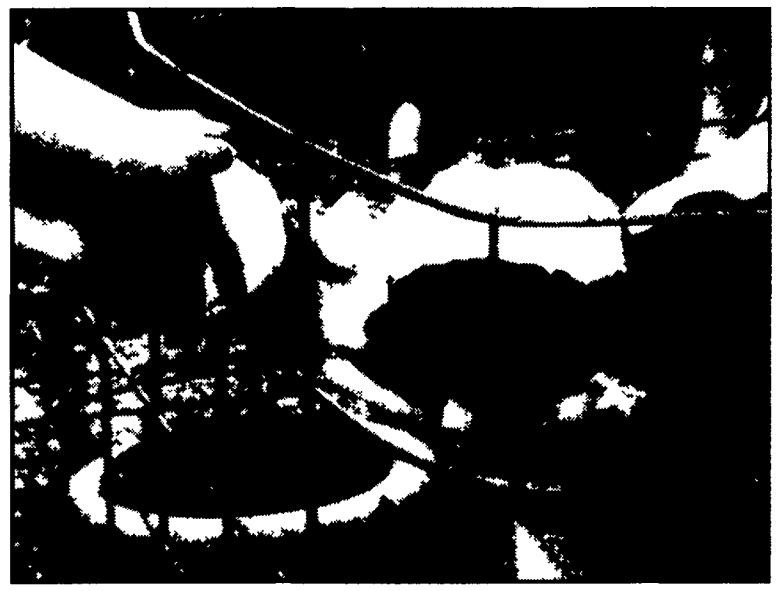
The worst part was being so many hours in an airplane.

"Flying across the ocean was too long," the brothers said.

Since school is out for the summer there will be even more chores for them, like helping Grandpa Rhodes mow the grass. Their mom says they will have to empty the trash, too, but they are allowed eating as much ice cream as they want because its a healthy dairy treat — hey, that's cool.

The brothers' family consists of parents, Leon and Ida Heatwole and teen-aged sisters, Andrea and Amber.

The Heatwole family lives happily (well, mostly happily), in Timberville, Virginia beside the North Fork of the Shenandoah River.



This little calf has to be bottle fed, but Weston is patient since the calf doesn't eat that well out of a bucket.

A hungry calf is drinking milk from a pail.

Here is a new batch of baby chicks for Weston and Trenton to take care of.

Here comes Trenton Heatwole on the golf cart. He is 9 and getting ready to feed calves in the evening.

Lebanon County To Conduct 30th Annual Dairy Princess Coronation

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The 30th annual Lebanon County Dairy Princess Coronation is scheduled for Saturday, June 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the Lebanon County Career and Technology Center. The evening will consist of the farewell of the 2001-2002 Dairy Royalty, "Digging into Dairy" Dessert Contest, various dairy related skits, and the crowning of the new Lebanon County dairy princess and her team.

There are two contestants vying for the dairy princess title, Kaleen Arnold and Laura Blauch. Kaleen Arnold is the 16-year-old daughter of Ken and Deb Arnold. Kaleen has two younger siblings, Kyle and Jeremy. Kaleen will be a junior at Northern Lebanon High School, where she is involved with FFA, softball, and track. Kaleen is a FFA reporter, and once held the office of FFA sentinel. She is also very active with the FFA's parliamentary procedure team. Kaleen enjoys art, crafts, softball, and FFA activities. Kaleen's father is an artificial inseminator.

Laura Blauch is the 17-year-old daughter of Eric and Connie Blauch. Laura has one younger brother, Chris. Laura will be a senior at Annville-Cleona High School, where she is involved in quiz bowl, chorus, band, school musicals, and Model U.N. Laura is a member of the local 4-H Dairy Club. She owns four dairy animals some of which are Holstein and others Brown Swiss. Laura enjoys musical performances, reading, showing cattle, and traveling. Laura's father works at a feed mill.

There are three candidates to be titled as dairy maid/dairy ambassador, Jessica Bross, Alex Werner, and Amanda Zuck. Jessica Bross is the 15-year-old daughter of Dennis and Patricia Bross. Jess will be entering the 11th grade at Tulpehocken High School, where she is actively involved in the FFA chapter. Jess is a member of the NorLebCo 4-H dairy club and the extra special puppy club. Jess owns dairy animals and lives on a dairy farm with her parents. Alex Werner is the 16-year-old son of Jeff and Sue Werner. Alex attends Northern Lebanon High School where he is active in the FFA chapter. Alex owns dairy animals. Amanda Zuck is the 12-year-old daughter of Jeff and Karen Zuck. Amanda will be entering the seventh grade at New Covenant Christian School where she is part of the soccer team. Amanda is a member of 4-H friends, Cedar Crest 4-H dairy club, and the junior choir. Amanda lives with her parents on their dairy farm.

There are two candidates to be crowned as li'l miss dairy princess, Sarandon Smith and Valerie Zuck. Sarandon is the 6-year-old daughter of Tom and Sondra Smith. She has three siblings, Greyson, Liana, and Maya. Sarandon will be entering the second grade of home schooling. She is involved in the cherub choir and soccer. Sarandon's grandparents live on a dairy farm and her father works for the American Dairy Association and the Pennsylvania dairy princess program.

Valerie Zuck is the 7-year-old daughter of Jeff and Karen Zuck. She has three siblings, Amanda, Bradley, and Travis.

Susquehanna County Promotion

Susquehanna County Dairy Maid Abbey Puzo serves strawberry sundaes at the Holstein Club Auction. Although the weather was freezing, the ice cream disappeared in a hurry. To promote milk, Abbey also prepared a meal using many dairy products in celebration of the birth of Annalise Paige, newest member of the Rusty and Sharon Ely family. Included in the basket of goodies were a "got milk" bottle, cow bib, and stuffed cow.

Dairy Calcium Key To Weight Loss

CHICAGO, Ill. — Studies conducted at the University of Tennessee show that getting your dairy dose of calcium-rich low fat milk — at least three 8-ounce glasses a day — may turn up your body's fat burning ability.

Researchers applied the results found in laboratory mice to the American population by analyzing the National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey (NHANES III) data set and found that body fat was lower in people who consumed more dairy products.

In a second study, researchers found that a diet high in low-fat dairy foods may cause fat cells to make less fat and turn on the machinery to breakdown fat, translating to a significantly lower risk of obesity.

In addition, research from Purdue University found that women who consumed at least 780 mg of calcium per day in their diets either lost or had less of an increase in body weight over a two-year period compared to the control group who got less calcium.

"There appear to be three key factors at work for optimal weight management with calcium — the increase in consumption of calcium, the source of calcium from dairy products and caloric levels of the overall eating plan including the calcium source," says Dr. Hill. "My best advice is to add three glasses of fat-free milk to your overall diet, control your overall caloric intake and exercise."

Wiatt concurs and also stresses to her clients to adopt an overall eating plan that includes a balanced diet from all food groups, being careful not to avoid any one specific group. She also suggests eating smaller meals several times a day to increase metabolism.

Most people fail to drink enough milk and that may be the first ingredient needed to shed a few pounds," Wiatt says.

'Custom-Driven' Is Swover Creek Farm's Motto

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

EDINBURG (Va.) — "We are a customer-driven business," said Lynn St. Clair of Swover Creek Farms, which direct markets its own beef, sundry berries, fresh vegetables, breads and cakes.

Lynn also does intensive gardening with raised beds that are easily managed.

'We want this to be the community store," she said. 'Everything we do, we do small."

'We don't have huge quantities," she added.

David St. Clair, her husband reported that customers are offered a little of many things rather than greater amounts in limited choices.

'We are going the variety aspect. As it grows, we will do more," he said.

That's why two years ago the St. Clairs planted five peach trees and are eagerly anticipating the time when peach production will begin.

This spring, doing all of it by hand, Lynn will plant 1,000 new strawberry plants. To ensure high fruit quality and production, she maintains a three or four year rotation in the strawberry patch, adding new plants annually while allowing certain other areas to rest.

Recently, Lynn decided that clover and buckwheat will be good to sow in the patch.

She expects to later mow the buckwheat for mulch.

The drought that was so besetting last fall in parts of the Shenandoah Valley had been a concern to Lynn, with regard to the precious strawberry supply. April rains, however, have been good, and she hopes when the strawberries reach maturity, there will be a decent-sized crop to pick. She predicts there may not be as many berries this spring as there wase last year.

Lynn's homemade jam is made from her industrious plucking of wild raspberries, blackberries, gooseberries, and currants. July is blueberry and blackberry month.

Although Swover Creek Farms is a small operation, there is never a shortage of tasks to be performed. Here the couple is joined by Bailey, one of their four dogs.

The St. Clairs report that "What is old is new again," because they have adopted the methods that bygone generations used.

'We are not organic," David says, "but we are sustainable."

Small-scale farming gives David a lot of satisfaction. He enjoys it. He wishes, wistfully, that he could devote more time to the business that he and Lynn are growing.

At present, however, he holds a full time, off-farm job while his spouse tends the plants, pulls the weeds, and checks the cattle following a typical morning walk with the dogs.

"We also do custom growing," Lynn said, citing an example of a customer who asked, very specifically, for Kentucky Wonder green beans. The variety has long been her favorite but she has had difficulty in finding it. Somebody else requested baby lima beans.

The St. Clairs own mixed Angus beef. A few days ago some registered, purebred Red Galloways arrived at Swover Creek Farms, including a bull and four cows.

"We got them because we are going to a managed feeding program," David said.

"Galloways forage better. They tend to eat less in winter and they don't need all that fat," he said, noting that Galloways have a double thickness of hair on their hide.

David said Swover Creek's goal is to sell seed stock to keep up a vanishing breed."

"The biggest thing is they are pastured," chimed in Lynn.

But even as the human company then ambled toward the fields, there was evidence that somewhere along its length, the electric fence had a weak spot. Why else would the Gallies have been contentedly grazing in a "greener" pasture?

"At least they are still on the farm," commented Lynn, dryly.

"We want to encourage people to know where their food comes from and we want them to be involved." David said.

So the buy-direct customers are treated hospitably when they come around to pick strawberries, or to buy kale, lettuce, onions, peas, flowers, pound cake, or just to ask questions.

While on site, they may take advantage of the gas grill and pavilion to eat a picnic-style meal with the food they brought. Or, perhaps hike by the waters of Swover Creek.

Visitors very likely will enjoy the orderly arrangement of raised beds, neat berry bushes, strawberry fields or the rotational grazing system that is designed to filter rain runoff.

In 1998, after purchasing the property from her grandfather, David and Lynn moved onto the farm that has been in Lynn's family for 100 years. The St. Clair's hope to have the farm officially designated a Virginia Century Farm, which requires having necessary documents for the honorary classification assembled and presented in an application.

Last summer David and Lynn enjoyed a surprise visit from a couple associated with the Chinese embassy in Washington D.C. It seems the pair found Swover Creek Farms listed as having "Virginia Grown" products in the Washington Post. Unbeknownst to the St. Clairs, the listing was picked up from an official booklet in which they had purchased an advertisement.

One Saturday night each month from May through September, David and Lynn have scheduled a social activity at the farm for friends, neighbors, and guests. May 18 features hamburgers and hot dogs. June 15 — Homemade strawberry ice cream with a notice it takes lots of elbow grease; July 20 — Hamburger cookoff; August 17 — Make your own omelet; Sept. 7 — Conicville Days.

Swover Creek Farms is a member of the Shenandoah Alternative Farmers Exchange or S.A.F.E. Several small family farms formed the organization to cooperatively market various meats and produce; to provide fun activities for planned farm visits, and to provide educational presentations.

EverGreens and Conicville Ostrich are the other S.A.F.E. members. All members sell items at farmers markets as well as their individual farms.

This method doesn't require precision. You just fold the edges of the sheet under to fit into the landscaped area, according to Brenda.

More than 80 topiary trees are planted and trimmed throughout the season on the outdoor grounds.

"I buy inexpensive yews and arborvitae bushes and shape them twice a year. I'm always snipping something," she said.

Participants on a recent tour admire more than 80 topiary trees are Brenda shaped from inexpensive yews and arborvitae.

To the rear of the house is a wonderful gazebo with glass windows and electric. Surprisingly enough, Brenda finds time to enjoy relaxing within its living-room like interior.

"I sit in there and play my flute and violin," Brenda said. "Sometimes my grandkids join me. They all play some type of instrumenttrumpet, violin, or piano."

Although the Sensenigs do not officially have a bed and breakfast, Brenda said, "We have operated as one for years—only it's free."

The couple often keeps overnight guests for church functions and for friends and family.

And daily, strangers are seen strolling through the Sensenig's yard and even sitting on the couple's lawn chairs.

"I meet people from all over the world in my yard," Brenda said. "I'm busy, but I often try to spend a few minutes talking with them. I also wrote a little something about my faith that I share with them."

During the winter months, Brenda concentrates on the inside of the house. She does just as big of job and as unusual a job inside. The Sensenigs often conduct a big Christmas open house for more than 500 people. This past season, she decorated more than 34 trees and many twigs and branches — each different themes.

The attic of the Sensenigs' three-story house is filled with Christmas decorations again found at garage sales — so that every year the decor is different than previous ones.

Guests are served holiday refreshments in the barn, where Ed has an extensive collection of motorcycles and related collectibles. Ed is a vintage motorcycle racer who competes in several states.

Where does Brenda get all her energy?

It must run in the genes. Brenda said, "I saw my mom outside the other day pulling weeds, and she's 90 years old.

"If I get tired, I take a day off and practice my musical instruments," she said.

She doesn't believe age should enter into the decision to dig and weed. She said, "Sure, I get a little sore. But so do my kids when they work outside. I visit my chiropractor and use my Jacuzzi regularly."

This gazebo is the place Brenda and her grandchildren gather to play musical instruments.

Her mind is constantly conjuring up new ideas. She said, "I'm constantly changing things. I don't plant the same things every year. I see it in my mind's eye.

"I have my radar out. I'm looking for an old-fashioned range," Brenda said. "I have just the spot to put it alongside the barn. Naturally I'll fill it with begonias, impatiens, and vines."

Farm Women Societies Gather In York For 37th Spring Rally

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

YORK (York Co.) — Recently the York County Society of Farm Women hosted the 37th spring rally of the Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania, which drew more than 450 members to the York Expo Center.

According to state president Catherine Schott on June 1 state scholarship forms are due, on September 12 is the board meeting, and October 14 is "Celebrate Farm Women" day.

Other activities included an interpretive dance routine by Heather Miller, recitation of a poem by Betty Diehl, and musical entertainment by Ambassadors For Christ.

Farm Women membership is now at 2,303 statewide.

Franklin County's Society of Farm Women will host next year's spring rally.

One of the keynote speakers was Mary Bach, consumer advocate. Bach, a former high school teacher, has worked on and spoken about consumer issues for more than 20 years.

"I represent consumers," she said. "I represent those of us who need help in the marketplace. We can get ripped off in a lot of little ways that we don't even know about." Bach was honored in Washington, D.C. as the 1999 national consumer of the year.

Pennsylvania sales tax was first on Bach's agenda. By contacting the department of revenue Bach educated herself about what items can and cannot be taxed. Residents can start by calling 1-800-362-2050 or logging unto www.revenue.state.pa.us to get a sales tax booklet list, she said.

What is taxable is not always straightforward, said Bach as she pointed out that deodorant and shampoo are taxable but toothbrush and toothpaste are not. Also pet food is taxable but flea collars and shampoo are not.

Most cleaning and paper products are taxable, however toilet tissue, regardless of color or pattern is not. Sewing notions such as thread or zippers are not taxable if they are going to clothing but are taxable if they are designated for crafts.

Most retailers will charge the tax unless the customer mentions that the notions are specifically for clothing, she said. "It's important to know your rights and speak up at the checkout counter," said Bach.

Product downsizing was another consumer issue that Bach highlighted. For example, although using the same size can, a large coffee company updated their graphics and began putting in three ounces less of product, a difference from the standard, traditional 16-ounce can. In addition their light coffee, which touts less caffeine, has only 12 ounces in the same size can, while the "Master Blend" holds 11 ½ ounces and the French Roast 11 ounces.

In addition, canned vegetables, which used to come in a standard 16-ounce size now may hold only 14 ½ ounces. When Bach contacted the company, they informed her that consumers were actually getting more, since there were more servings in the can. When Bach checked the can she noted that they simply decreased the size of each serving. "That's the consumer speak runaround" that a diligent consumer will encounter, she said.

Other downsized products include tuna, pickles, Jello, macaroni and cheese, among others. "If your tried-and-true family recipes for a jar or can of something and now it doesn't quite work, it could be because of the finagling the company's done with the package," she said.

A box sold by a large facial tissue company, for example, used to hold 200 tissues, a number that slowly decreased from 175 to 160 with the same size box. In November, found Bach, the number was decreased to 150 tissues and the box was shortened because the tissues were also made smaller, costing the consumer in product.

Ice cream, which used to come in standard pints, quarts, half gallons, has also been downsized. An ice cream manufacturer, for example, came out recently with a space saving, freezer-friendly design which contains only a quarter and three quarters. The bottom of the container is the same as the old size, and the lids are interchangeable but the box is shorter.

"Make sure you get the volume for your money," she said. "Watch when you shop. Get what you think you are paying for."

Another of Bach's topics was the scanner at the checkout. Since stores have moved from item to shelf pricing, consumers have to remember what prices they were promised to be charged by the signs on a shelf. "Very often the price that we were promised is not the price that comes up at the checkout," she said.

A "scanner guarantee policy" does protect the consumer, however. If the cost charged is a higher priced than promised for the item, the buyer should get the item for free, according to Bach.

"The policy is in effect in all major supermarkets in Pennsylvania," she said. "You need to know that you should get the item free if you are overcharged. Be alert that scanner guarantee policies are in place.

"Just because we assume they're going to charge us the lowest price doesn't mean that is what's going to happen at the checkout."

Supermarkets are not the only places with such consumer protection. "If it's got a UPC code there's the potential that it could scan wrong," she said. "You could be overcharged anywhere with a scanner, not just supermarkets. Be vigilant and know how much you should pay."

Bach also related her ongoing story with Wal-Mart scanners. The chain has a national scanner guarantee. If the consumer is overcharged on an item that is less than $3, the buyer gets the item for free. If the item scanned wrongly is more than $3, the consumer receives $3 off of the bill.

After being overcharged at Wal-Mart for bras, and repeatedly getting the discounts, Bach ended up with 11 bras at discount prices.

Consumer advocate Mary Bach holds up a stack of coffee cans that have undergone product downsizing.

Although she was reassured by Wal-Mart administration the problem would be corrected, she continued to find the items rang up more than the tag price. Her speech drew the attention of the television show "Dateline NBC" and Stone Phillips, who visited Bach to do a story on the situation.

Eventually Bach sued Wal-Mart on principle for $100 and won the case, which Wal-Mart appealed. The case was thrown out because she did not lose money at the store. She was, however, featured in an article in Good Housekeeping.

The experience has made her stronger. "We need to be empowered and know what our rights are," she said.

Bach was followed by author James McClure, who wrote "Nine Months In York Town." The book addresses the nine months that York hosted the Continental Congress and was the U.S. capital.

In the time period from 1777-1778 members of the congress, fleeing British-occupied Philadelphia, came across the Susquehanna River, which provided a buffer, and stayed in York to conduct government business during a trying time in U.S. history, said McClure.

The city, at the time, had only 1,700 people, so their arrival probably changed — and perhaps crowded — the streets of the city, which besides accommodating the congress also hosted visiting troops and dealt with a prisoner-of-war camp which was brought to the same area.

McClure drew the analogy that the city and its early governmental leaders were self-sacrificing and committed to priorities of God, family, liberty, and community — all issues that have come to the fore with the events of September 11, he said. The same priorities and strength that they exhibited then will also see this country through these trying times, he said.

Grandparents Raising Grandchildren

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Many grandparents are finding themselves raising their grandchildren. Accepting the responsibility for raising grandchildren will bring about many changes and challenges.

Children of all ages can be very demanding. It is also important to remember that all children misbehave at times.

Remain calm, listen, think and then act when determining how to discipline your grandchildren when they are demanding or disruptive.

In the book Grandparents As Parents: A Survival Guide for Raising a Second Family, Sylvie de Toledo and Deborah Elder Brown make these suggestions:

- Prioritize — Decide what is most important and handle it first.
- Take one thing at a time.
- Take time for yourself — You will need to refuel.
- Don't do a job better than it needs to be done — Try lowering your standards to lighten your load.
- Set limits with your grandchildren — Rules, such as regular bedtime, ultimately help everyone cope.
- Seek help — Help may come from friends, family members, organized support groups, and the religious community. Help and support are a fundamental part of the coping process. Isolation is an enemy to the coping process.
- Let yourself off the hook — Adults are responsible for their choices. Release yourself from feeling responsible for any poor choices made by the adult children.
- Focus on the positive — Keep in mind why you have disrupted your life. Focus on the rewards. There will be moments of joy and times of satisfaction.

ANSWER — Beth wanted to know how to sterilize potting soil in the oven before planting vegetable seeds indoors. Thanks to a reader who sent two methods.

To Sterilize Soil

Fill an old leaking pan with soil and pour boiling water over it. Let stand until sufficiently drained and ready to use for a planting medium.

Baked Soil

(Prevents damping off). Soil should be 4-5 inches deep in a container with a small 1½-inch diameter potato buried in it. Place the soil in an 200-degree oven and heat until potato is cooked. At this point, soil is sterilized and ready to use.

ANSWER — Linda Tyrpin, Jonestown, wanted to know how to get rid of unwanted peonies without digging them out. Thanks to Barbara Huneke, Pleasant Valley, N.Y., who writes that she has had success getting rid of weeds such as burdock and sumac by pouring boiling water on them. This method should work for peonies but probably should be done in early spring.

ANSWER — C. Faus, Hegins, had some questions about rhubarb stalks, which Harriett Tinker, Cockeysville, Md., and Paul Hicks, Marian Center, answered with the following information: Rhubarb can be harvested anytime during the growing season. In hot weather, the stalks lose their tender crispness and the harvest is over. Some rhubarb plants flower in summer, sending up tall spikes topped with a frizz of greenish-yellow buds, which should be removed as soon as they appear. If stalks are not cut as soon as they are ready to harvest, the stalks quickly become thick and woody, and that ends the harvesting. In fall, some clumps produce fresh stalks, which can be used for eating, but are generally not as tasty as the spring harvest. The leaves go limp after a hard frost. Clean off the bed and add a blanket of mulch.

Faus has been growing rhubarb for 50 years. After July 1 until frost, he leaves the plant to build up strength for the next crop. At the end of the growing season, he gathers all the leaves and stalks and places them in his compost pile.

The stalks are never poisonous, only the leaves, which should never be eaten but can be added to the compost pile.

Yellow Ware Advances From Utilitarian To Art Decor

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Bright, cheery displays of yellow ware often convince even the most dubious pottery connoisseur of its value.

It's true that most yellow ware produced from the 18th-20th century was mainly for functional purposes and not considered an art form. But time has a way of bringing hidden beauty to light. Such is the case of yellow ware.

The color alone suffuses a radiance seldom found in aged pottery. But the many patterns found in molds, bowls, colanders, and pitchers are highly desirable among collectors everywhere.

According to Mike Andes who recently opened Ephrata House of Antiques, Ephrata, collectors are willing to pay high prices for difficult-to-find pieces.

Yellow ware was made in England, the U.S., and Canada. It is difficult for the untrained eye to discern between pieces made in Canada and the U.S. It is much easier to distinguish English pieces from those made in Canada and the U.S.

Andes explained that English yellow ware is creamy-colored inside, while those made by American and Canadian potters are yellow inside and outside. Typical too are horizontal bands in blue or black.

Dishes with corn and wheat designs impressed in the clay were often used by homemakers to mold puddings. These molds are highly collectible today, with many buyers seeking sets of the different designs.

When considering buying yellow ware molds, buyers should determine if the clarity of the design is present. Andes held two pieces side by side. In one piece, the ear of corn was sharply imprinted, in the other, the imprint seemed a bit sloppy.

A buyer may not be concerned about this difference if they simply like the piece and want to add it to their collection. However, if they are concerned about the resale value, the highly defined design is a better investment except for rare pieces when pieces in any condition are highly prized.

Andes said pieces do not need necessarily need to be in perfect condition to increase in value. He and other buyers may purchase select pieces with nicks. "But I'm wary of cracks, which may spread and damage the piece. With nicks you can easily see the damage, and you don't have to worry about the nick expanding like cracks do," he said.

Andes has instant buyers for many yellow ware pieces such as molds with parrot, lion, or pineapple designs.

Bowls in many sizes were commonplace in households during the 18th and 19th centuries. A wide bowl with lower edges called a "nappy" was used for mush, and are sometimes called mush pans.

Although yellow ware was produced prolifically, many pieces have been broken through usage or simply thrown away before it was valued by historians and collectors. In fact, yellow ware is notorious for being unearthed in privy digs and garbage sites. It is believed that privies were often used as sites to dispose of garbage, and pieces may have slipped from fingers and not retrieved. Also, damaged and chipped pieces were probably discarded in this way.

Andes often has pieces cleaned to remove stains and grease by professionals who dip pieces into a special solution. Cleaning methods should be carefully performed since there is a risk factor and something may interact with the glaze, Andes said.

Education is the key when determining value for yellow ware. "Look, look, and look. Ask questions, read books, and talk to other collectors," Andes said.

His own background is a bit unique. He did not grow up in a family that had interests in antiques. Andes purchased his first piece when he was only seven years old. It was an old newspaper that told about the Civil War.

"I was hooked in the history behind old things and how people lived and used things," Andes said. None of his friends or relatives shared his interests, but that didn't keep him from frequenting auctions and sales in search of old treasures.

Andes raised rabbits and chickens to earn money to spend at auctions. By the time he was 16 years old, he had filled his aunt's attic with "a little of everything, but mostly primitives," he said.

After a stint in the military, Andes returned to the area where he continued buying old things.

"I went from booth to booth, where I compared prices. I knew that I needed to be able to buy and resell for less than they were to make a profit," Andes said of the research required.

"I took lots of notes every week," Andes said. "Never in front of the booth, but after I walked away."

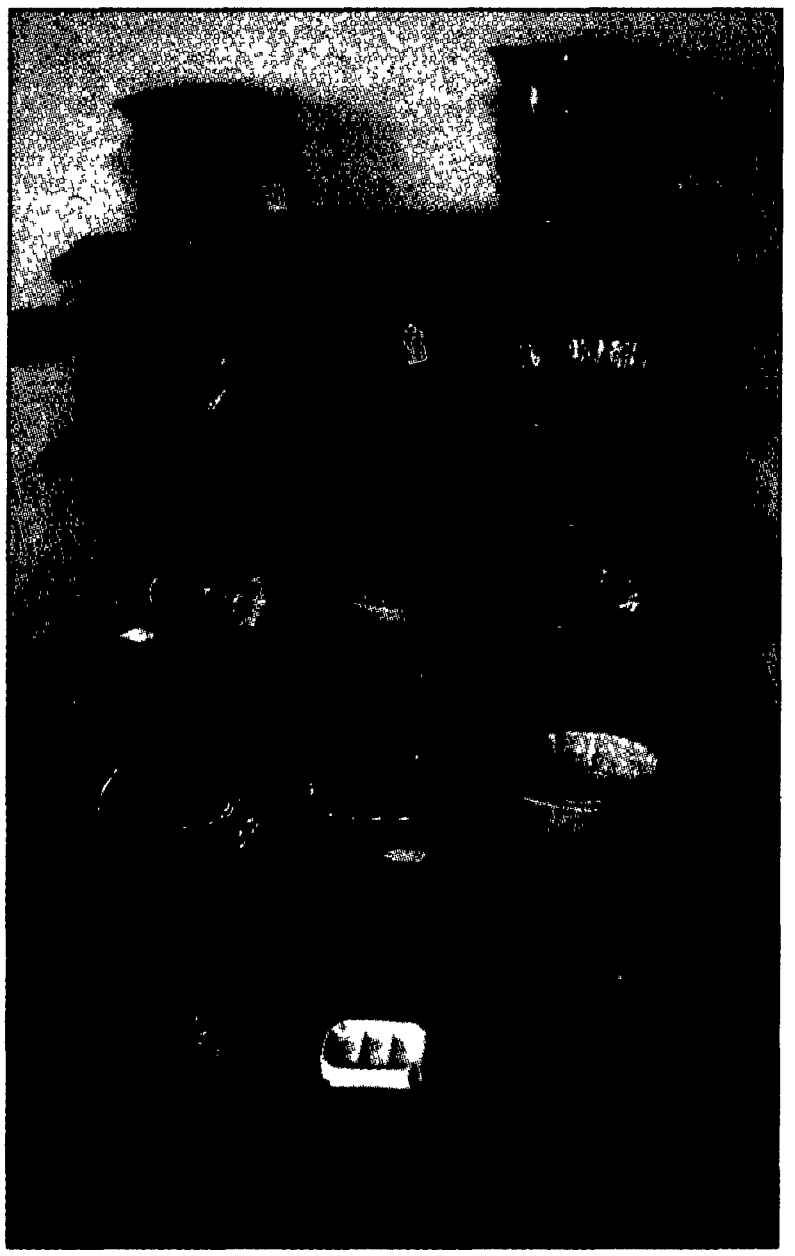
If an item was missing the following week, Andes inquired about it. He said, "Never assume that it was sold. Just because it isn't displayed doesn't mean it was sold."

This knowledge helped him determine at what prices things were selling.

"If you have a desire, it's easy to educate yourself," Andes said. He found dealers who were happy to share their knowledge with him.

Andes did not sell items until he was 24 years old. At that time, he sold almost everything he had collected through the years. The profits enabled him to buy a house with cash. He married and he and his wife honeymooned in New York where he purchased more antiques. The couple rented space at a local antique auction and built up a sizable inventory enabling them to start up their own shop.

After a divorce, Andes' time was filled with raising a son and daughter of whom he had custody. He started a baseball collection for his son and a cabbage patch doll and care bear collection for his daughter. Now adults, his children continue with their collections.

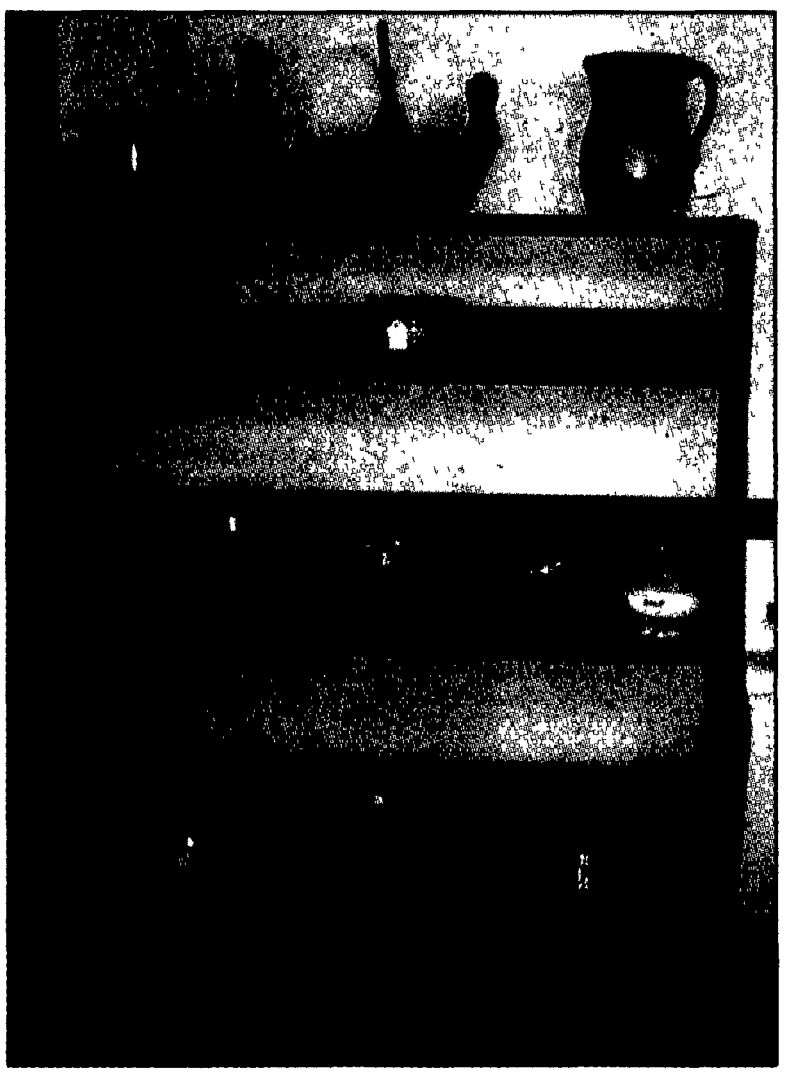


The bright, sunny impact from displaying yellow ware makes it a favorite with collectors. Once confined mostly to the kitchen, yellow ware is now incorporated into every room in the house.

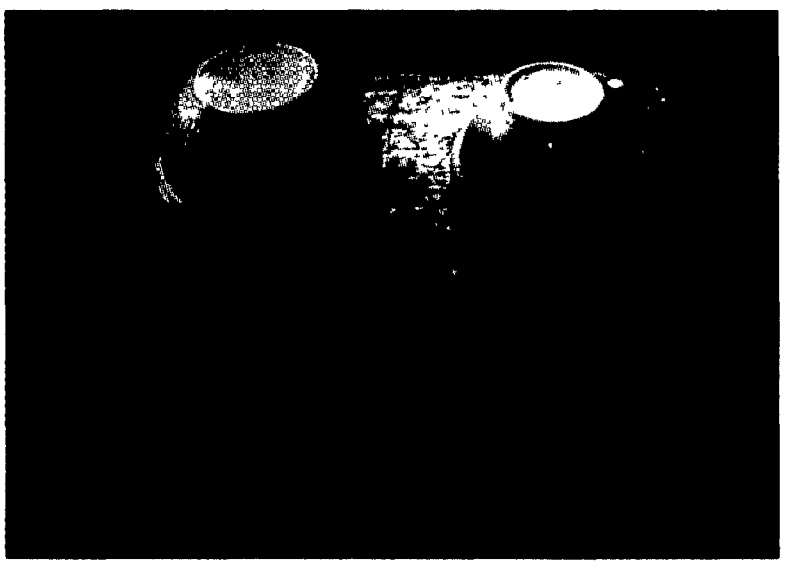
"Once it's in your blood, it doesn't leave," Andes said of his return to dealing in antiques after his children were raised about seven years ago.

Andes purchased a property that he turned into Ephrata House of Antiques, which features a wide variety of quality antiques. He rents out space to other dealers in addition to selling his own items. He also sells and buys over e-Bay. "There are deals to be found and made on e-Bay, but it's streaky just like flea markets. Sometimes it's a buyers' market, sometimes a sellers.'"

For more information, call Andes at the Ephrata House of Antiques, 1850 W. Main St., (717) 721-7790.



This collection of yellow ware shows some of the popular styles that attract collectors.



When buying yellow ware, examine pieces carefully to determine if cracks or nicks are present. According to Andes, the smaller bowl is of greater value because of the unusual-colored black bands. The bowls and the Pennsylvania chest with original paint and a folk art pattern are for sale at the Ephrata House of Antiques.

Collectors Find Victorian Jewelry Has Many Facets

Collectors have carried on a longtime love affair with Victorian jewelry. Part of the fascination is with the ways the jewelers turned everything from conventional precious metals to unconventional materials such as tortoise, human hair, and objects of nature into elegant and unique jewelry.

Early collectors Martha and Dean Fales collection of 18th and 19th century American jewelry was recently acquired by the Metropolitan Museum of New York. The collection is notable for its' diversity ranging from Tiffany pieces to examples of engraving techniques and unusual materials.

When is a belt buckle a brooch or a locket a charm for a bracelet? The answer is when they are examples of Victorian jewelers artistry, rediscovered by today's collectors and used in new ways. The utilitarian belt buckle was turned into a work of art showing the jewelers skill and setting off the elaborate costumes of Victorian ladies. However, collectors also search for more conventional pieces such as bracelets and necklaces of unusual materials and designs.

Jewelry, just like silver designs, followed the fashion motifs of the era. Beginning in the 1860s and through the 1870s there was an interest in Japanese art and design.

Butterflies, bamboo and flowers were often mounted in gold as brooches and bracelets.

Another popular trend of the times was the use of precious and semi-precious stones cut to designs for the mountains. Bohemian garnets were sometimes rose cut.

Natural materials such as tortoiseshell were inlaid with stripes, lines and tiny dots of silver and gold known as pique' work.

The strange technique known as "hair jewelry" that dated to the early 18th century reached the peak of popularity by the mid-nineteenth century. It is also known as "mourning" jewelry, since it was made from the hair of a deceased friend, lover or family member. It became elaborate and contrived often with the hair arranged in three dimensional shapes, set with gemstones and gold and sometimes with faceted jet and enamel.

Novelty jewelry in the shape of animals, baskets of flowers and even windmills enjoyed a brief popularity in the 1870s, along with sporting jewelry. Brooches depicted hunting dogs, whips and golf clubs.

Some of the most interesting pieces of jewelry used enameling. The unlimited use of colors resulted in unique designs, when combined with metals and precious stones. By the late 19th century jewelers were using a spin-off of conventional enameling known as "plique-a-jour,"(a process where tin-backed wiring is filled with transparent enamels giving a stained glass effect).

Currently coral jewelry is a trendy fashion. It was very popular in the 1870s when it was combined with gold and worked into naturalistic forms.

CLUES: Victorian jewelry doesn't have to contain precious metals or gemstones to be collectible. Some interesting examples were gold-plated and set with imitation rubies, amethysts and jade. Mechanization was introduced with the use of gas and steam engines.

Often a thin sheet of gold was attached to brass. Intricate designs were often stamped on the metal. Beginning collectors can still find late 19th century, mass-made brooches in different shapes, sizes. They came in such unusual shapes as birds, turtles and floral shapes. Sometimes the stones look so real a jeweler will take a second glance. The same goes for belt buckles.

Flea markets and garage sales are a good source.

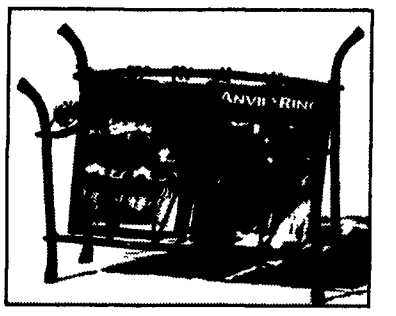
Blacksmith Day At Rough And Tumble

KINZER (Lancaster Co.) — On Saturday, June 8, the Pennsylvania Artist Blacksmiths' Association (PABA) and Rough and Tumble will host Blacksmith Day. The main demonstration area will be at the Titus Brubaker building from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Feature demonstrator is Tal Harris from Waxhaw, N.C. Tal has been a demonstrator at Artist Blacksmiths' Association of North America (ABANA) conferences, past president of the North Carolina ABANA, student of Francis Whitaker, instructor at J.C. Campbell Folk School, workshop leader in Australia, and husband to famed artist Kim Harris. He will be demonstrating traditional joinery techniques and tooling.

A forge area will be manned by PABA members demonstrating a variety of projects. There will also be an area set up for tailgate and vendor sales. All are welcome to bring items to sell at the tailgate area.

Admission is free.



Magazine rack designed and made by Paul Heif of South Paw Forge is only one of the many projects displayed at Blacksmith's Day at Rough and Tumble.

Historical Society Offers Cultural Tour

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — For those travelers who enjoy mixing culture with their history, the Lancaster Mennonite Historical Society has planned a three-day cultural extravaganza in Virginia.

This trip leaves June 21 at 7:30 a.m. from the Historical Society and returns on June 23 about 6 p.m.

The tour package covers all admission fees, lodging, taxes, gratuities and meals except for the Friday noon lunch. The cost for the outing is $269 per person for members of the Historical Society and $299 for nonmembers. For more information contact Dorothy Siegrist at (717) 393-9745.

The tour includes a visit to the P. Buckley Moss Museum in Waynesboro, Va. This site features the works of local artist P. Buckley Moss. The subject of Moss' works include the Shenandoah Valley scenery and the Amish and Mennonite people of the region.

An evening lecture by Esther Shank, author of Mennonite Country-Style Recipes and Kitchen Secrets, will share information about German and Mennonite cookery of the region.

Each tourist will also receive a ticket to the Bach Festival concert at Eastern Mennonite University on Saturday. Conducted by Kenneth Nafziger, the Saturday concert will feature works by Franz Joseph Haydn (Sinfonia Concertante in B-flat Major), Darius Milhaud (La Creation du monde), and Libby Larsen (A Brandenburg for the New Millennium).

A significant highlight of this trip includes lodging for two nights in the homes of members of the Lindale Mennonite Church rather than in a commercial establishment. In this way, members of the tour can experience Mennonite life in Virginia first hand.

Other tour events include visits to the Hildebrand Mennonite Church and the Pleasant View Old Order Mennonite Meetinghouse. The Hildebrand Church has its original 1876 interior and furniture.

Sunday services will be at the Lindale Mennonite Church. The Lindale congregation will serve lunch to the tour group after the service. Income from the lodging and meal provided by the Lindale congregation will go toward a fund drive for a new sanctuary.

Sale Schedule

DAY ONE: Furniture; Pottery; Stoneware; Clocks; Watches; Toys; Lamps; Guns; Decoys; Sport related; Cast iron; Kitchen Collectables; plus lots of glassware

DAY TWO: Numerous amounts of glassware and other remaining items.

Due to bad Health Frank and Bev Cornish have decided to sell their entire collection and inventory of antiques. This brief listing above does not begin to explain how large this collection is. There is at least 500 banana boxes packed full of all types of antiques and hidden treasures. There will be many, many good tray lots sold both days. If you want to add to your collection or beef up your inventory don't miss this auction. We've moved these items for your convenience in to our new building due to the poor parking available at the owners residence.

LOTS OF MERCHANDISE BOTH DAYS

see our new website ROAN.BIZ for many pictures

TERMS: CASH or honorable check day of auction. Acceptable ID required to obtain bid card. 10% buyer premium applies to this sale.

Lunch and PortaJohn available.

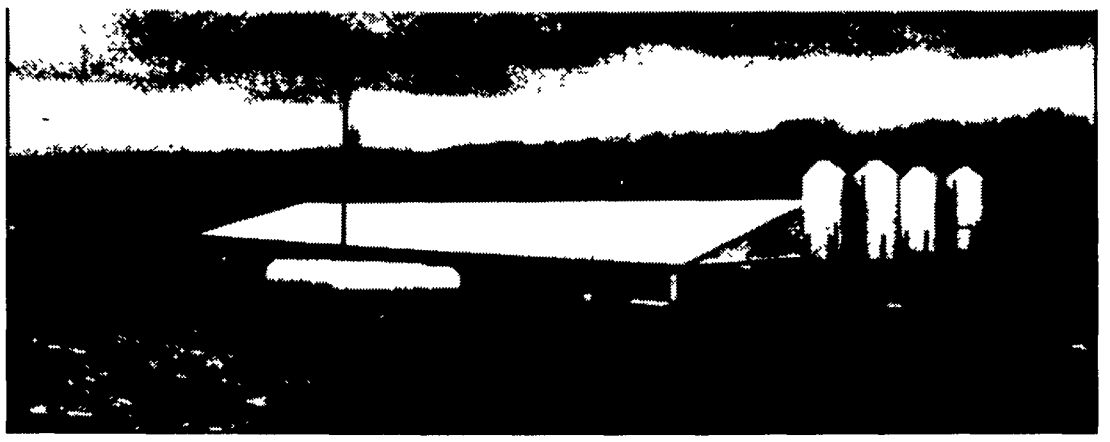
JAY, LOIS & RODNEY BOLL's OPEN HOUSE



Friday, May 31, 2002
10 AM to 2 PM

1802R Cloverleaf Road, Mount Joy,
Lancaster County, PA 17552

This new, state-of-the-art "easy sort" 2200-head swine finish facility contracted by Franklin Family Farms features a Raytec Auto Sorting Scale and Airstream's New Computer-Compatible Climate Control System

WAYPIG® AUTO SORT SCALE WEIGHS, SORTS AND STAGES PIGS AUTOMATICALLY.

- User-friendly digital indicator exclusively designed for WayPig® Auto Sort Scale
- Tracks total weight, number of pigs and average weight. Capability to track the number of pigs within a preselected weight range.
- Four-point weighing system is designed for accuracy and quiet operation.
- Heavy gauge steel is powder-coated for durability. Components that are typically subject to corrosion are stainless steel with this system.
- Plenty of clearance exists under the scale. Normal amount of debris will not distort weight.
- Electronic components are protected from pigs and the elements.
- Weighs one pig at a time.
- Easy cleaning.

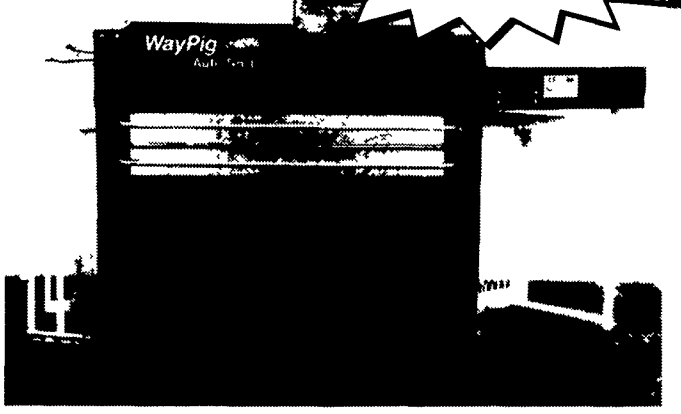
Automatic Sorting Accurate Weights & Less Labor Costs

ELIMINATE SORT LOSS

- Pigs enter the scale and within seconds the accurate weight of even jittery pigs is displayed. WayPig® sorts and stages to your preset weight requirements.

CUT LABOR COSTS

- WayPig® Auto Sort Scale will do the work of several employees. This scale offers large pen hog finishing operations relief from a labor-intensive, time-consuming job.



WayPig® Auto Sort By Raytec Manufacturing

PQA Level III Certification & Recertification will be held from 11 AM - 12 PM for those interested!

Bio-Security Basics Begin With Simple Sanitation

GREELEY, Colo. — Bio-security is this year's buzzword, but basic bio-security begins with the same, simple sanitation guidelines that livestock specialists have advocated for years.

"With the heightened awareness over animal disease prevention, there is no substitute for having a basic sanitation program in place in livestock and poultry operations," says Fred Schneider, animal technology unit manager for Loveland Industries. "A well-planned sanitation program not only prevents introduction of organisms from the outside, it manages the naturally occurring bacteria, fungi and dust-borne diseases that cause health problems, resulting in a healthier growth environment."

Key concepts to remember when planning a successful livestock or poultry sanitation program are two-fold: 1. Avoid introduction of disease; and 2. Prevent recontamination.

Using a fast-acting, broad-spectrum product such as DC&R® Disinfectant is the first line of defense for livestock producers, Schneider suggests.

Following disinfection, recontamination must be prevented to keep disease organisms at lowest possible level. For that, Schneider notes, everyone entering animal premises should be required to use a two-step footbath that first washes away manure and dirt, then disinfects with Loveland's DC&R® Disinfectant.

For more information on animal premise disinfection, Loveland Industries offers free program books on practical swine sanitation and practical poultry sanitation. These program books are available from your local Loveland sales representative, or by calling Loveland Industries Customer Service toll-free number at 1-800-356-8920.

CLUTCHES/GEAR REDUCTION ASSEMBLIES

Our Specialty

We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined outputs, shafts, housing adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp. Five different gear ratios. A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.

CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies

For 8-30 HP Engines
Fits most — Honda, Robin, Kohler, Kawasaki, others (1-2 cyl.)

- Fits most standard crankshafts – 1", 1 1/8", 1 7/16"
- Aluminum Castings/Housings
- Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

Performance and capacity

The 570 New Holland square baler brings together performance, reliability and capacity.

- Rotary feeding system adds consistency and bale quality
- Fast plunger stroke - 93 SPM. A Cat. 6 drive-line and increased slip clutch setting add capacity
- Wide Super-Sweep™ pickup. 65" wide to get those big, scattered windrows
- Strong materials in bale case and plunger
- Gear-driven tying mechanisms - wire or twine

Ask for a demonstration of the New Holland 570 baler... the best-in-class square baler.

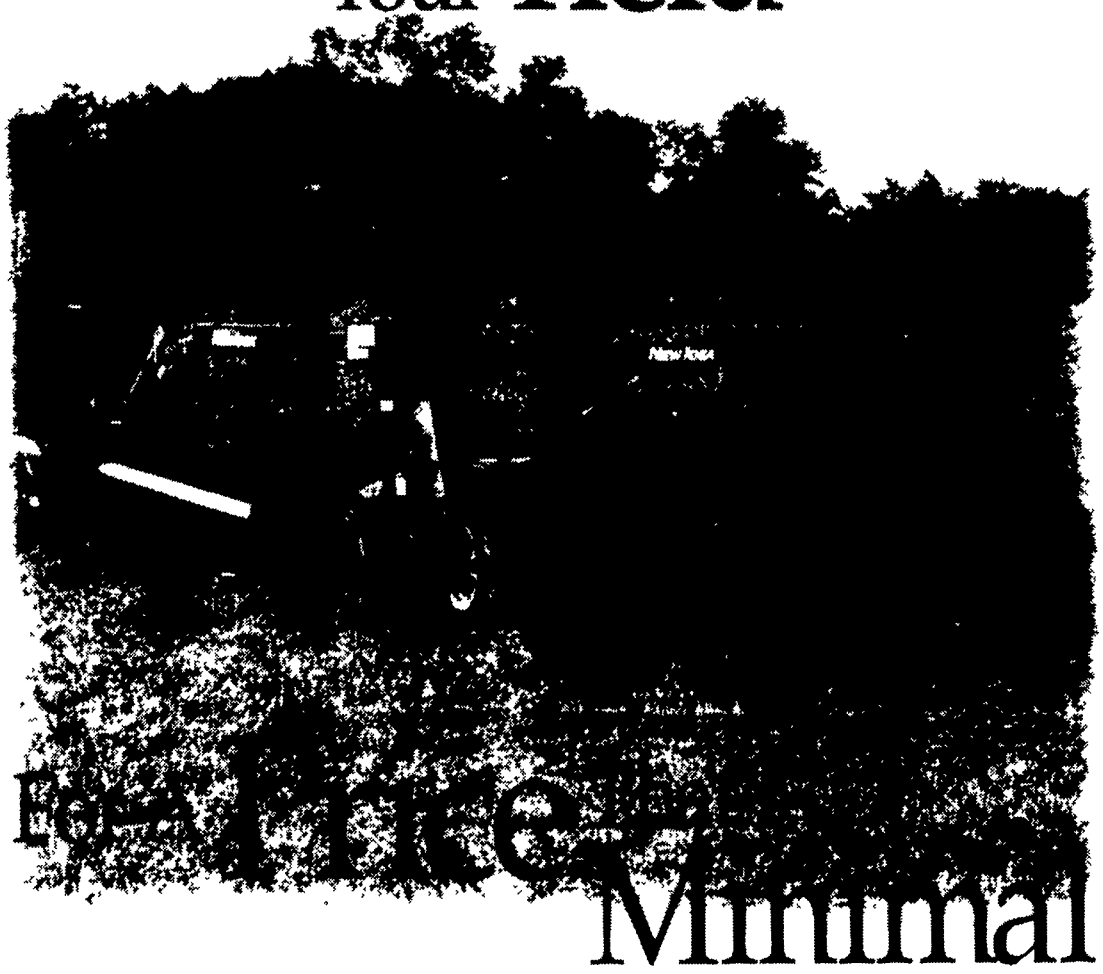
Maximize Your Yield Potential



When it comes to improving Relative Feed Value and maximizing the Crude Protein in hay, nothing outperforms the New Idea® 5209 Disc Mower Conditioner. Its high-speed disc cutterbar glides through fields with ease, even in extreme conditions. And the unique Ti-Cor® Conditioning Rolls gently condition the stems, speeding drydown.

The 5209's reliable design keeps you mowing and conditioning year after year. With the segmented cutterbar driveshaft, a New Idea innovation, the cutterbar is truly modular, which makes for easy maintenance.

To see the disc mower conditioner that'll exceed your expectations — not your budget, visit your AGCO® New Idea dealer today

You can't buy a better ATV for this kind of money anyplace!
This ATV is an excellent work and recreational machine for the price you can't beat it!

Suzuki QuadRunner ATVs may be used by those aged 16 and older. Suzuki highly recommends that all ATV riders take a training course. We'll even pay for it. For safety and training course information, see your dealer or call the SVIA at 1-800-852-5344. ATVs can be hazardous to operate. For your safety, always wear a helmet, eye protection and protective clothing. Always avoid paved surfaces. Never ride on public roads. Never carry passengers or engage in stunt riding. Riding and alcohol or other drugs don't mix. Avoid excessive speeds. Be extra careful on difficult terrain. Along with concerned conservationists everywhere, Suzuki urges you to "TREAD LIGHTLY" on public and private land. Preserve your future riding opportunities by showing respect for the environment, local laws and the rights of others when you ride.

AMERICA'S MOST POPULAR BALERS

John Deere Round Balers are a farmer's first choice because they deliver tight, high-quality bales that stand up tall and stay firm longer than others. Now, with eight models available, you can match your baling needs even more precisely. All eight retain the features that have made John Deere balers America's most popular line. See us for details, today!

NEW! Now Available!
Accu-puls 12V milking systems without inverter, runs strictly off of your 12V diesel batteries. Results are usually better milkout, faster milking, better rest period on milkers, less sore teat ends, less mastitis, which all helps to lower your somatic cell counts and helps produce more and better quality milk.

We specialize in cleaning vacuum lines and servicing milker systems. It has been proven over and over you can't properly clean your line with water only. Armor digest will bring lots of dirt out even after being cleaned with water once every month. Also any galvanized lines cannot be cleaned properly, all vacuum lines should be 2" PVC for proper milking performance and lower somatic cell counts. Any milking system and pulsators should be cleaned and serviced once a year, twice a year is better yet. Farmers could prevent a lot of mastitis and produce more and better quality milk if this was done, prevention is cheap compared to a cure.

Call 717-529-1226 for more information

P.S. Summertime is the best time to clean and service vacuum systems, we can do our best job and clean your line easier when your cows are out in the pasture.

Smith's Earns Elite Position

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Smith's Implements, the John Deere dealership located here, earned a position in the elite Manager's Club, according to Tom Ellicott, territory manager for John Deere Company.

This honor is awarded to the top 20 out of the 267 dealers in northeast America that is covered by the John Deere Columbus branch.

This award recognizes superior performance in several key areas, including product sales and parts/service support.

"We're honored to receive this prestigious award," said Ross Smith, owner of Smith's Implements. "Our employees' consistent hard work and concern for our customers played a great role in achievement."

Rick Bormann, Columbus branch manager, and Scotty Shipp, division marketing manager, presented the award to Ross and Tammy Smith at the Manager's Club celebration in Cancun, Mexico.

Farmer Boy Ag Receives Ziggity Award

MIDDLEBURY, Ind. — The outstanding achievements of Farmer Boy Ag Systems of Myerstown, this past year have been honored with the Sales Achievement Award from Ziggity Systems, Inc.

Farmer Boy Ag Systems is a distributor of quality poultry watering equipment manufactured by Ziggity Systems, Inc.

Ziggity sales representative Steve Awde presented the award to Paul High of Farmer Boy Ag Systems when he visited the distributor in early April. The award salutes the company for exceeding expectations with its excellent sales and service in 2001.

New Holland Trailing Wheel Rakes Built For Rough Fields

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — New Holland's new HT152 (standard) and HT154 (deluxe) trailing wheel rakes are built to handle the rigorous demands of operation over rough or uneven fields.

A high-clearance, reinforced articulating mainframe carries the extra load of wide raking settings and lets big, fluffy windrows pass through without plugging.

All models are trailing style, folding, V-rake type, with raking widths ranging from 17 feet five inches to 36 feet.

All New Holland wheel rakes incorporate heavy-duty, articulating frame members to follow rolling or uneven terrain without problems. Frame members are bolted instead of welded to increase their ability to withstand shock load, and components are reinforced with additional steel in stress areas. Large tires carry the weight and float smoothly over rough terrain.

The individual finger-raking wheels are common between all models. Each 55-inch diameter wheel provides a large contact surface to easily move high-volume hay crops. Forty equally spaced tines on each wheel gently pick and move the crop, forming big, fluffy windrows that dry fast. The spring steel finger tines are designed for hard use, and can be individually replaced if needed.

Individual ground contact pressure and wheel flotation adjustments can be made to each raking wheel. An adjustable flotation spring allows each wheel to provide just the right amount of pressure to float over the terrain without damaging the fields or the tine fingers.

The flotation springs for all raking wheels on each rake wheel frame are connected to a centralized adjustment mechanism so that after initial adjustments are made for each wheel, the flotation pressure for the entire assembly can be quickly changed without having to readjust each individual wheel.

The raking wheels are raised and lowered hydraulically from the tractor seat. Windrow sizes can be adjusted either manually with a ratchet jack, or hydraulically from the tractor seat.

Improvements To Massey Ferguson's Rotary Combine Increase Flexibility

ATLANTA, Ga. — New two-speed rotor drive gearbox, auto unload auger swing, chrome bin loading auger, spill saver, and larger steering cylinder and steering control unit, give the Massey Ferguson 8780XP Rotary Combine the capability to deliver some of the highest quality grain samples in the field today.

"Massey-Ferguson's patented and exclusive hydrostatic rotor drive maintains the selected rotor speed regardless of engine speed for more consistent grain quality," said Verlin Tinder, Massey Ferguson harvesting marketing manager. "Now the addition of a two-speed rotor drive gearbox adds flexibility for harvesting all types of crops while maintaining the rotor torque needed for threshing."

The new two-speed rotor-drive gearbox allows rotor speeds to be changed between high-range rotor speeds of 175 to 940 rpm for small grains, and low-range rotor speeds of 175 to 725 rpm for corn.

The MF 8780XP features load-sensing hydraulics, hydrostatic ground drive, four-speed constant-mesh transmission, and heavy-duty final drives. The exclusive, infinitely variable hydrostatic rotor drive replaces complicated belt drives found on competitive combines, provides full-powered rotor reverse for unplugging, and accurately monitors rotor load, making both experienced and inexperienced operators highly productive.

A chrome bin loading auger is standard equipment on Rice and Fieldstar Precision Agriculture System combines. Chrome flighting extends the life of the flighting in the highly abrasive rice crop, and will minimize wear of flighting around the Fieldstar Yield Sensor. A Spill Saver prevents grain from dribbling out of the unload-auger when the unloader is not engaged. A larger two-inch diameter steering cylinder, coupled with a new Danfoss Steering control units, gives added steering response and power to get through tough spots.

Improvements to Massey Ferguson's 8780XP Rotary Combine add flexibility for harvesting all types of crops.

Blue Seal Names Al Yoder Vice President Of Production

LONDONDERRY, N.H. — Alan Yoder of Manchester, N.H., was recently promoted to vice president — production at Blue Seal Feeds.

In his new position, Yoder will oversee production, engineering and environmental issues at all of Blue Seal's full line of satellite mills.

Yoder joined Blue Seals in 1983 as plant manager at Blue Seal's largest mill in Richford, Vt. In 1995 he became director of production, managing the full line mills. A year later, he assumed engineering and environmental oversight responsibilities. He is a graduate of Tri-State College in Angola, Ind.

Pa. Hereford Sale June 8

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — The Pennsylvania Hereford Association presents its Spring Grass Time Sale June 8 at noon at C.J. Furlong's farm (former Salunga Acres), 2230 Spooky Nook Road, Mount Joy.

Friday evening, June 7, and Saturday, June 8, prior to the sale, the Pennsylvania Junior Hereford Association will have a silent auction of Hereford crafts and bull semen from some of the top bulls in the industry.

There are 45 lots of Hereford cattle being offered for sale by 21 of the top Hereford breeders in the eastern U.S. Being offered for sale are yearling bulls, bred heifers, cow-calf pairs, embryos, and show heifer prospects.

Friday evening, June 7, those attending may preview the cattle and enjoy a Hereford Beef sandwich. For more information or sale catalogs, contact Mike Firestine, (717) 866-4185 or C.J. Furlong at (717) 892-2758.

Land Pride Flail Mowers Designed For Several Needs

SALINA, Kan. — Land Pride Flail Mowers, FM20, FM30 and FM40 Series, are designed to fulfill a variety of needs from grass cutting to shredding prunings. These are the perfect choice for schools and other recreational areas where people may be present.

With the rotor working in the opposite direction of travel, the cut grass is brought up and over the rotor for a more uniform dispersal of clippings.

The 30 Series Flail Mower offers 3/16-inch deck material and utilizes a threaded rod to easily offset the hitch by nearly eight inches.

The cast iron gearbox incorporates an overrunning clutch that enables the rotor to swing free to a stop when the tractor PTO has been turned off.

The rear gate of the mower can be opened for easier discharge in heavy conditions, or left closed for greater mulching capabilities.

New Biotech Corn Could Knock Out Rootworm

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — While scientists have developed new biotech plant varieties that resist several pests, corn rootworm has continued to munch its way across cornfields.

Rootworms thrive on the roots of corn plants, leaving the plants so weak that they don't grow or produce as much as they should.

Without a healthy mass of roots to anchor them, the crippled stalks fall to the ground. And if the corn still manages to live and produce ears, rootworms that mature into beetles can devour the kernels and silk. The insect can grow from egg to adult within one year, and do some extensive damage along the way.

These hungry and hearty insects cost corn producers about $1 billion each year in yield losses and control measures, according to the Agriculture Department. Now, producers may have a new weapon in their arsenal against the corn pest.

If government regulators approve the new YieldGard™ rootworm-protected corn, developed by Monsanto, farmers across the Corn Belt could cut back on their use of insecticides and get season-long control of corn rootworm regardless of weather and soil conditions.

The company is in the final stage of registering the product with the Environmental Protection Agency.

Monsanto's field trials are promising. They show that the new product is significantly more effective and consistent than the leading insecticides in controlling rootworm. YieldGard™ rootworm corn was 100 percent consistent in controlling rootworm damage, compared to 93 percent for the best performing insecticide. Monsanto estimated that an economic threshold of 3 on a scale of 1 to 6 was the point at which it is cost-effective to use some form of rootworm control. On that scale, the YieldGard™ product achieved a rating of 1.7, compared to 2.3, 2.5 and 2.6 for the leading rootworm insecticides.

Monsanto's YieldGard™ rootworm-protected corn is just the latest arrival in a growing family of successful biotechnology products that are helping farmers win the battle against crop- and profit-eating insects and diseases. Its older siblings include corn that resists the European corn borer; cotton that is protected against cotton bollworms, pink bollworms and tobacco budworms; potatoes that resist the Colorado potato beetle; tomato plants that resist certain viruses; and sunflowers, soybean canola and wheat that are protected against various caterpillar and beetle pests.

Like the corn borer-protected corn approved in 1997, the new corn variety contains bacillus thuringiensis (Bt) genes, which produce a protein that is toxic to several insects. Application of Bt to protect against rootworm will be a boon to corn growers in the Corn Belt that stretches across the Midwest, where rootworm is a bigger problem than corn borer.

U.S. corn producers are expected to embrace the new Monsanto product as soon as it is approved for sale and planting in the United States. USDA reported in March that U.S. farmers are increasing their plantings of biotechnology crops, with biotech corn plantings increasing to 32 percent of all corn planted in 2002. The rootworm-protected corn is likely to prove even more popular than existing biotech varieties of corn. Monsanto's market research shows that three-quarters of corn producers surveyed are interested in using rootworm-protected corn.

Producers who have resisted planting biotech varieties because of their higher price tag may decide that now is the time to make the investment. Application to control corn rootworm is the leading use of insecticides in the U.S.

In 2000, more than 90 million pounds of insecticide were applied on more than 15 million acres of corn nationwide, according to Doane Market Research. But early planting and overly wet or dry soil conditions can compromise the effectiveness of insecticides. Producers who want to protect the environment and themselves from exposure to chemicals while gaining more consistent control over corn rootworm may jump at the chance to plant the new YieldGard™ variety.

While Monsanto is the first company out of the gate with a rootworm-protected variety of corn, other companies are expected to come out with their own similar products in the near future.

Availability Of Healthy Soybean Oil Traits Expands Under New ISU, Pioneer Agreements

AMES, Iowa — A new agreement between Iowa State University and Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc. will expand opportunities to develop novel soybean oils with improved health benefits.

Pioneer will make its higher-yielding soybean donor germplasm with healthy oil traits available to support the soybean-grower effort to improve the competitiveness of the crop. Under a 1991 agreement, Pioneer had exclusive commercialization rights to the oil traits developed by Iowa State, and provided the novel traits to the public and private researchers through sublicenses.

Since entering the agreement, Pioneer has incorporated the traits into commercial soybean varieties on the market today. Through this cooperative effort, the first soybean oils with improved nutritional value were commercialized, including one with half the saturated fat of conventional soybean oil.

Under the new agreement, the Iowa State University Research Foundation (ISURF) will be responsible for licensing the healthy soybean oil traits to other research organizations or companies for further development. This change in the agreement will make it possible for other companies to commercialize the healthy oil traits without obligation to Pioneer.

"Although public and private researchers have always been able to utilize the ISU traits for research, Pioneer has controlled the marketing of the oil from any soybean varieties they developed," said Kenneth Kirkland, ISURF director. "Pioneer has generously agreed to let other companies develop markets with the novel traits as a way of improving the competitiveness of soybean as a source of healthy oil."

All of the traits involved in the agreement were developed by Walter Fehr, Distinguished Professor of agriculture and director of the Office of Biotechnology, and Earl Hammond, University Professor of food and science and human nutrition.

Pioneer has agreed to license its higher-yielding soybean donor germplasm with the healthy oil traits to public and private researchers for breeding purposes.

"Making these lines and cultivars available for licensing supports soybean growers who through their check-off fund are trying to improve the competitiveness of soybeans by improving the quality of soybean composition," said Fehr. "It means that public and private researchers can build on the efforts of Pioneer, which will save them considerable time in developing improved varieties. This is good news for soybean farmers, processors and consumers."

Pioneer will continue to license the healthy soybean oil traits from ISURF, but on a nonexclusive basis.

"We'll continue to develop and market soybean varieties with these improved oils," said Dennis Byron, Pioneer research director for oil seeds and field crops. "Our confidence in our proprietary soybean genetics allows us to do this. We hope moving to this nonexclusive agreement with ISU and making our germplasm available to other researchers will help build momentum for the U.S. soybean grower initiative to make soybeans more competitive with other oilseed crops through the Better Bean Initiative."

The "Better Bean Initiative" is a project of the grower-managed United Soybean Board, which allocates soybean checkoff money.

Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc., a subsidiary of DuPont, provides access to advanced plant genetics, crop protection solutions and quality crop systems to customers in nearly 70 countries.

ISURF is a not-for-profit corporation that owns and manges intellectual property developed at Iowa State University.

Cost Of Community Services Studies Dispels Myths About Residential Development

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The South Central Assembly for Effective Governance (The Assembly), with financial support from the York Foundation, collaborated with the American Farmland Trust (AFT) to conduct a Cost of Community Services (COCS) study in Shrewsbury Township and Hopewell Township. Their summary findings and report were recently released.

The Assembly was incorporated in February of 1997 to help provide a regional forum and voice for the eight counties and 1.7 million residents of the region. The Assembly is dedicated to improving the quality of life in the region through improved planning and enhanced intergovernmental cooperation.

The American Farmland Trust model for fiscal impact analysis is a more comprehensive model in its approach to data gathering. Typical fiscal impact studies rarely consider the fiscal contribution of farm, forest and recreational lands, which are very important to rural economies. And rural towns and counties that are likely to benefit most from the information provided by fiscal impact analyses rarely have the expertise or resources to conduct a study.

The Assembly will conduct this study for any south central Pennsylvania township or county for approximately $7,500 and will assist communities in seeking funding assistance.

In the course of the studies, the Assembly conducted interviews with townships, school district and county officials and department heads to establish departments' revenues and expenditures as they relate to three land use categories — residential; commercial/industrial; and farm, forest and open space. This first-hand account ensures accurate and reliable information.

The study in Shrewsbury Township, York County, discovered that in fiscal year 2000 for every $1 of revenue generated by residential property in the township, $1.23 was spent providing services to those lands. For every $1 received from commercial and business land uses, only $0.15 was spent to provide services. For every $1 received from farm/forest/open land uses in the township, only $0.17 was spent providing services.

It also found that comparing revenues to expenditures shows that residential land use had a deficit of $2,322,960, which was covered by a $2,211,115 surplus from commercial/industrial development and $351,818 from farm, forest, and open land.

The study in Hopewell Township, York County discovered that in fiscal year 2000 for every $1 of revenue generated by residential property in the township, $1.27 was spent providing services to those lands. For every $1 received from commercial and business land uses, only $0.32 was spent to provide services. For every $1 received from farm/forest/open land uses in the township, only $0.59 was spent providing services.

The Best of the Best

2oz. Seal of Quality Wheeling

The Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality coating represents the best of the best in the Wheeling Corrugating line of premium galvanized roofing siding. Every panel that carries the 2 ounce coating assures you are getting the toughest, the most durable, the most corrosion resistant galvanized sheet available in today's marketplace.

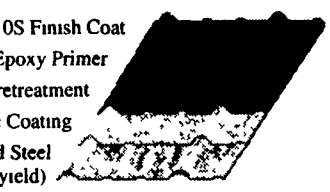
Metal Roofing & Siding

The Ultimate G-100 Process

"The Best"



1. Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2. Epoxy Primer
3. Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4. G-100 Zinc Coating
5. Full Hard Steel (80,000 min yield)

6. Heat formed, less paint cracks

7.

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1. One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention.
2. Primer coat: promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3. Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider.
4. G-100 Galvanized: Most metal roofing has approx. 40% less galvanized under the paint. G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels.
5. Full Hard· Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6. Heat formed: Metal is painted before ribs are formed. Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks. (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7. Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L.F.
8. Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53.37 Per Square. $1.69 Per L.F.

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.
from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower-to-grower direct seed sales
- S D S U tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkesburg, PA
- $1 55/per lb in 60 lb bags
- Varieties S D Common, Vernal, and Rhyzoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at '2 and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased."

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

John E. Kreider

Custom Manure Hauling
Reduced compaction provides you with healthier crops and higher yields. We offer the flotation of a farm tractor & spreader or try our new truck tractor & trailer tanker. Combine the road speed of a truck (a tractor's greatest limitation) with nearly the same flotation as a tractor & spreader. It will go anywhere our tractor will.

Custom Tillage
We also offer a deep tillage service if you find yourself having to do something about compacted ground. We have a 9-tooth Sunflower chisel fitted with 5 chisel teeth and 4 ripper Shanks. You have the choice of 4 inch twisted shovels for good residue coverage or 2 inch straight points for less coverage. All of our customers who have had used this have been very pleased with the results.
